WOMAN AND HER HOME.

OLYMPIA'S APPEAL TO WOMEN.

ONCE again Olympia is the Mecca of every motorist, and this year the show is, I think, of special interest to women drivers.

Every woman who has a car, or who is likely in the near future to be the lucky owner of a car, cannot fail to be impressed by the tremendous drop in price since 1923. In many cases where the prices remain the same as in 1923, the manufacturers have improved their cars by introducing four-wheel brakes, low-pressure tyres, shock absorbers, and a more generous accessory equipment—all of which should make their special appeal to the fair sex.

I was impressed with the business-like attitude of prospective women buyers, who displayed an astonishing technical and practical knowledge, often to the dismay of the unwary salesman. Husbands were obviously not getting it quite their own way—their wives a year or so back would have been content to admire the upholstery and fittings; this year their knowledge goes deeper, and I overheard many a friendly little argument about the comfort of the seating, the ease with which a clutch worked, and other points, proving that women are every bit as keen on getting a useful car as well as a smart-looking one.

The closed car is clearly in the ascendancy, and this type for general use makes a strong appeal to women. Many of these cars, notably the Singer 10 h.p. at £295, have the new "Scaco" pneumatic upholstery—a great boon on a bumpy road. This Singer car is, indeed, an example of excellent value in a saloon limousine, which represents a vast improvement on the 1923 model as regards size, engine, length of wheel base, etc.

The Citroën coupe, 7.5 h.p., at £170, appealed to me enormously; it is the most inexpensive coupe obtainable and is essentially a small town car for a lady's use. Besides many other accessories, I noticed it has the luxuries of "comfort" tyres, wind-screen wiper, and non-rattle door locks. Among the cheaper cars, the Morris-Cowley four-seater is remarkable value for £195. It represents the zenith of economical motoring in comfort. In addition to all the usual accessories, it has an eight-day Smith clock, Lucas hand wind-screen wiper, shock absorbers, and even a spare petrol can. It is a splendid car for the family, and there was a crowd of interested women round this stand all day.

The motor caravan, which is now so popular, is in evidence. The idea of wandering at will miles along the lanes and over delightful moors has a fascination all its own for the fair sex, and the Eccles motor caravan is the last word in comfort. It is neat, compact, light, well finished and equipped, and can easily be towed by a 12 h.p. car.

Among the quite new accessories shown are the "Twozzle" anti-dazzle eye shields, which enable the driver to face the most brilliant light and yet see the left side of the road clearly. I tried on a pair and found them comfortable and very efficient. There are, too, a number of wind-screen wipers electrically driven. Of special interest to lady smokers is the "Cigalite," which delivers the cigarette ready lighted to the driver's spare hand.

There are the usual medley of mascots, beautiful and weird; new devices for interior lighting, unbreakable rubber tail lamps, and some new petrol fillers.

In addition to the reversible coats of 1923, there are some lovely little silk-lined hip-coats in Persian suede at a very moderate price. Beautiful long coats in antique leather of various hues and suede overshoes, lined with lambswool, with quick fastenings, are also on view to lure the fair buyer. Leather cushions in bright colours and in sombre tones, slashed with vivid flames and scarlets, add to the beauty and distinction of many a car.

The Motor Show this year has everything the heart of a woman could desire in the way of small and large, open and closed motor cars, in prices to suit all purses, ranging from 70 guineas to 2,000 guineas.

CLOUDS OF WORK.

THEY loom large on the horizon in October, those clouds of a fantastic imagination which hover round the world of examinations.

The ever-increasing number of girls who are choosing a University career brings fresh problems to many homes.

Perhaps it is a question of temperament, perhaps of heredity; but the fact remains that the average girl is inclined to over-work, even when she comes to years of discretion, and too often fails to see life in its true perspective.

During the feverish weeks that precede "Little Go" her mind is a tangle of mathematical formulæ, forces and pulleys, while at night her very dreams are disturbed by syllogisms of logic and spectres of Virgil.

Again, during those still more trying months that precede her "Finals," when each day's work reveals fresh ignorances, there is an ever-increasing danger of overtaxing her strength by unlimited hours of work.

True, it is no easy task with "exam. panic" ringing in our ears to close our books and for a stated period each day to strive to forget their existence; yet the effort is well worth while, when it is remembered that even a brilliant degree is useless in after life if it is gained at the cost of health.

It has been stated by a distinguished scholar that the human brain is incapable of assimilating more than six hours solid work each day, and that further effort is merely wasted energy and unnecessary labour.

It is, however, of interest, in passing, to notice that, according to psychologists, there is probably a seasonal variation in work capacity, the curve, according to Shuyten, reaching its highest point in December and January and its lowest in July.

Yet the wisdom of such words is scant comfort at the stage when every moment's work is golden and any interruption, however trivial, an irritation which it is difficult to conceal.

It is just here that the problem of work touches the home.

It is not always possible, especially if the house is not large and the space limited, to find a private sanctum, guaranteed "entrance proof" against children and grown-ups alike, while even in these enlightened days there is sometimes an erroneous idea that a few minutes' interruption is a good means of counteracting over-work. The visitor who drops in "just for a moment" and stays an hour, the message which can easily be postponed, are each an unnecessary overtaxing of an already overtaxed nervous energy.

It is, perhaps, not universally known that, according to modern psychologists, the best work is only done when a certain momentum has been gained; hence each interruption is a loss not of minutes, but of half-hours.

It is often forgotten that a girl working at home is handicapped at the outset by household claims and problems of dress from which her care-free brother is exempt. An atmosphere of sympathy, understanding, and help in such matters can make all the difference in a college career; yet there is a tendency on the part of some girls so privileged to under-estimate such selflessness without which there is no true sympathy.

One more thought suggests itself. It is the unforgiveable criticism of specially difficult examination papers. "It looks a simple enough paper if you have done the work; of course, I have not read the books."

How often unnecessary irritation is caused by such exasperating comments of the uninitiated.

It is at such moments, most of all, that we treasure a spirit of sympathetic understanding in our homes.

FOR THE COOK.

BAKED APPLES.

Take six apples, one cupful sugar, one cupful water, jelly, and cream (whipped).

Peel and core the apples, place them in a dish with the water and sugar, cook very slowly. When done, place a piece of jelly on the top of each apple. Serve with whipped cream.

GRAVY.

Nothing spoils a dinner like watery gravy. It is very easy to make it appetising. Gravy for roast beef or mutton should never be thickened, and after the meat is cooked it should be lifted on to a hot dish and put in the oven while the gravy is being attended to.

Remove the hot dripping with a spoon, or by pouring it into a jar, leaving the brown part in the tin. Place this over the fire or gas, add a cupful of hot stock or boiling water, bring it to the boil, season with salt, and serve in a gravy tureen.

Gravy for stews is always thickened, and either ordinary flour or cornflour is used for the thickening. Mix up a little flour (a good dessertspoonful or so) with water, and add it to the stew, stirring all the time, so that it will not become lumpy. Bring to the boil, and allow to simmer for a minute or two to cook the flour.

Cornflour is used in the same way, especially for game or poultry.

ABOUT YOUR INDIGESTION

Digestive disorders are due to the presence of harmful acid in the stomach, creating fermentation, gas, and pain. These distressing conditions may be stopped instantly and further attacks prevented by taking Bisurated Magnesia, an antacid preparation which neutralises the dangerous acid the moment it enters the stomach, and thus induces easy, normal digestion. Bisurated Magnesia is the sensible remedy for indigestion, gastritis, and dyspeptic troubles generally; it is used and recommended by doctors, hospitals and public alike. The cost of it is trifling, as a generous-sized package of either the powder or tablet form is to be obtained at any chemist's for 1s. 3d. and 1s. 1d., respectively. When buying, see the name "Bisurated" printed boldly on the wrapper, as this denotes the one and only sure and speedy remedy for your especial need.

CATHOLIC TRUTH SOCIETY.

IDEAL OF THE FAMILY.

RELIGION IN THE HOME.

Yesterday's proceedings at the Catholic Truth Conference in Dublin were opened with the celebration of Solemn Votive Mass of the Holy Ghost at the Pro-Cathedral, Marlborough street. The Most Rev. Dr. Byrne, Archbishop of Dublin, presided, and was assisted at the throne by Archdeacon Murray, P.P., Glasthule; Canon Monahan, P.P., High street, Dublin, and Canon Waters, P.P., Blackrock. The celebrant was Monsignor Dunne, P.P., V.G., Vice President of the Society; the deacon, the Rev. P. J. Dunlea, C.C.; the sub-deacon, the Rev. John J. Hooke, C.C.; and the master of ceremonies the Rev. M. Murphy, C.C.

The music of the Mass was sung by the Pro-Cathedral Choir, under the direction of Mr. Vincent O'Brien.

The Hierarchy was represented by the Most Rev. Dr. O'Donnell, coadjutor, Archbishop of Armagh; Dr. Harty, Archbishop of Cashel; Dr. Gilmartin, Archbishop of Tuam; Dr. McKenna, Bishop of Clogher; Dr. McHugh, Bishop of Derry; Dr. Finnegan, Bishop of Kilmore; Dr. Morrisroe, Bishop of Achonry; Dr. Naughton, Bishop of Killala; Dr. Mulhern, Bishop of Dromore; Dr. MacNeely, Bishop of Raphoe; Dr. O'Doherty, Bishop of Galway; Dr. Dignam, Bishop of Clonfert; Dr. Doorly, coadjutor, Bishop of Elphin.

Among the laity present were President Cosgrave, Mr. Kevin O'Higgins, Minister for Justice; General and Mrs. Mulcahy, etc.

RELIGION AT THE HEARTH.

The Most Rev. Dr. MacNeely, Bishop of Raphoe, preached on "Religion at the Hearth." He said that it was not to be wondered at that so many failed to grasp the Christian teaching about marriage, since they entered into that state without any thought of its responsibilities and duties. These aroused nothing more than a sense of pity, but for women who affected to despise motherhood and home duties as a sort of slavery that was beneath the attention of "intellectual" members of the sex, one felt a feeling akin to contempt. It would be a catastrophe if home-making were considered as something to which women might not seriously address themselves.

Around the hearth the most beautiful virtues might be learned—the lesson of unselfishness, so necessary at home; the lesson of helpfulness and service to others, so necessary for worthy citizenship. Christian mothers could stem the evils of our time, principally the shamelessness of what was called fashion in art, literature, dress and amusements. The business of home-making was their true life-work, requiring the finest qualities of head and heart.

THE LUNCHEON.

After the High Mass at the Pro-Cathedral the visitors and principal members of the Committee of Management of the Catholic Truth Society were entertained to lunch at the Shelbourne Hotel by the Clongowes Union.

Mr. P. M. Rath, the president of the Union, presided. He extended a hearty welcome to the visitors and members of the Catholic Truth Society. The Very Rev. Father Joy, S.J., Rector of Clongowes, stated that they were glad to have the opportunity of associating the colleges with the work of the Catholic Truth Society. It was very desirable that the colleges should be closely identified with all Catholic activities. The colleges, in their new freedom, had power to make education 100 per cent. Catholic, and 100 per cent. Irish, and it was their desire that this opportunity should be utilised to the fullest extent. The new system of education was as good as any system in Europe, and better than most, and it was possible to develop it still further. With this new system the colleges could do more, both for their Church and for their country. If they were to have a progressive country they would have to have progressive colleges, and to make their colleges progressive they required the full support of public opinion, and the generous encouragement of the Government.

The Most Rev. Dr. McKenna, Sir Joseph Glynn, and the Rev. J. M. Roulledge, Manchester, replied for the visitors.

ANNUAL MEETING.

The annual meeting of the General Council was held in Veritas House, Lower Abbey street, Dublin, yesterday, the Archbishop of Tuam (Most Rev. Dr. Harty), President, presiding.

The annual report and balance sheet were unanimously adopted on the motion of the Rev. T. P. Gallagher, S.T.L., Charlestown, Co. Mayo, seconded by Mr. P. Finnegan, Belfast. Father Gallagher paid high tribute to the manager and secretary (Mr. F. O'Reilly) and the Committee of Management for the magnificent financial position the Society finds itself in to-day.

His Grace, in putting the motion, joined in the tribute to the Committee, especially to Mr. O'Reilly.

The following elections to the Committee of Management were made:—

Vice-Presidents—Sir Joseph A. Glynn, Sir John R. O'Connell, Right Rev. M. Monsignor Hickey, D.D., P.P., V.G.

Hon. Sec.—The Rev. G. W. Turley, C.C.

Hon. Treasurer—The Most Rev. T. O'Doherty, D.D., Bishop of Galway.

Committee—H. Briscoe, the Rev. A. Corbett, O.D.C.; F. T. Sweeny, B.L.; the Very Rev. J. Hendley, D.D.; the Very Rev. J. Byrne, D.D., C.S.Sp.; the Rev. J. Fitzgibbon, C.C.; the Rev. E. MacSweeney, C.C.; Dr. Louis Cassidy, H. P. Allen.

On the question of organisation, it was resolved that the diocese should be the unit of organisation. The appointment of an organiser and the method of organisation were left to the Committee of Management.

At the Mansion House meeting in the evening, His Eminence Cardinal Logue presided. There was a large attendance.

In opening the meeting Cardinal Logue said that he had been connected with the Catholic Truth Society from its infancy. He had seen it grow up and gather strength, and he hoped that in the future it would be strong in protecting the interests of the Church and the interests of the country.

The Very Rev. Dr. Goffey, Maynooth, in the course of a paper on "The Christian Family and the Higher Ideal," said—"Only by striving with all our energies after the attainment of the Christian ideal of the family here in Ireland can we hope to keep ourselves a Christian people, and to save our country from the blight of modern paganism." When they remembered that Jesus Christ had been largely ruled out of the Senate and the market place and the school, and was being dethroned and driven out of the family, they had sufficient explanation of what was wrong with the modern world. The erroneous tendency to ignore or deny Christ's claim to the allegiance of men in their social relations, and to confine religion to the private life of the individual was a phase of Protestant ultra-individualism. In relation to the family, the purpose of the State was to secure peace and order among the families that were its constituent units. The ruin of the State and the downfall of civilisation was historically due to political disregard for and violation of the natural rights and duties of domestic society.

During the past 2,000 years, among people who received it, the Gospel of Christ had purified and elevated the State and the family. In the home it had reinstated and sanctified the natural unity and indissolubility of the marriage tie; while the dignity of woman, the nobility of parenthood, and the beauty of chastity had been enshrined as imperishable ideals for mankind. To the falling away from this ideal was largely due the sad condition of the nominally Christian world to-day.

The tendency of the modern State towards the secularist and anti-Christian goal of claiming absolute control over the individuals that composed it, constituted a menace that must be faced and fought if they were to have a Christian public life.

The State had a right to secure for children an early education that would make them good citizens, but it had no right to prevent them from getting such education as would make them good Christians.

In regard to the marriage tie, modern nations that had fallen away from Christianity were breaking down the last bulwark against the worst excesses of ancient paganism. Not even the Church could dissolve the completed marriage tie of baptised Christians; she could only tolerate separation when circumstances pointed to this as the lesser of two evils.

The Christian family had a more widely destructive enemy than divorce in the tolerated prevalence of an inequitable system of economic relations and conditions. Capitalism, by concentrating into the hands of a minority control of the sources and means of wealth production, had reduced the majority to the position of propertyless wage slavery. Labour was divorced from the sources of wealth-production; wealth-production and distribution were forcibly choked off, and humanity held up to ransom by irresponsible money power. This artificial paralysis of industry was a menace to the family, because it left many homeless, or herded in homes unfit for habitation. This forcing down of the masses below subsistence level afforded a pretext to Neo-Malthusians, birth controllers, and the eugenist advocates of race suicide, by fostering prostitution and feeding the white slave traffic.

The sexual passion was one of the strongest and most unruly in human nature, and the ideal of Christian marriage and the Christian family had to do with its right regulation, and its due subordination to the purpose which it was intended to serve. In proportion as this purpose was ignored through irreligion, or frustrated through passion, men would shirk the self-denial it involved, children would be neglected, and society would deteriorate.

Granted a realisation of the Divine purpose of the Christian family, the marriage state at once became something high and holy.

"UNWARRANTED ACTION."

Mr. J. P. Boland, K.S.G., proposed a vote of thanks to the lecturer, who, he said, had shown that the attainment of the ideal was not impracticabe. Any State action which infringed action of the family was bad. Attempts on the part of modern States to loosen the marriage tie and provide facilities for divorce cut at the very root of Catholic teaching. The cry for cheaper divorce was merely the cry of selfish individuals for more freedom. In all these matters the Church was the best guardian of their well-being. Another sphere in which the State often took unwarranted action was that of education. Their aim was—a Catholic teacher for a Catholic child, in a Catholic school. Pagan, Protestant or no-religion States opposed this at every turn. Wherever the Irish were they upheld that ideal. If in England and Scotland Catholics banded together to defend their schools, so he believed that Irish Catholics, together with others, could defeat the Ku Klux Klan in their effort to smash the Catholic ideal. In Ireland they had assets in their favour against Socialism. Land purchase had established a system of peasant proprietorship suited to national traditions, and they had an absence of industrialism which was detrimental to religion.

Dr. Louis Cassidy seconded the vote of thanks. Dealing with the voluntary limitation of families or birth control, he said that from the rationalists' point of view birth control was good, but the methods adopted had everything to condemn them. The Catholic Church had laid down definite rules in this matter. The sacrifice demanded of men and women who reared families developed character. The result was to breed a race that was a credit to the nation. The question was a critical one, and it was the duty of every man and woman to consider it. Were they going to be directed by the Catholic Church's teaching, or by the methods suggested? To adopt the latter would lead to disaster.

Cardinal Logue, in putting the vote, complimented the lecturer, and expressed the hope that along with other papers Dr. Coffey's would do much good by refreshing the aspirations of Irish catholics, and protecting them against what they were threatened with—the destruction of the Christian ideal of marriage, by divorce.

The motion was passed.

The lecturer having replied, the proceedings concluded with a vote of thanks to the Cardinal and to the Lord Mayor.

There were three applicants, and an Examination Board selected Mr. Robert Shortall, but the Board of Health elected Mr. Jasper Whitty, Enniscorthy. The Local Government Ministry has asked the Board of Health to adopt the recommendation of the Examination Board, but the Board has decided to ask the Department to sanction the apointment of Mr. Whitty.

COUNTY COUNCIL'S MISTAKE RECTIFIED.—The Commissioner in charge of the administration of the affairs of King's County has rescinded a resolution granting twelve scholarships for secondary schools, as it is ultra vires, the power of granting scholarships devolving on the Scholarships Committee. He approved of scholarships of £25 each to the first ten scholars, in accordance with a county scheme. The Scholarships Committee, he held, had no power to grant an eleventh schblarship, and he cancelled it.

KING'S COUNTY ECONOMIES.—A maximum of £65 a year has been fixed in King's County as the sum to be paid to any Assistant Road Surveyor as travelling expenses. The Local Government Board have pointed out that, in the case of the County Surveyor, the fact that he resides in Portarlington must not be the cause of expense to the ratepayers, and his travelling expenses should be calculated on the basis of residence in Tullamore.

MARYBOROUGH BARLEY PRICES.—Barley is quoted in Maryborough at the following prices:—Best malting, 27s. a barrel; lower grades, 25s. to 26s.; feeding, 19s. to 22s. 6d.; inferior, 16s. The quality of the grain is poor generally, and some of the low-grade feeding barley is in a very bad condition.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION CLAIM.—At Limerick Circuit Court William Buckley, Carey's road, applied for £300 compensation for the death of his son Thomas, which occurred in Dublin on August 12 while he was in the employ of Patrick Carey, Upper Cecil street, Limerick, as a motor lorry driver. While he was trying to cross the Swivel Bridge at Sheriff street it opened, and he fell into the water and was drowned. It was contended for the defence that Buckley's death was not caused by an accident arising out of or in the course of his employment. The judge reserved judgment until he had visited the place where the accident occurred.

HOUSE DAMAGED BY POSTERS.—An award of £7, to be levied off Croom rural district, was made at Limerick yesterday to William O'Mahony, Crecora, for damage to his house, coused by sticking election posters on it on the occasion of the by-election last May.

CHEAP LABOUR.—"He undertook to work for a cut of tobacco every week and his food and bed," said a farmer who was sued at Carrick-on-Suir for £5 wages. The Court gave a decree for 25s. The farmer also said that he hired a schoolboy during the summer holidays for 5d. a day.

CO. TIPPERARY "HOME."—Clonmel Corporation has passed a resolution protesting against a proposal to expend a large sum on adapting Cashel Workhouse for the purposes of an infirmary while Clonmel Workhouse is available, and requires very little expenditure. It refuses to strike a rate for the proposed expenditure under the circumstances.

ULSTER.

DONEGAL DOCTORS' SALARIES.—The Local Government Board has sanctioned increases in the salaries paid to the dispensary doctors. The maximum salary was fixed by the Board of Health at £300, and the minimum £200.

County Wexford Board of Health has appointed Dr. Anna C. Kehoe, Bridgetown, to be dispensary doctor at Killaune.

NORTHERN IRELAND.

CRUELTY TO A DONKEY.—Peter Kelly, of Drominlee, was fined 10s. and 12s. costs, at Newry yesterday, for working a donkey which was unfit. An inspector of the Society for the Prevention of Crueltyto Animals said that the donkey had two sores under the forelegs, into which the bellyband was cutting. The defendant offered him a bottle of stout and a shilling to settle the case. The defendant said that the donkey broke the harness by jumping across the road when a motor lorry passed, and he tied the harness with cord, which caused the sores by rubbing. The inspector stated that the animal was in good condition. The Defendant—He would lie on his back, he's that fat.

NEW WEIGHTS STAMP.—The administration of the provisions of the Weights and Measures Acts in Northern Ireland is now under the control of the Northern Government, and a new form of stamp has been adopted for marking all instruments used for weighing or measuring which have passed the Imperial standard test. In the new stamp, which is already in use, the form is a shield, with crown above. In the centre is the Hand of Ulster, with, on either side, the letter "B" and number "1." "B" stands for Belfast and "1" is the local number of the official stamp.

GOOD PRICE FOR FLAX.—Good prices were realised at Stranbane weekly flax market yesterday. Six lots of fibre were sold at from £6 to £8 10s. a cwt. The prices were considered good for the beginning of the season. There is a scarcity of flax in Tyrone, as less was sown than in previous years.

DEAF MUTE KILLED BY CAR.—W. J. Copeland, a collector for the Kinghan Mission for the Deaf and Dumb, was killed outside Portrush by a motor car last Tuesday. Copeland was both deaf and dumb. James W. M'Mullan, Bushmills, the driver of the car, has been detained by the police.

ADULTERATED FOOD IN DERRY.—The Londonderry City Analyst reports that all the mincemeat and sausage samples submitted to him during the quarter were adulterated.

Mr. J. C. Wasson has been appointed mathematical lecturer of the McCrea-Magee College, Londonderry.

Mr. John B. Langlands, Dungannon, has been appointed a magistrate for County Tyrone, and will adjudicate at Dungannon.

Mr. William John Armstrong, wine and spirit merchant, of Ashville, Connsbrook avenue, Belfast, left personal estate in England and Northern Ireland valued at £1,584.

Belfast Custody Court yesterday made an order for the destruction of seventy barrels of unsound pears and twelve barrels of unsound apples seized at the Spencer Basin sheds.

A VISION OF FASHION.

REMARKABLE PARADE.

With the remarkable mannequin parade in Messrs. Clery's Emporium yesterday, Dublin sprang into a prominent position in the realm of fashion. For many years in Paris, and more recently in London, the latest modes have been demonstrated in the most exclusive establishments by parades in which mannequins appear in fashion's newest creations, but in Dublin the enterprise is, more or less, novel, and it proved extraordinarily attractive.

In harmonious surroundings, and accompanied by the strains of music, charming girls arrayed in exquisite toilettes, glided across a dais and passed before the admiring assembly, which was so numerous as to out-number the crowds which constituted a record on the opening day of the great sale last year.

From the walking suit, the warm wrap, the cosy coat, to the afternoon toilette, the dinner gown, and the creations designed for wear at soirées, receptions and balls, no phase of fashion was omitted. On the conclusion of the dress parade Mlle. Laurette Doré gave a corset demonstration, which proved most interesting and instructive, especially to those present who desired to attain the slim lines favoured by present fashions.

Despite the crowds present, business was carried on most satisfactorily. The staff had been augmented, and it rose commendably to the occasion.

The parade will be repeated to-day, but admission can be obtained only by ticket, which will be issued at the Bureau inside the entrance door. No children will be admitted.

CARE OF FEEBLE-MINDED.

DUBLIN COMMISSIONERS' SUGGESTIONS.

At yesterday's meeting of the Dublin Union Commissioners, the report made by the Resident Medical Superintendent of Grangegorman Mental Hospital with regard to the Commissioners' suggestions on the subject of additional accommodation for patients was considered.

The following order was made:—"We are prepared to attend a conference if the Minister for Local Government and Public Health approves. We wish to point out that we never suggested the certification of 300 or any feeble-minded as lunatics. As the Grangegorman Mental Hospital buildings were in need of extra accommodation, in addition to their being unable to provide for the lunatic poor, now badly accommodated in the Dublin Workhouse, whom they should provide for under Section 9 of the Local Government Act, 1898, they should co-operate with us in approaching the Rathdown Guardians for the proper provision of the feeble-minded, and so avoid the classification as lunatics of the feeble-minded in both institutions. We are glad the Resident Medical Superintendent has approved all suggestions made by us in the matter."

WIRELESS OSCILLATION.

A Dublin correspondent writes to complain of the oscillation caused by the unskilful operation of wireless receiving sets. Our correspondent complains particularly of the many experimenters who ruin reception over a wide area by their clumsy efforts to tune-in to various stations. Owners of wireless sets in England have become much more conversant with the elementary principles of the science, and "howling," which is the effect of oscillation, is rarely heard.

The British Broadcasting Company invites "listeners-in" to apply for a free book, giving instruction in the management of a wireless set.

The letter remarks that it is as easy to receive America as London at certain hours and under certain conditions of the atmosphere.

ASSOCIATION.

THE INTERNATIONAL.

IRELAND BEATEN 3-1.

England won the first international match of the season in convincing style yesterday, beating Ireland at Goodison Park, Liverpool, by three goals to one. A crowd estimated at about 30,000 saw the game in splendid weather. Altogether, the match showed the Association game in a very attractive light, and England, except for Taylor in goal, should not require further alteration, if all the players remain fit, for the representative matches after Christmas.

England played sound football under conditions which favoured accuracy of footwork, and they thoroughly deserved success. The backs were well balanced. Quick in all he did, Wadsworth was, perhaps, sounder; but Creswell kicked with splendid power to the forwards, however far up the field, and extricated his side from more than one awkward situation by his superb dash. Healless stood out prominently among the halves, and his certainty in getting to the ball helped to make matters comparatively easy for his colleagues, who could give all their attention to the wing forwards. Kean found Gillespie a rare schemer with smart passes to Toner or long kicks to Lacey, but such efforts became less frequent as the game progressed.

All England's forwards played well. They showed pace, ball control in dribbling, and accuracy of passing. When the lively ball caused many shots to go high Bedford wasted some early chances, and the honours certainly went to the wings, particularly to the right pair, whose skilful combination produced the first two goals, which came just before a quarter of an hour had elapsed in each half. The second proved the value of dribbling to beat the defence before making the low pass to the centre-forward. Kelly claimed the first goal, and his low pass left Bedford a clear opening with the goalkeeper beaten, while the third came from a variation to the open game, Tunstall passing right across for Walker to head through.

Ireland played with their usual determination, and finished so strongly as to render the last ten minutes extremely interesting, when all seemed lost. The defenders could not always cope with England's varied methods of attack; but at different times Kennedy and Manderson did wonders in checking the wing forwards, and O'Brien looked the most useful of the halves, though a long shot by Irving that just failed was among the individual efforts of the match.

The Irish forwards were compelled to trust mainly to long passing because of the close attention paid them by their rivals, and their methods did not prove productive until too late to give the side a chance of victory. Gillespie, the veteran captain, who headed through from Toner's centre, once more stood out as the most able Irish forward. He brought the best out of Toner, and on the other wing Gallagher showed himself a master of the Scottish school of football. Result:—

MIXED FOURSOMES TOURNAMENT.

Miss Winn, the East Anglian player, and F. Mead, a local golfer, will meet Miss D. R. Fowler and E. Noel Layton (Walton Heath) in the final round of the Mixed Foursomes Tournament at Worplesdon to-day. Miss Winn and her partner caused two surprises to-day, as in the fourth round they beat Miss Cecil Leitch and Major Hezlet, the Irishman, by 3 and 2, while later in the day they beat by a similar margin Miss M. R. Cox and D. R. Cox, the former Oxford University golfer. In the fourth round Mrs. Cautley and her partner had beaten Miss Wethered and Lt.-Colonel Dalrymple-Hamilton, an Ayrshire Golfer, by 4 and 3; but the winners in this case were scarcely strong enough for Miss Fowler and Layton in the semi-final.

Fourth round—Miss M. R. Cox and D. R. Cox (R. St. David's) beat Miss Marshall (Sandy Lodge) and Colonel Green (West Surrey), 4 and 3; Miss Winn (Aldeburgh) and F. Mead (Worplesdon) beat Miss Cecil Leitch (Carlisle and Silloth) and Major C. O. Hezlet (Mid-Surrey), 3 and 2; Miss D. R. Fowler (Burnham) and E. DEATH FROM MALNUTRITION.

In accordance with the evidence of Dr. Power, medical officer, Inchicore, death from malnutrition was the verdict of a jury at an inquest in the Dublin Morgue, yesterday, on an infant named Mary Ennis, aged six weeks, who died on Tuesday. The foster-mother, Mrs. Mary Cleary, 5 Railway avenue, Inchicore, said that she took the baby from its mother at Milltown, Co. Dublin, on the 8th inst., receiving £4, with the promise of another £1 later on. She registered the child on the day that it died.

The jury severely censured her for not having registered the infant the day that she adopted it.

Good aged stores suitable for shipping sold from £19 to £22; ordinary stores, £15 to £18. Prices of fat cattle ran from £22 to £26, or about 43/- per cwt.; stores, 39/- per cwt. TUAM.—The Tuam October fairs opened with sheep on Tuesday. There was a very small supply, and the prices were an all round drop of from 10/- to 15/- a head on last year's prices. There was, however, an improvement on the Ballinasloe prices, contrary to the general expectation, and there was a full clearance. A feature of the fair was the large number of rams on sale, a great many of which were of an inferior quality. The principal class of sheep offered was wether hoggets, which sold at 57/6 to 67/6. Two-year-old wethers were £3 15/- £4 10/-, and lambs 40/- to 48/-. There was a small number of ewes sold at £4.

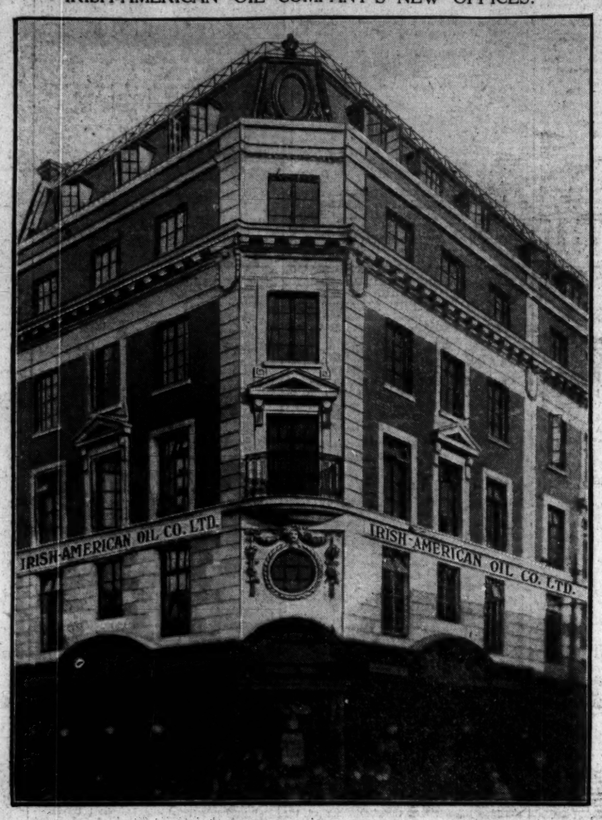
IRISH-AMERICAN OIL COMPANY'S NEW OFFICES.



Above is a photograph of the new premises, 1 and 2 Upper Sackville street and 29 North Earl street, commonly known as Tyler's Corner. These premises, which occupy a very important position, were erected by Messrs. J. Tyler and Sons in place of those destroyed during the 1916 rising. Messrs. Tyler continue to carry on their business at No. 29 North Earl street, while the main building has been taken over by the Irish-American Oil Company, Ltd. The superstructure was so designed that a clear floor space was provided on each floor which could afterwards be divided to suit the requirements of individual tenants. Ample lavatory accommodation is also provided on each floor.

This arrangement has had particularly happy results, as the requirements of the large staff of the Irish-American Oil Company, Ltd., were such as could not be efficiently met in a "ready-made" block of offices. The Irish-American Oil Co., Ltd., took over the whole of the building above the shop and divided the floors into offices to suit their own special needs.

The street fronts of Ruabon brick and Portland stone are a modern interpretation of Renaissance, simple in treatment, devoid of unnecessary ornament, and expressive of purpose.

Messrs. O'Callaghan and Webb, FF.R.I.A.I., architects, 31 South Frederick street, were responsible for the design and supervision of the building, which was erected by Messrs. McLaughlin and Harvey, Ltd.

The steel work was carried out by Messrs. J. and C. McGloughlin, Ltd.; plumbing and heating installation by Messrs. Baird, Ltd.; flat-roofing by Messrs. Graves. The stone carving was modelled and executed by Mr. Albert Power, R.H.A.

The interior of the main building has been fitted for use as offices for the Irish-American Oil Co., Ltd., by Messrs. James Beckett, Ltd., Ringsend, and Mr. Innis Gibson, Brunswick street, carried out the decoration.

ROAD SURFACES IN COUNTY DUBLIN.

NEW COUNTY SURVEYOR'S REPORT.

Mr. J. A. Ryan, the new County Surveyor for County Dublin, reported to the North Dublin Rural District Council on the condition of the roads in that area during the quarter ended 30th September, 1924, as follows:—

"I have the honour to submit my first report since taking up duty as County Surveyor of Dublin. The period has been too short to permit of my acquiring a thorough knowledge of the roads and public works of your district, but at the same time the improvement of the roads of your area has engaged my active attention.

"I regret to have to report that the roads in your district are not in good order, the reason for this being, in my opinion, that the method of construction has not been able to withstand the ever-increasing destructive action of modern traffic. Water-bound macadam roads are the most uneconomical form of construction for heavy traffic, as the life under heavy traffic conditions is only a little one year, whereas by the use of modern methods of construction, such as tar macadam, a life of from eight to ten years, may be reasonably expected. In this connection I may inform the Council that the County Council have recently entered into a contract for the reconstruction of the Dublin-Swords road in bituminous macadam at a cost of £16,500.

"The Council will be well advised to make ample provision in their next year's estimate for surface treating all second-class roads with tar or tar compound, so as to preserve the surface of the roads against the destructive action of fast traffic. In wet weather a waterproof surface is absolutely essential, and will mean the doubling of the life of the road. Tar surfacing costs roughly fourpence per square yard, and re-surfacing by steam-rolling with water-bound macadam costs about two shillings per square yard.

"The Council will admit, therefore, that if an expenditure of fourpence per square yard doubles the life of a surface costing two shillings per square yard, that the treatment of road surfaces with tar is a very good investment.

"With a view to improve the surfaces of second class roads in your district, I submit for your approval proposals to re-surface the following roads:—

"Dublin-Howth road—To re-surface in bituminous macadam 880 perches from county boundary at Furry Park to Howth Urban District boundary at Kilbarrack lane. Estimated cost, £7,000.

"Malahide road—To re-surface in water-bound macadam and surface dress with refined tar 940 perches, from Donnycarney to Balgriffin. Estimated cost, £4,000.

"Lower Lucan road—To re-surface in water-bound macadam and surface dress with prepared tar 640 perches from Knockmaroon to district boundary at Astagob. Estimated cost, £2,000.

"St. Margaret's road—To re-surface in water bound macadam, and surface dress with refined tar sections of the roadway between the Ashbourne road at Finglas and the district boundary at Kilreask. Estimated cost, £500.

"Baldoyle-Portmarnock road—To re-surface and dress with refined tar from Mayne Bridge to Howth Urban District Boundary. Estimated cost, £500.

"Part of the cost would be defrayed by Government grant, and £10,500 would be raised on loan.

"I believe that the adoption of this scheme will permit a reduction in coming annual estimate of about £2,000."

The Surveyor's report was adopted, and the following works were also approved:—

To take off a dangerous turning on the road from Dublin to Blanchardstown at Dunsinea crossing at a cost of £110.

To ease the dangerous corner opposite Mr. Moore's gate at Ashtown at a cost of £100.

To concrete patas in the village of Finglas at a cost of £400.

HOUSE-BUILDING IN DUBLIN.

The St. Barnabas's Public Utility Society, Dublin, have just finished four houses under the Housing (Building Facilities) Act, 1924, and the tenants are in occupation of them. The Government Grants of £100 per house have been paid, which is remarkably quick as no intermediate portion of the grants had been asked.

Plans have been approved by the Committee of Jervis street Hospital for the provision of suitable housing accommodation, which is at present inadequate, for the nursing and domestic staffs. The Committee, however, do not feel justified in undertaking a work of this magnitude with the limited means at their disposal, and are appealing to the public for funds to enable them to carry out this much needed improvement.

THE ALL-ELECTRIC HOUSE.

COST OF RUNNING.

In connection with its housing scheme at Riddrie the Glasgow Corporation decided to test out practically the All-Electric house idea. Two of the standard type houses being erected were equipped throughout for electrical service. The only difference between them was that in one house a single coal fire was retained for heating the main living room, and in conjunction with this a boiler was fitted to furnish a bulk hot-water supply; the other house was completely "All-Electric." These houses, which were put into service in February, 1922, consist of a living-room, drawingroom, three bedrooms, bath and kitchenette. The cost of erection was slightly more than £1,130, and the complete electrical installation amounted to a further £80 16s. 6d., making a total of approximately £1,211. The figure of £1,130 was really the builder's estimate, the actual cost being increased slightly owing to unforeseen fluctuations in the cost of labour and materials during construction. It is the better figure to employ, however, when arriving at the percentage cost of the electrical equipment compared with the total cost; this works out roughly at 6½ per cent.

As the result of 48 weeks' occupation under normal conditions of use, etc., the running expenses of the above two houses worked out as follows:—

In the All-Electric house the electrical energy consumption was 5,350 units for the total period, or 103 units per week. At the tariff in force, viz., a fixed charge of 2s. per week plus 1d. per unit used—the coal works out at £5 4s. 0d. fixed charge, £11 2s. 11d. energy charge, making a total of £16 6s. 11d. The average outlay then for lighting, heating, cooking, water heating, clothes washing, ironing, and use of all other electrical appliances was 6s. 4d. per week.

In the electric house with one coal fire the corresponding figures were:—£5 4s. fixed charge, 4,165 units at 1d., £8 13s. 7d. energy charge, or a total of £13 17s. 7d. To this must be added the sum of £4 11s. for the coal used during 26 weeks, from the end of October to the beginning of May, which brings the total cost up to £18 8s. 7d., the average all-in figure being 7s. 1d. per week.

The above figures supply concrete testimony to the fact that electrical service is not the fabulously expensive myth of popular fancy. The actual tariff charge is, of course, an important matter. In the case quoted it is the standard rate for public supply in the Glasgow area, and this is in some respects typical of the special competitive tariffs now being introduced to encourage a greater use of electricity for all domestic purposes.

A FORDSON TRACTOR, pulling an Oliver No. 8 Plough, successfully tackles the stiffest clay soil in the country, and can plough to the correct depth required for ordinary purposes.

Farmers know that to be able to plough or cultivate at the right time means all the difference between a good and a bad crop. Fordson owners can get through their work in approximately one-fourth of the time taken by farmers relying solely on horses, and, consequently, can complete any land operation under proper weather conditions.

The Fordson, therefore, means quicker and better work, less labour, less expense, less risk, surer results, and higher profits.

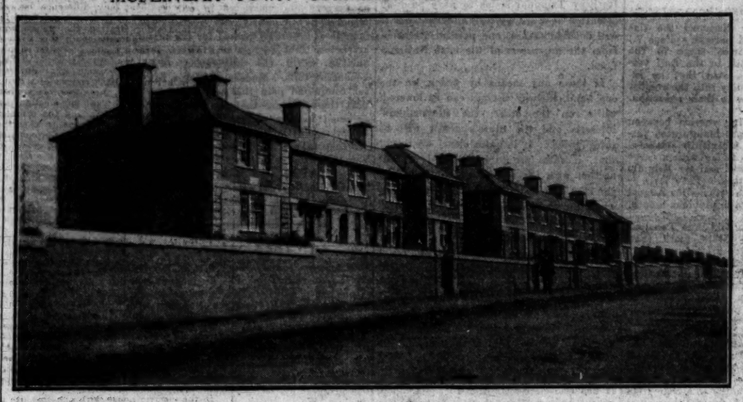
MULLINGAR TOWN COMMISSIONERS' HOUSING SCHEME.



This scheme consists of ten houses, built in two blocks—one block of six houses and the other a block of four houses. The houses are erected on an elevated site, known as Dibbs' Field Site, at Patrick street, Mullingar.

The house is the kitchen type, with "pends" between the houses leading from the front gardens to the back garden, and the area of the site is 2¼ Statute acres.

The accommodation consists of :—

Ground Floor—Living room, 120 square feet; scullery, 63 square feet; bathroom and w.c., 28 square feet, and hall-way.

Bedroom Floor—Principal bedroom, 162 square feet; second bedroom, 97 square feet; cubicle, 60 square feet.

The exterior walls are constructed of hollow concrete, 11 inches thick, consisting of a 4 inch thick cast concrete outer wall, and a 4 inch thick cast breeze concrete inner wall.

The front and ends of the houses are rendered and set in cement plaster from the plinth course to the string course; and are dry dashed with selected pebbles in cement plaster from the string course to the overhanging eaves course.

All angles are set off with raised quoins, channel grooved. The plinth, string course, quoins, eaves course, and concrete hoods over doors are finished smooth in cement plaster with steel trowel.

The back of the houses is rendered and dashed in cement mortar in the ordinary wall.

The houses have a complete drainage system laid to them.

The level of the site is higher than the adjoining roadway, and a retaining wall is built in front, with gate opes and steps to each house, with an ornamental iron railing erected on top of the wall.

The coping to wall and gate piers are finished in cement plaster, with steel trowel, and the front of the wall dry dashed with selected pebbles similar to the top front of the houses.

The cost of the ten houses was £5,850, and the cost of the front wall, railings, and gates, etc., £515.

The Work was carried out for the Mullingar Town Commissioners, whose Chairman is Mr. John McKeon, P.C.

The Architect for the scheme was Mr. P. J. O'Loughlin, B.E., B.Sc., The Courthouse, Athlone.

EXPERIMENTS IN HOUSE-BUILDING.

SOME OF THE RESULTS.

There are to be seen in Long avenue, Old Oak lane; Acton, 15 pairs of houses, all built by novel methods of construction, that have been tested by time and weather.

Many of the new methods that were welcomed four years ago as likely to revolutionise the building industry, have hopelessly failed under test.

At Acton the principal conditions laid down when the ground was originally taken over by the Ministry of Health were that the houses should be of reasonable design and construction, and that the price charged by the contractors responsible should not be higher than that for a normal brick house. Any loss was to be borne by the inventor of any new method experimented with.

Mr. S. B. Russell, at that time the chief architect for housing at the Ministry of Health, was largely responsible for the development of this experimental area, which later came under the supervision of Mr. H. O. Weller, formerly the Director of the Building Research Board, whose laboratories and offices are now close by.

The cottages as seen to-day look comfortable and solid, and are in no sense freakish, for the authorities took care that no fantastic design should be admitted. But closer inspection reveals some of the weaknesses. There is a system, for example, of reinforced concrete construction in which a heavy crane had to be used to haul up the stanchions at prohibitive cost, and the massive roof has since cracked so seriously that it has had to be recovered with slates. Another pair of small cottages were built so strongly that men were at work on them for over a year; each cost over £2,000, and they could now carry two more storeys with ease. The labour employed on another pair was so unskilled in preparing concrete that many serious mistakes were made. In another case water percolated through until it stood 4ft. deep in the basement. Again, in another, the concrete blocks failed so completely to keep out the rain on the exposed side of the house that the walls have had to be recovered. These defects are emphasised, not because of any disbelief in the future of concrete, but because they show that results must not be expected too quickly from new methods.

There were successes as well as comparative failures. A tenant of one timber house, made of fir from Canada, cement, gummed on the exterior, and plastered within, after three years had no fault to find with it. But in this case the cost was certainly not lower than that of bricks. Then, too, a pair of cottages made of hollow brick and brick earth were economical, and are passing all tests. A furnace room made of mâcle de terre in shuttering designed by Mr. S. B. Russell, shows no signs of weakness.

In the majority of cases the new methods on which great ingenuity was exercised and much capital was expended, have not achieved much. But the cottages at Acton have provided a host of lessons for the future, and the constructional and engineering experts and scientists who co-operate with the Building Research Board are still studying them carefully and noting points of weakness and strength.

WEMBLEY TO BE CLEARED OUT

Whether the British Empire Exhibition opens next year or not arrangements have been made for the removal of the exhibits. This will begin on November 2.

The first step will be the disconnection of all the gas and electricity used to illuminate the stands. Then, as many of the exhibits in the Palace of Engineering have been built in, the opening up of the concrete steps and floors will be necessary so as to give rail and road access to the heavy locomotives and railway carriages. Hundreds of lorries will be required to carry away the smaller exhibits.

Special offices to deal with the removals will be erected in the grounds, and it is estimated that it will take 10,000 men three months to clear away the exhibits.

If it is decided not to hold the exhibition next year the huge power station and overhead cranes will have to be dismantled. "Wembley will be practically cleaned out," said Col. Jr. G. Tempest Stone, the chief transport officer, "and if there is an exhibition next year a change of exhibits will be necessary, as many of them have already been sold."

COTTAGE BUILDING RISES FROM £143 TO £500.

Some interesting figures regarding the cost of cottage building were given at the inquiry held by Mr. P. J. Meghen, Local Government Inspector, into the application of the County Dublin Rural District Council for sanction to a loan of £26,000 for building fifty-two cottages on the townlands of Terenure under the Labourers' (Ireland) Acts.

Mr. George Gallagher Clark to the Council, said the houses, which would be of two storeys, would consist of four rooms, built of concrete blocks. The cost of building would be £400 per cottage; land, £54; fd. 11d.; rates, water mains, sewers, £22 11s. 4d.; fencing, £21 9s. 5d.; legal, engineering and incidental expenses, £14 12s. 4d.—total, £800 per cottage.

The Inspector—These figures appear to be rather large?

The Clerk said that when tenders were invited he thought that the cost would be much reduced. Continuing, he said that in the first scheme the cottages cost £143 1s. 6d. each; in the second scheme the price was £194 5s. 6d., in the third £219 10s., and in the fourth £212 13s. 10d. In the 1907 scheme the cottages cost £236 2s. each.

The Inspector—And the cost to-day is double that sum.

WAGES IN ELECTRICITY SUPPLY INDUSTRY.

TRIBUNAL DECIDES AGAINST INCREASE.

The special tribunal of the British National Joint Industrial Council for the electricity supply industry, which has been appointed to examine and report upon all facts material to the issues between the employers and the workers, arising out of the workers' present application for an all-round increase of wages of 10s. per week, has issued its report.

In their finding the tribunal have come to the opinion that "the increased level of wages above that of 1914 is in excess of the increased cost of living; that the level of wages in the electricity supply industry, as compared with the wages paid in the principal industries using electrical power, is higher than the average, but not so high as in some cases referred to at the hearing, and generally the conditions of employment are more secure; that industry is growing rapidly, and, generally speaking, has become increasingly prosperous in the past year."

The tribunal have come to the conclusion :

"That no case has been made out for the granting of the increase asked.

"That the district councils should be asked to reconsider their existing rates of pay, having regard to the prosperity of the industry in the area and to the special reductions which were effected in the area in 1922 or 1923.

"That in making the aforesaid recommendation, attention should be given by the councils to those districts in which there appear to be grades of employes whose rates, due to the circumstances existing at the time when they were fixed in 1921, materially differ from the rates of corresponding grades in other areas.

"That, pending the decision of the respective district councils and the confirmation hereof by the National Joint Industrial Council, the operation of the sliding scale should be suspended, and the suspension on August 20 of the operation of the notice issued by the National Council on July 19, 1924, should continue.

"That, in the event of any district council not being able to agree on any of the matters under their reconsideration, the said matters in disagreement, together with all necessary material relating thereto, should be submitted to the National Joint Industrial Council, and in the event of the National Council not being able to come to a decision thereon, should be submitted to this tribunal with a view to their making specific recommendations to the National Joint Industrial Council in respect thereof."

In pursuance of undertakings given when the Housing (Financial Provisions) Act of 1924 was before the House of Commons, the Minister of Health has taken steps to appoint committees of the building industry and of the manufacturers and suppliers of building materials to advise and assist him in carrying out the scheme embodied in the Act, particularly as regards the development and co-ordination of the supply of labour and materials for house-building.

The Building Industry Committee has been constituted as follows:—Representatives nominated by the employers in the building industry—Messrs. A. Andrews, J. H. Barker, J. Carse, J. Clark, J. P. Cox, C. E. Frances, A. J. Focadike, J. C. Gilchrist, [illegible] Hodges, H. T. Holloway, E. W. King, H. Matthews, A. Melville, Wm. H. Nicholls, H. R. Selley, J. Somerville, E. J. Strange, and A. G. £3,900,000 BUILDING.

Signor Mussolini has approved of a scheme drawn up by the well-known engineer, Mario Palanti, for the construction in Rome of a huge edifice "to the glory of Fascism," which it is proposed to name "The Eternal." The building, which will be over nine hundred feet high, will include an hotel, a theatre, a concert hall, a covered-in-gallery, etc. The building, for which a site has not yet been chosen, will cost four hundred million lire (nearly £3,000,000). Mario Palanti built the Galleria Rotolo at Buenos Ayres, and the Grand Hotel at Monte Video.

THE HOUSING SUBSIDY IN BELFAST.

In the Northern House of Commons Colonel Woods asked the Minister of Home Affairs whether the subsidy of £40 promised by the Belfast Corporation to builders of new houses in the city was now being granted by that body.

The Minister of Home Affairs replied that the Corporation had not, up to the present, passed a resolution in the general terms indicated in the Housing Act of 1923, agreeing to pay a subsidy of £40 to builders of houses coming within the scope of that Act.

During the Committee stage of the Intoxicating Liquor Bill in the Dail yesterday Mr. O'Higgins said that he intended to have an inquiry into the number of licences with a view to their reduction.—(Page 7.)

A new direct trading service between Dublin and Belgium was inaugurated yesterday, when the steamship General Leman arrived in the Liffey with a cargo from Antwerp. She will sail for Belgium on Friday with live stock.—(Page 7.)

The revision of the Old Age Pensions Bill save the Free State more than £428,000 a year.—(Page 7.)

Yesterday the Railway Tribunal in Dublin issued its decision on railway rates and fares in the Free State, and ordered reductions on January 1st next on all branches of railway service, including ordinary fares and freights on goods.—(Page 7.)

Mr. de Valera, speaking in Dublin last night, said that he was going to Newry as a representative of the North, but also as a representative of Ireland. If the Catholics of Ulster wanted to secede from this nation, he would oppose them just as strongly as he opposed Sir James Craig.—(Page 8.)

A revolver duel between two armed men and detectives, who were pursuing them, took place on the North Circular road yesterday evening. One of the men was wounded, but they escaped. Afterwards a wounded man was arrested in one of the city hospitals.—(Page 7.)

The Republican Party's activity in the Fermanagh-Tyrone constituency has been confined largely to canvassing and organising committees.—(Page 7.)

GREAT BRITAIN

A Funeral Service for the late Admiral Sir Percy Scott was held yesterday at St. Margaret's Church, Westminster. The King was represented, and there was a representative congregation.—(Page 6.)

In the Divorce Court, London, yesterday, Lady Georgina Leonora Sholto Douglas was granted a decree nisi against her husband, Lord Sholto George Douglas.—(Page 9.)

At Newbury Labadens won the Newbury Autumn Handicap.—(Page 10.)

FINANCIAL.

London Stock Markets were firm and busier. The German Loan closed at 5 prem. Rubbers again rose sharply.—(Page 11.)

Money was in keen demand in Lombard street, up to 4 per cent. being paid for overnight loans. Discount rates were hard. Foreign exchanges were more favourable to London.—(Page 11.)

Dublin Stock Exchange was steady. Textiles and Imperial Tobaccos were active. Bank of Ireland Stock rose to 269. Irish Railway Ordinary Stocks were weak.—(Page 11.)

A Railway Impasse.

In accordance with the terms of the new Railways Act, the Free State Railway Tribunal has reviewed the existing rates of the companies which are now in process of amalgamation. The Tribunal announced its decision yesterday. The Government, through its Ministry of Industry and Commerce, sought a reduction of 27 per cent. in the present goods rates and of 20 per cent. in passenger rates. This proposal was resisted strongly by the railway companies in the interests of their shareholders. At the hearing of evidence last week they stated that a reduction of even 5 per cent. in rates would extinguish the Great Southern and Western Railway's ordinary dividend, while a reduction of 12 per cent. would prevent any payments on the Preference Stock; and the other companies, of course, are in a like, or even more serious, position. The Tribunal, however, has decreed a general reduction of rates and passenger fares, which will come into operation on the first day of next year. The schedule which accompanied the decision classifies the reductions under various heads, in a rather complicated fashion; but it seems to involve an all-round reduction of not less than 12 per cent. in rates and fares. No doubt, the companies will hasten to publish a clear analysis of the effect of these reductions on their revenues; but it is certain that the immediate result must be a large loss of income. If the figures which the companies put in evidence are sound, the possibility of future payment of dividends will depend upon a substantial increase of traffic and a drastic reduction of working charges. At the present moment neither of these developments is in sight.

The country is on the horns of a formidable dilemma. On the one hand, the need of cheaper and better railway transport is extreme. Commerce is being strangled by oppressive rates and fares; they constitute a handicap upon our agricultural industry which must defeat all the Government's efforts to meet the fierce competition of Denmark and other nations. The new reductions would be a boon to the Free State if they were not vitiated by a thoroughly bad principle. They are helping one section of the community at the expense of another. The Railway Tribunal's report—a jejune document—is nowhere more disappointing than in its apparent indifference to the effect of these reductions on the numerous body of shareholders in the Free State railways. For generations the Stocks of the main Irish railways have been regarded as trustee securities. Hundreds of religious and charitable institutions and many thousands of citizens derive their incomes—often a sole and small income—from this source. If, as the companies insist, the reduced rates must eliminate dividends, a class which already is the chief victim of our high taxation will receive a staggering blow. Furthermore, the credit of the whole State must suffer; for the stability of many Irish securities will be impaired if railway Stocks are allowed to come to grief. To this vital aspect of the problem the Railway Tribunal seems to have paid no attention at all. We feel, however, that it will demand earnest and painful attention from the organisers of the next National Loan.

Is there any means by which, on the one hand, railway charges can be lowered, while, on the other, the shareholders' interests and the State's credit will be safeguarded? It is quite clear, we think, that, if rates are to be reduced in connection with the scheme which has amalgamated and isolated the Free State railways, the shareholders will be regarded as the easiest prey. The new scheme promises no substantial gains from superior organisation, and Labour will resist stubbornly any attempt to diminish railway wages. The truth is that recent legislation has shoved the Free State railways into a blind alley and that they must retrace their steps before the slightest progress can be expected. If the Government were wise and bold, it would admit that a blunder had been made. Already, indeed, it has revised its attitude to the London, Midland and Scottish Company, which, after all, as we understand, will be represented by a director on the amalgamated board. There can be no sound or prosperous settlement of the Irish railway problem which does not embrace the railways of the whole of Ireland, North and South, does not offer scope for healthy competition, and does not establish close working relations with the great English companies which have ninety per cent. of this country's outward and inward traffic at their mercy. The Oireachtas is not pledged in permanence to all its hasty and ill-advised legislation. We said many months ago, and are still convinced, that the railways could be used as a precious plank for the bridging of the gulf between the two Irish Governments. Even now a cordial conference on this problem between President Cosgrave and Sir James Craig might have results which would put the Boundary Commission out of action.

The Sixpenny Tax.

Yesterday in Dail Eireann the new tax on all parcels entering the Free State was attacked with much vigour. This was the first occasion when members had an opportunity to express their views on the imposition. Major Bryan Cooper proposed, and Professor Thrift seconded, a resolution "that the charge of sixpence collected on all parcels originating outside the Saorstat should not have been imposed without consultation with the Dail." No voting took place on this resolution yesterday, but the debate will be continued to-morrow. An amendment proposed by Mr. Johnson, also condemning the failure to consult the Dail, but containing the words, "while approving of the charge of sixpence collected on each postal parcel originating outside the Saorstat," was defeated by forty-seven votes to twelve. The Minister for Finance, who took up the cudgels on behalf of the Minister for Posts and Telegraphs, declared that "there was no doubt that it was in the power of the Post Office to impose the charge without consultation with the Dail." It is not unnatural, however, that members of that House resent, with Major Cooper, the action which has turned the Dail into "a second string to the Cork Chamber of Commerce," to which body Mr. J. J. Walsh explained the purpose of the tax over a fortnight ago. The Government's failure to consult the Dail before this important order was put into operation cannot be excused. Even those who, like Mr. Johnson, approve of the charge itself combine with its critics in condemning the method by which it has been enforced. Mr. Blythe used the same arguments which Mr. Walsh had put before the Cork Chamber of Commerce. He said that a heavy burden was placed upon the Post Office in the Free State by the number of parcels received from Great Britain, which is far larger than the number sent out of the country. Only half the net postal charge is received from the British Post Office, and as a consequence the delivery of parcels from Great Britain before the new arrangement was a subsidised service. It is easy to sympathise with Mr. Blythe in his desire "to turn the scale the other way," but the imposition of the sixpenny charge is an unfair and unsound expedient. This tax constitutes a vexatious burden on the whole community. As Major Cooper said, there is hardly a household in the Free State which has not a member in the United States, the Six Counties or in Great Britain. At Christmas time, without doubt, nearly every household will receive presents from these relations abroad, and it is not fair that gifts of small pecuniary value should be subjected to a tax of sixpence whether they are, or are not, dutiable articles. The argument that the tax will help Irish traders has been condemned generally in commercial circles in the Free State.

Thomas Linacre.

Four hundred years ago died Thomas Linacre, founder and first President of the Royal College of Physicians in England. Born at Canterbury about 1460, Linacre studied at Oxford and proceeded to Padua to learn Greek and medicine. He was subsequently King's physician to Henry VII. and Henry VIII. In Italy he had acquired an enthusiasm for the New Learning, and his chief contribution to the progress of that world-wide intellectual revolution which we call the Renaissance was to translate Galen into Latin, and so to make accessible to the new world the entire corpus of the medical knowledge of the ancients. After Linacre the art of healing ceased to be superstitious and unregulated; quackery gave place to science. Fantastic beliefs as to the nature of bodily ailments and the efficacy of barbarous remedies were, indeed, to linger for a space of centuries; but medical science was set on the path of progress, and the discoveries that followed were assured. In our own days surgeons and physicians, assisted by anesthetics, "X-rays" and many chemical expedients, have been enabled to perform what men of even a century ago would have counted miracles. We, who marvel at the comparative crudity of surgery and medicine in our grandfather's days, hardly can realise what farrago of absurdity passed for the healing art before Linacre rose to draw from the ancient world the inspiration of his beneficent toils. Modern medicine has so far conquered pain that some praisers of past times declare that the race is being softened unduly and that we should be better men if it fell to us, as to Nelson's seamen, to see amputated limbs branded with hot iron. Yet no former generation of men ever faced such physical and mental horrors as were poured forth, in our days, on the unflinching youth of all Europe.

The Gondola.

Esto perpetua was said first of Venice. When of late rumour had it that the Venetian gondolas were to be abolished, many feared that the city, "throned on her hundred isles," was about to lose one of the most picturesque features of her life. Motor boats, it was said, were ousting those swan-like craft and their graceful oarsmen; and when Signor Mussolini encourages his countrymen to disfigure eternal Rome with the world's biggest "skyscraper," it seemed likely enough that in Venice the practical would prevail against the picturesque. It is announced now by the Mayor of Venice that the gondolas, after all, will remain. Visitors to that lovely and storied city on the waters still may be rowed between her palaces and churches, with memories of Byron and Browning. For a while the gondola of Venice will survive, like the side-car of Dublin—a racy symbol, assuring the tourist of his whereabouts and giving the colour of an adventure to his journeyings. It is odd that men delight in inconveniences in their leisure hours. They find pleasure in the strenuous life when they are off duty. Men will trudge for miles round a golf course after a little white ball, and women will travel as far again in a night's dancing, though neither has patience to go a few furlongs by foot in the way of business. Folk who scold their servants for an ill-cooked dish will climb to the top of a pathless hill to drink tea made badly with water half-heated on a fire of heather. If we could maintain our holiday mood in our daily life—the mood that prefers the slow and romantic gondola to the rapid and malodorous motor launch—if, in short, we could take all life as an adventure, we might free ourselves of half the vexations of our lot.

THE LATE SIR PERCY SCOTT.

IMPRESSIVE FUNERAL SERVICE.

The King, the Navy, the Army, and a host of admirers among the general public were associated in paying honour to the memory of Admiral Sir Percy Scott, when the Funeral Service was held in St. Margaret's Church, Westminster, yesterday. The body of the Admiral was brought to the church in a motor hearse, the coffin being covered with the Union Jack, on which had been placed his cocked hat and sword. The coffin was surrounded by beautiful wreaths.

The family mourners who followed it up the aisle to hear the Funeral Service read by Canon Carnegie were:—Mr. Douglas Scott, the son, who inherits the Baronetcy; Miss Rosemary Scott (daughter), Mr. Malcolm Scott (brother), and Mrs. Coulson, another relative.

Representing the King was Admiral Sir Somerset Gough-Calthorpe, and the Board of Admiralty was represented by Rear-Admiral Frederic C. Dreyer, Assistant Chief of the Naval Staff, with whom was Captain Troup, R.N.

Others present at the Service were:—Admiral of the Fleet Sir Henry Jackson, Admiral Sir John Denison, Admiral Harry Reynolds, Admiral A. Hayes Sadler, Admiral Sir Reginald Tupper, Rear-Admiral Sir Edward and Lady Inglefield, Rear-Admiral and Mrs. J. De Courcy Hamilton, Rear-Admiral Crooke, Admiral and Mrs. A. E. Grant, General Sir William Nicholls and General Sir William Adair (Royal Marines); Lady Huntington and Miss Beresford, Lieutenant C. J. Fox, Commander Wyatt, Commander Hay, Commander R. Fayre, R.N.; Captain Stansfield, R.N., Paymaster; Commander Cullinan, who was Sir Percy Scott's secretary when afloat, and Mme. Grouitch, wife of the former Serbian Minister.

The musical portions of the Service included the Psalm, "I will lift up mine eyes unto the hills." Anthem, "Yea, though I walk through the valley," and "I heard a voice from Heaven," and the concluding hymn, "For all the Saints who from their labours rest."

After the Service the remains were taken to Golders Green for cremation.

To-day the ashes will be conveyed to the house where Sir Percy Scott lived, and then taken to Portsmouth by road. There they will be placed on board the destroyer Truant, and, accompanied by past and present Naval officers, will be taken twenty miles out to sea and consigned to the deep, near the Nab Lightship. Orders have been given that ships in Portsmouth Harbour shall dip their ensign as the Truant passes, the crews, meanwhile, standing to attention.

RECONCILIATION AND GOOD-WILL.

THE BISHOP OF OSSORY AND THE BOUNDARY.

In the course of his address to the annual meeting of the Ossory Diocesan Synod at Kilkenny yesterday, the Right Rev. Dr. Day said that, looking back over the past year, they had all been thankful to see the country settle down, after years of unsettlement and strife, into quietness and peace. Here and there isolated instances of lawlessness and outrage had occurred, but they had been the exception, not the rule. In talking to men of all classes and shades of opinion, he found a yearning for reconciliation and good-will.

But now, he went on, there is grave danger of strife breaking out again in our land—a strife which would shatter, perhaps for centuries, the ideal of a peaceful and united Ireland. After it had passed the Boundary Bill on Friday last, the Senate, by a large majority, recorded the opinion that the interests of the country as a whole would be best served by an agreed solution of the outstanding problems affecting the relations between the Irish Free State and Northern Ireland.

I know I am expressing the opinion of the vast majority of our people—clergy and laity alike—when I say that this is what we are longing and praying for. Surely, as Lord Glenavy said in his admirable address to the Senate, a coming together of the North and South in good-will and honesty of purpose would arrive at a much more permanent and happy solution than will ever come from the findings of a Commission superimposed on this country by the action of a British Government.

In conclusion, Dr. Day exhorted his hearers to respond to the appeal from their bishops to pray that a desire for peace might be awakened in all hearts.

TEACHING BY FILM TEST.

That the film is the most effective teacher of children is the inference to be drawn from a statement by Sir James Marchant, secretary of the Cinematograph Commission. The experiments were made in four classes, of which (1) consisted of lessons given by the teacher and the text book; (2) by the teacher and the magic lantern or static picture; (3) by the teacher and moving pictures, and (4) by the moving picture alone. The children in class one were accorded 46 marks, and those in class two 73, those in class three 119, and those in class four 116. The broad result was that for every 100 facts remembered by the child taught by hearing the lesson, by book and static picture, 216 were remembered by means of the moving picture.

IN THE DARK.

I heard yesterday a sad story which rather shatters my faith in Sussex.

One Sussex farmer approached another, and said tersely, "That horse I bought from you is blind! You never told me! Why?"

"Well," replied the other, "the man who sold it to me didn't tell me either, so I supposed he didn't want it generally known."—Beechcomber.

LORD LEVERHULME'S GIFTS.

Lord Leverhulme, who has bought a sixty years' lease of Grosvenor House, London, the property of the Duke of Westminister, has been associated with ambitious philanthropic and social welfare schemes, and has made generous gifts to the nation and public institutions. Among these are:

Founding of Port Sunlight.
Co-partnership for Lever Borthers' workers.
Present of Stafford House, now the London Museum, to the nation.
£91,000, the whole of the damages in libel actions against certain newspapers, to Liverpool University.
Liberty Buildings (old Bluecoat School) to Liverpool University.
Pathological and Bacteriological Museum to the Royal Institute of Public Health.

In addition, he gave, as is well known, large properties in the island of Lewis to the townspeople of Stornoway.

POST OFFICE CENSORS.

The museums and art galleries in Moscow are kept in fair condition, and have considerable educational value—or, at least, they would have if you did not need quite so many permits to gain admission to some of them. The trams and trains are regular and by no means bad. And the postal and telegraph service is quite good—and would be even better, perhaps, if the officials did not reserve to themselves the right to open all your correspondence and deliver only such portions as they think good for you.—G. C. Dixon in the Daily Telegraph.

MODERN ORGAN MUSIC.

RECITAL IN ST. PATRICK'S CATHEDRAL.

The organ recital given in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin, yesterday afternoon by Dr. George H. P. Hewson included three contributions to modern organ music—two of them English and one French—which were interpreted for the first time in Dublin.

* * * * *

Dr. Basil Harwood's "Christmastide" was selected as the introductory item of the recital. It opens with a movement which might be regarded as a prelude, and at its conclusion short oboe passages are interspersed. Later the pastoral element appears in a theme in six-eight time, and after this section the plainsong, "The Sarum Sequence for Christmas Day," and the Office Hymn for Candlemas are heard, the effect produced by the gradual working up in tone being most impressive. The "Adeste Fidelis" is also included. It leads to a great finale in which the pastoral theme is heard once more, this time in a more majestic strain, the harmonies being quite characteristic of Dr. Harwood.

* * * * *

The second work was the Sonata in G (Edward Elgar), which is written in the usual sonata form in four movements, and while there is a considerable amount of fine and dignified writing which displays the grandeur of the organ, some parts appear to be weak and do not come up to the expectations of those who have heard the composer's best work.

* * * * *

The French work was Marcel Dupré's "Toccata and Fugue in G minor." The Toccata is written in very unusual and original style, the left hand being engaged throughout in playing florid passages. A melody reminiscent of an old French carol is heard in the pedal part, and then in the right hand. The Fugue is more normal, and, while the treatment at times is very modern, the general effect is brilliant. The melody of the Toccata again is heard, the conclusion being wonderfully fine.

It is interesting to mention that the melody of the plainsong in "Christmastide" and the first subject (melody) in the third movement of Elgar's Sonata were played on the old Renatus Harris diapason, dating from the year 1696, which has been kept in all the organs built for the Cathedral since that period, the present instrument being the gift of Lord Iveagh.

* * * * *

Two other works—Karg-Elert's "Night" (modern German), in which many beautiful effects are produced by rich harmonies, and Mozart's "Fantasia" in F minor, a work which is so closely associated with the writing of the grand old master—completed the recital. At its close an offertory was taken for the Choir Superannuation Fund. The recital will be repeated this evening at eight o'clock.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

THE ROYAL DUBLIN SOCIETY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—I think that I voice a very general feeling when I characterise the notice sent to your issue of to-day on the ejection of the Royal Dublin Society from Leinster House as adding insult to injury. It appears to regard this as a blessing in disguise. All the members whom I have met—and they are many—regard it as a bitter misfortune and the death-blow, from a cultural point of view, to the Society. This includes members of the Council who deplore the move to Ballsbridge, but say they had no choice and were simply told to go.

Nothing can be more misleading than the plea that sixty per cent. of the members live in the district. I am one of these, but am much further from Ballsbridge than from Kildare street, to which all trams lead, while none goes conveniently to Ballsbridge, where I do not find myself once in the year, and I do not think I am exceptional in this. The advantage of Leinster House was that one combined one's library, club rooms, concerts, etc., with one's daily vocations, utilising in this way stray half-hours between other business and occupations. This cannot be done at Ballsbridge, as going and coming would take up all the time. To go into the noble rooms of Leinster House and wile away an hour was a rest and refreshment which the exciting prospects of tea and luncheon, the great new attractions, do not seem to counterbalance. There are a dozen good refreshment rooms within a step of Kildare street, but, no doubt, "the more enthusiastic of those who guide the Society's destiny" will not stop at these, but will add switchbacks and swings to its future amenities.

The cause of the whole cruel business seems to be the foolish vacillating want of a proper decision on the part of the Oireachtas and the public as to the permanent place for the Parliament. There are many simple and obvious solutions for this question, which would be far cheaper to us in the long run than these make-shifts, and would prevent people from pulling in different directions, wasting effort and money—a concert room in Ballsbridge built out of the taxpayers' money and a citizens' hall to be built in Dublin—while another of the few architectural treasures left to us is destroyed in trying to make it into a Parliament House. We must hope before this vandalism goes any further that, at a general meeting of the Royal Dublin Society, the members may be allowed to enter their protest.—Yours, etc.,

THE PRESERVATION OF GAME.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—For many years I successfully grouped three estates together and preserved a large lot of game on them; but as soon as these properties were sold to the tenants every head of game was shot off—not by the tenants at all, as they simply took no interest in it, but by their workmen and local poachers. It is not worth while to try to preserve game on any farm of less than 200 Irish acres, and hardly even on that much, as, even if the occupier of 200 acres wishes to preserve his place, everything on it will be killed by surrounding occupiers, who, no doubt, think that they may as well have whatever is going as anyone else.

The Land Commission are now taking over the holdings of 70,000 unpurchased tenants under the Irish Land Act of 1923, which very distinctly states that the sporting rights on these holdings shall be considered to be of no appreciable value. If nothing is done to alter this view of the matter, the Act completes the destruction of all game and sporting rights in the Irish Free State. These, I am informed on good authority, were lately of the value of five millions a year. I suggest that the sporting rights on these 70,000 holdings should be permanently controlled by the Land Commission, who should group them to the best advantage and let the shootings at a rent, giving the preference to the nearest local resident sportsman who already has any considerable holding of his own and will know how to preserve such sporting rights.—Yours, etc.,

"OLD SPORTSMAN."

LONDON LETTER.

ELECTION ACTIVITIES.

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON, WEDNESDAY NIGHT.

The Conservative headquarters are quite satisfied with the progress of the election campaign and hopes are gradually rising that the result of the polling may be a majority over all other parties. The canvassing returns are reported to be satisfactory, and it is quite possible that there may be a great turnover of votes when the polling day arrives. Conservative meetings are being attended by growing crowds of electors, although they know that peace is not assured. Street meetings are being held in ever-increasing numbers with satisfactory results. There is only one doubt at the party headquarters, and that is whether people will go to the poll. If a Conservative majority is to be won, every Conservative vote will have to be polled; otherwise the country will be faced again with a stalemate.

Canvassers Busy.

Personal canvass by the candidates in the London constituencies is being practised more at this election than for many years past. Conservative candidates especially are adopting this form of electioneering, and it has much to recommend it. Paid workers and voluntary canvassers are useful, but their visits lack the interest which a call from the candidate himself excites. One organiser with a long experience of London electoral affairs expressed the view to-day that the more time a candidate devotes to house-to-house visits the more prospect he has of success, even though it may mean fewer public meetings. This is particularly the case with Conservatives, where a personal call may make all the difference between the attitude of apathy, which loses so many votes, and the interest which prompts the support of one to whom the elector has had a few minutes' talk.

Candidate's Microphone.

Sir Laming Worthington-Evans, the Conservative candidate for Colchester, is suffering badly from the attempts made by Socialist sympathisers to break up his meetings, but he goes on unperturbed. He has taken the precaution to provide himself with a microphone, and this he hangs round his neck, while it is connected with loud speakers in different parts of the hall. When the rowdiness begins, Sir Laming simply goes on with his speech, and the audience, with the exception of those in the immediate neighbourhood of the noise centre, can hear him fairly well. The device has proved so effective that the interrupters get tired before the speaker. It is evident that the gang working against him is an organised one; for it comes to his meetings with gongs and tea trays and other noise-making instruments. The local Socialist leaders condemn the demonstrations, but it makes little difference.

A New Form of Inquisition.

Great resentment has been caused by the curious action of the Ministry of Labour with regard to unemployed men who are canvassing during the election. Mr. Shaw, the Minister of Labour, has had posted up in the Labour Exchanges a notice threatening with penalties any person in receipt of the dole who undertakes paid clerical work or canvassing. Mr. Austen Chamberlain took up the point and Mr. Shaw consented to amend the order—since canvassers cannot be paid—making it necessary for all such workers to report what they were doing at the Labour Exchanges. This is quite a new form of inquisition, and, inasmuch as canvassers are at liberty to work for their party if they do not neglect any opportunity of procuring work, it is rather suggestive of the methods favoured by Socialists. The Conservative headquarters have thought it necessary to advise canvassers that they are not under any obligation to reveal their unpaid political work to any Labour Exchange.

The Position of the Liberal.

Labour hopes to bring about the final destruction of Liberalism, since it recognises that, until it or the Conservatives gain a clear majority over all other parties, Liberalism will always be a dominating factor in the formation of a Government. Liberalism has now declared with no uncertain voice that it will never help Labour again. Consequently Liberalism must be smashed. A great party, however, is not so easily destroyed, and it may be that Liberalism will show a marked recovery in the coming election, though very few people now think so. In any case, it is reported that there is a distinct revival of Liberalism in Scotland, and that it is highly probable that many voters who went over to Labour at the last election may return to the Liberal fold on this occasion. It is feared that the result of this change may not be strong enough to be apparent when the polls are declared, but it is hoped that the change will be revealed as time goes on.

The Russian Loan.

The Prime Minister will probably be saying to-day, "Save me from my friends." M. Litvinoff, the Soviet Assistant Commissioner for Foreign Affairs, has just given utterance to a statement which puts the case for the Russian loan in a nutshell. "According to our agreement with the Labour Government, we pay England for the loan with the money received from English pockets, but our pockets are untouched. If England is so easily satisfied, so much the better for us." This is the kind of thing which the people of this country ought to know, and it is better that it should come from the Russian friends of the Government.

Faked German Figures.

It is possible that the German financiers have another little scheme in hand whereby the Allies may suffer further disappointment; for Dr. Kuczynski, who is an eminent statistician, has publicly declared, and without denial, that the returns of the receipts from taxation published by the German Government every ten days are not correct. In fact, he says that they are faked. If this contention is right, the question arises for what purpose the German Government is lending itself to such deceit. It is suggested that it is once again inflating, and tries to hide the fact by making receipts apparently balance the expenditure. Prices are beginning to rise—another indication that suggests inflation. Bread has gone up by fifty per cent. in six weeks. The loaf is sold at the same price, but its weight has been reduced by one-third, while rye bread is tenpence a quartern loaf. The danger of inflation is that it might have a serious effect on the operation of the Dawes plan.

Wembley's Last Days.

Wembley is within nine days of its close, and the attendance has fallen off, not exceeding seventy-five thousand per diem since the beginning of the month. It is expected that the next great gathering will be for the closing of the Exhibition for this year on Saturday week, when the Prince of Wales will be present, immediately after his return from Canada. Another little exhibition, the last of a series, will be opened on Friday, when in the Civic Hall Sir Robert Donald will inaugurate the Advertising Exhibition, when the originals of all the many posters, pamphlets and advertisements used to boom the Exhibition will be on view.

Lady Diana Cooper yesterday visited Oldham Infirmary, where the little girl is lying with a broken thigh as the result of being knocked down by her motor car, and presented the child with a doll.

TAX ON POSTAL PARCELS.

DAIL DISCUSSES ITS EFFECT ON TRADE.

FINANCE MINISTER'S DEFENCE

WHY THERE WAS NO DEBATE BEFORE ORDER WAS SIGNED.

"That the charge of sixpence collected on all postal parcels originating outside an Saorstat should not have been imposed without consultation with the Dail." This motion, which was proposed by Major Bryan Cooper, led to a lively discussion in the Dail last night.

Major Cooper complained that the Minister for Finance had not fulfilled his undertaking that before the charge was made there would be an opportunity to discuss it in the Dail. He pointed out that the charge affected every home, and that the business community had protested vigorously against it.

Mr. Blythe explained that the order imposing the charge was prepared when he was ill. If he had refused to sign it when he returned there would have been confusion, and the only thing that could have been gained would have been the postponement of the order for a few days.

He defended the charge on the ground that it was necessary in view of the statistical tax and on the grounds that it would reduce the expenses of the Post Office and tend to increase employment in the country.

Mr. Thomas Johnson proposed an amendment to the effect that, while the Dail approved the charge, it considered that the order should not have been made before the House had been consulted. This amendment was defeated, and the debate was adjourned until Friday.

HITS EVERYBODY.

BUSINESS COMMUNITY'S COMPLAINTS.

Major B. Cooper said that he proposed the motion on definitely constitutional grounds. The tax was of far-reaching importance to many sections of the community. Students and others had to pay sixpence on every book they received, and the tax had been much opposed by the business community, especially that section which had an export trade. There was hardly a household in the Irish Free State that had not a member in the United States, Six Counties, or Great Britain; and on every parcel received from those exiles a sixpenny tax had to be paid. The result would be that, with the Christmas season coming on, the Minister for Posts and Telegraphs would have more taxes to collect than he would know how to collect. The Minister had given to the Cork Chamber of Commerce his reasons for imposing the tax; but those reasons should have been first given to the Dail, which should not be made a second string to the Cork Chamber of Commerce.

The Minister of Finance, in giving his sanction to the tax, disregarded his undertaking that the Dail would have an opportunity to discuss the question. Having quoted from the official reports of the Dail, Major Cooper said that on the undertaking given by the Minister for Finance he withdrew an amendment standing in his name at the time.

The order imposing the tax came into force on September 1st, but it was not laid on the table of the House until October 22nd. He did not think that that was a fair way to treat the Dail. He did not bring the motion forward in any spirit of hostility to the Ministers, but merely to assert the rights of the Dail and to establish the principle that the pledges of Ministers should be honoured in the spirit as well as in the letter.

MINISTER'S REPLY.

Professor W. H. Thrift seconded the motion.

Mr. Blythe, Minister for Finance, said that he felt that in a sense an apology was due to Deputy Cooper, although he (Mr. Blythe) thought that he could not have done anything different from what he had done. Unfortunately, the form of the undertaking that he gave was not sufficiently explicit. He had intended that the order should be laid on the table of the Dail before it came into operation. Having given the undertaking, and before anything further was done, he fell ill, and was away. The people in the post office and elsewhere dealing with the matter had before them only what appeared in the Hansard report in regard to it. They did not appear to have regarded the undertaking as one requiring a discussion in the Dail before the charges came into operation. Consequently, knowing that he was in favour of the charge, they proceeded with the business of putting it into operation.

He arrived home only a couple of days before the charge was made. Notices had been given to the public that the charges would be made, and instructions had been sent out to impose the delivery charge. He could at that time have refused to sign the warrant, but the confusion it would have caused would have been very great, indeed. At very best the collection made for a day or two could have been stopped, and then it was a question of making refunds to those who had paid. In the circumstances, although he had fully intended that the Order should be laid on the table of the Dail before its operation, he decided that the best thing for him to do was to sign the warrant, and he signed it.

He would like to correct Deputy Cooper on one point. The passing or rejection of his amendment would have in no way affected the charge. That was one of the factors which he (Mr. Blythe) took into consideration when he decided to sign the warrant. The Dail had a better opportunity, in some ways, of considering the matter now than it would have had before the charge came into operation. People who were affected by various charges seemed never to wake up to the results of them until the charges came into operation.

STATISTICAL TAX.

In regard to the sixpenny statistical tax, which led to the delivery charge, there was no opposition at all until the tax was levied. Then people woke up. He suggested that Deputy Cooper had a much better atmosphere for putting forward an objection to the charge now than before anybody had to pay.

Major Bryan Cooper—I opposed it all along.

Mr. Blythe said that on the merits of the case he thought that there was nothing to be said against the delivery fee. They knew that the Post Office was run at a loss, and that the parcels post side of it was run at a loss. There were delivered in the Free State something like two million more parcels from Great Britain than were sent out of the country. They received from the British Post Office only half of the net postal charges. The delivery of parcels was more costly than the collection. The Free State did not, by that arrangement, get anything like the charges that were imposed upon them by the influx of the parcels. It simply meant that the delivery of those parcels from Great Britain was a subsidised service.

Up to the time the present arrangement was made the parcels charges were threepence higher than the British charges. Everybody in the Free State had to pay threepence more than a rival in Great Britain, and that was a very undesirable state of affairs. It was a good thing that they had been able to turn the scale the other way. There had been no reference to the advantages that accrued to the public under the order. Everybody who had to post a parcel was able to post it for threepence less than before the charge came into operation.

There were two sorts of streams of the same consignments into the country—one by parcel post and the other by boats and railways. When they put a sixpenny statistical tax on goods that were brought in by ordinary carriers it was almost a necessary corollary that the delivery charge should be made. Undoubtedly, to have imposed the statistical tax without putting some charge on delivery of postal parcels would have meant a great increase in postal traffic, and a corresponding loss in the working of the Post Office.

HOPING FOR THE BEST.

There were, he believed, likely to be good results from the sixpenny charge, as from the sixpenny statistical tax. He thought that employment in connection with distribution was given in England which might very well be given here with no loss to the community. That was their desire in dealing with the whole matter—to bring employment to the Free State that was at present being given by the people of this country in Great Britain.

He was satisfied in the main that the charge was necessary, and that the principle was really ruled by the Dail when it voted in favour of the sixpenny statistical tax. There was no doubt at all of the power of the Post Office to impose the charges without consultation with the Dail; but there was a question whether it was desirable to exercise that power. Where changes were contemplated he thought that it would be wise to come to the Dail. In minor matters, however, there was no necessity for that. There was a precedent for this tax, such as the tax on parcels from the United States.

Mr. Heffernan said that he was not satisfied that the reasons given by the Minister were satisfactory. There was a very considerable trade with England in many articles that were not manufactured in Ireland, and by imposing the tax the Minister had added a further item to the cost of living, and that without, in his (Mr. Heffernan's) opinion, increasing the trade of his country. It was really a protective tax—to protect persons in the Free State who were not enterprising enough to get the goods and distribute them in the open market.

AN INCREASE IN POSTAL CHARGES.

Mr. Figgis said that the charge was really an increase in the postal rate, and would not further employment, as the Minister thought it would. Therefore, such a tax was one that ought to have been brought before the Dail before it was put into effect, and not done out of hand by the fiat of the Minister.

Mr. Hewat said that it was unfortunate that the Minister, in his reply, had to apologise for the non-carrying out of an undertaking given by him. The Minister for Posts and Telegraphs seemed to have power to impose the charge; but, apart from that, they had a situation which would be entirely illogical if the parcels post were free to take parcels which under the Finance Act could not come in through other sources without the charge of sixpence. He considered that the charge was oppressive and irritating to the public and, he thought, non-effective.

Mr. Walsh, Minister for Posts and Telegraphs, said that there was no real argument advanced against the imposition of the tax.

Mr. Johnson suggested that the Minister should withhold his reply until other deputies had expressed their views.

Professor Thrift said that personally he would gladly accept the Minister's explanation as to the procedure adopted with reference to the imposition of the charge, but he would like some further information. He thought that the Dail had agreed to the sixpenny statistical as a tax on parcels and not on every item contained in the parcels. Now it turned out to be a tax upon every item in the invoice. He wanted to know if a similar rule applied to postal packets.

Mr. Johnson said that he approved of the sixpenny tax, but he thought that it should not have been imposed without consultation with the Dail. He suggested an amendment to this effect:—"That, while approving of the charge of sixpence collected on each postal parcel originating outside the Saorstat, the Dail considers that it should not have been imposed without consultation with the Dail."

INCONCEIVABLE.

Major Bryan Cooper said that Deputy Johnson was like the man who writes letters to the newspapers—he knew more about everyone's business than the people engaged therein. In contrast with the deputy's theoretical knowledge of what was good for trade in Dublin, he held in his hand a letter from one of the largest wholesalers in the city, who did not consider that the tax was beneficial to trade. He wrote that it was inconceivable that an individual requiring an article that he could not get in the Free State would be deterred from getting it from outside by the payment of sixpence. The tax had not been welcomed by those actually engaged in trade in Dublin.

Proceeding, Major Cooper questioned the limitation of two pounds weight on parcels of books, and said that the books most worth importing were the heaviest. He also asked would the label for return purposes often enclosed with parcels of books from London libraries be regarded by the Post Office authorities as a letter.

The Minister for Posts and Telegraphs intimated that it would not be classed as a letter.

Mr. Alfred Byrne asked whether some exemption could not be made in favour of parcels containing raw material for articles to be made up in the Saorstat, and which, when manufactured in Great Britain, are allowed in free of tax. He instanced materials for use in lacquering.

Mr. E. H. Alton, F. T.C.D., suggested that some concession should be made in favour of parcels of books. He had heard of complaints of the incidence of the tax on other vehicles of knowledge, such as specimens for use in the pursuit of pathological, physiological and zoological science. The tax was a serious matter for libraries, with which every little item of expenditure counts.

Mr. Good said that when the tax was first proposed the Minister for Finance said that his object was to reduce the number of Customs entries, which was a very considerable source of expenditure. He hoped that the tax would result in goods being sent in larger quantities in one parcel, thereby reducing the number of entries.

Now the Dail was given quite a different story as to the object of the tax. They were told that it was intended very largely to develop Irish industries through putting a tax on imported commodities. That was not the proper way to impose tariffs. It was a most irritating form of tax, which was not going to work along the lines of helping local industries as indicated by the Minister. On behalf of the commercial community he could say that the tax would be an absolute failure in the achievement of that object.

They were also told that the object of the tax was to bring the Post Office and the Customs into line, to prevent the former department from being flooded with parcels sent through it with the object of avoiding the Customs. Uniformity in that respect had not been achieved, for every item in a parcel sent through the Post Office was not the subject of a separate entry and a separate charge as they would be if the parcel came through the Customs department. One sixpence on a Post Office parcel would suffice for a dozen articles contained therein, and there resulted the very thing that the Postmaster-General wished to prevent—namely, the flooding of the parcels department of the Post Office.

He was sure that even the Minister for Finance would admit that the tax had been a failure. He would not condemn the action of the Government without putting forward something constructive. That was to reduce the number of items of classifications of articles in the Customs entries.

THE DIVISION.

The amendment was then put to a division and defeated on the following voting:—

For the amendment—Deputies Butler, Johnson, Corish, Clancy, Nagle, O'Connell (T. J.), Colohan, Davin, Lyons, Mulcahy, Morrissey, and T. P. Murphy—12.

Against—Deputies Alton, Baxter, Blythe, Walsh, Bulfin, Cooper, Mrs. O'Driscoll, Egan, Figgis, Fitzgerald, Good, Hennigan, Hogan (Conor), Cosgrave, Cosgrave (James), M'Gilligan, Milroy, M'Neill, Nicholls, Magennis, M'Goldrick, Myles, Nally, Nolan, Hughes, Hennessy, Byrne (Alfred), Byrne (C. M.), Broderick, O'Connell (R.), Connolly, Crowley, O'Doherty, Dolan, Doyle (P. G.), Duffy, Dineen, Heffernan, Lavin, Leddin, Lynch, Vaughan, Murphy (J.), Hogan (Galway), O'Sullivan, Shaw, Thrift—47.

In reply to Mr. Figgis, the Deputy Speaker stated that the debate on Deputy Cooper's motion would be continued on Friday, the next day for private members' business.

REVOLVER DUEL IN DUBLIN.

ARMED DESPERADOES FIGHT WITH POLICE.

WOUNDED MAN ARRESTED.

Residents in Lower Dorset street, Dublin, were startled yesterday evening by a revolver duel between a party of detectives and two young men for whom they had been searching for hours. One of the fugutives was wounded, but both men escaped. Later a wounded man was arrested at an hospital where he had sought treatment.

REGISTERED LETTERS SEIZED.

FLIGHT OF THE GUNMEN.

The shooting was the climax to the seizure, between three and four o'clock, of a Post Office motor cycle and side-car, in which registered letters and parcels were being taken along the Malahide road to the Fairview Post Office. Near Killester the driver was "held up" by two young men who carried Smith and Wesson revolvers. They ordered him to surrender the car, and immediately took control of it, driving off in the direction of Killester.

The outrage was reported to the police in Dublin, and in a short time a squad of armed detectives arrived at Killester. They conducted a search of the neighbourhood, and soon discovered the motor cycle, which had been abandoned by the robbers before they took a "short cut" through the fields in the direction of Drumcondra. Some of the detectives were then placed at points along the Drumcondra tram route, with instructions to watch all tramcars for two men answering to the descriptions which had been supplied to the police.

SHOOTING ON A TRAMCAR.

The vigilant watch maintained by the detectives was soon rewarded. Shortly before five o'clock two men answering the descriptions of the wanted persons were seen seated on a city-bound tramcar which had come to a stand-still in Lower Dorset street, opposite the entrance to the North Circular road. The men, it is thought, had mounted the car near the Drumcondra terminus. Two detectives ran to the car, and while one went inside his companion mounted the stairs leading to the "deck." When he appeared on the top of the car a shot was fired at him, and then the men rushed to escape by the front stairs past the driver.

The detective leaned over the top rail of the car and fired as they ran up the North Circular road. One of the fugitives was hit on the arm, and the revolver which he carried fell from his hand. The wounded man collapsed soon after, and the detective, believing that he could not get away, fired at his companion, but missed him. The wounded man, however, pulled himself together and staggered on, his movements being covered by his comrade, who continued to fire his revolver. In the exchange of shots the window of a chemist's shop was pierced by a bullet.

ATTEMPT TO SEIZE A MOTOR CAR

The two men continued their flight until they reached Innisfallen parade, where they saw a stationary motor van. They ejected the driver from his seat, and tried to start the engine. After several frenzied attempts they found it impossible to do so, and they turned into Derrynane parade, with the detectives still in pursuit. The wounded man, who appeared to be in acute pain, ran into an open doorway, and came out again without his overcoat, which he had discarded in the hall. The coat was afterwards found to be stained with blood.

Other houses were also entered, and by rushing in an irregular course from terrace to terrace the men managed to shake off the detectives and to get away. The pursuers continued their search for some time, but in the end they had to abandon it.

ARREST IN AN HOSPITAL.

As a result of inquiries the police afterwards arrested a young man who had been treated in one of the hospitals for a bullet wound in the arm, and he was taken to St. Bricin's Military Hospital. He gave his name to the police as Michael McNamara, the Mill lane. The bullet entered his arm below the elbow and came out just over the wrist.

The revolver which was dropped by the wounded man was found to contain one discharged cartridge and five "live" bullets.

It is understood that the letters and packages in the motor cycle were untouched.

CANADIAN CATTLE.

RATE-FIXING COMBINE.

OTTAWA, Wednesday.

Mr. W. T. R. Preston, the Government Commissioner who was sent to Great Britain to investigate the alleged combine for fixing Atlantic Ocean cargo rates on Canadian export cattle, stated on his return that there was ample evidence of rate-fixing. The Canadian Government will endeavour to secure lower rates on cattle. The exports of cattle to Great Britain totalled 62,928 for the year up to the middle of October, as compared with 46,195 for the corresponding period of last year.

THE STATISTICAL TAX.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELLERS' OPINION.

The Dublin Branch of the Commercial Travellers' Association of Great Britain and Ireland, at their last meeting, passed the following resolution, which has been forwarded to the Minister of Finance:—

"That we consider that the 6d. statistical tax, as applied both to parcels post and goods traffic, is detrimental to trade in the Free State for the following reasons:—

"(1) It is an irritating tax on all Free State traders, whether wholesale or retail.

"(2) As regards post parcels, the tax cannot benefit traders in the manner stated by the P.M.G., because the economic conditions of the country prevent even the most willing traders from carrying larger stocks than they at present carry.

"(3) As regards the general goods traffic, the charge of 6d. for each class of article contained in a case is a direct tax on the Free State consumer, because the classification of goods under the present official import list is too wide. Goods imported from foreign markets and designed to sell to the public at, say one penny each, now cost three halfpence.

"(4) That the cost of and incidental to the examination of all goods arriving at Free State ports is out of proportion to the amount of revenue likely to accrue from this charge of 6d., as more than 50 per cent. of all traffic to the ports consist of mixed cases, involving heavy expenses and loss of time in the process of Customs inspection—all of which must be paid by the public."

LOWER RAILWAY CHARGES.

ALL MERCHANDISE RATES DOWN.

DROP IN PASSENGER FARES.

TRIBUNAL'S DECISION.

Railway rates in the Free State are to be reduced from the beginning of next year as the result of the findings of the Railway Tribunal, which were announced yesterday.

Passenger fares will be one-eighth cheaper as the result of the reduction of the ordinary fares from 100 per cent. to 75 per cent. above the 1914 figure—thus the present 20s. fare will be 17s. 6d. after January 1st, and the 2s. will be 1s. 9d.

All goods rates have been revised, and coal, cattle and general merchandise will be reduced on January 1st by 20 to 30 points, and the flat rate per ton is also to be lowered—in some cases by 50 per cent.

THE JUDGMENT.

The decision of the Tribunal was announced in Court No. 3 in Dublin Castle.

The Chairman (Judge O'Brien, K.C.) said that they had given this matter the most careful consideration during the very limited time available, having regard to the fact that they were constrained by the statute to give a decision within three months from the 23rd July, 1924, the date of the passing of the Railway Act. That three months expired on October 23rd. The Tribunal were indebted to the railway companies and the Ministry for Industry and Commerce for the assistance received. They had come to the determination that there must be a modification of the charges, and that those modifications must be reductions of those charges. They hoped that the reductions at which they had arrived would not only benefit the travelling and trading public, but would also bring increased traffic to the railway companies, with a resultant benefit to them.

The crucial part of the order of the Court dealt first with passenger charges and fares. They ordered that on and from January 1st, 1925, the maximum charges for season tickets would be:—

(a) Ordinary season tickets—The charges which were in operation on August 4, 1914, with an addition of 60 per cent. The former figure was 75 per cent.

(b) Traders' season tickets—The charge as for an ordinary season ticket, less 20 per cent.

The maximum fares, other than workmen's fares, to be charged for the conveyance of passengers shall be the fares in operation on August 4, 1914, with an addition of 75 per cent. The former figure was 100 per cent., and the effect of the order was that a 2s. fare would become 1s. 9d. and a 20s. fare 17s. 6d.

The maximum tolls, rates, and charges to be charged in respect of the undertaking of each of the amalgamating and absorbed companies shall be the tolls, rates, and charges specified in the schedule, subject to certain modifications, or statutory maxima in operation in January, 1920. They confirmed the special increases of 4 per cent. and 10 per cent., which had not been shared by the Great Southern and Western Railway Company at as early a date as other companies Notwithstanding anything in the order, where, since August 15, 1921, any toll, rate, or charge of an amalgamating or absorbed company had been reduced lower than the charges specified in the schedule, such lower charge shall remain in force as a maximum charge in respect of the particular traffic to which it applied, and nothing in the order shall affect the rates or charges of the amalgamating and absorbed companies for parcels and mails conveyed for the Minister for Posts and Telegraphs.

The order also appointed January 1st, 1925, as the day on which the modifications shall come into operation.

THE SCHEDULE.

The schedule was as follows:—

Tolls, rates and charges to be charged as and from the 1st day of January, 1925, being those in operation on January 14, 1920, with the following additions:—

(1) Coal, coke and patent fuel—100 per cent., plus a flat rate of threepence per ton, irrespective of distance, subject to a maximum addition of 6s. per ton. The former rates were 120 per cent., plus a flat rate of sixpence per ton; maximum rate 7s. per ton.

(2) Merchandise (other than coal, coke and patent fuel), in Classes A and B, of the general railway classification—100 per cent., plus a flat rate of fourpence per ton, irrespective of distance. The former figure was 120 per cent., plus a flat rate of eightpence.

(3) Merchandise in Classes C and 1-5 of the general railway classification—100 per cent., plus a flat rate of sixpence per ton, irrespective of distance, the former figure being 120 per cent. and 1s. per ton flat rate.

(4) Live stock conveyed by merchandise train at truck rates—100 per cent., plus a flat rate of 1s. per truck or part truck, irrespective of distance. The former figures were 120 per cent. and 1s. 6d. per truck flat rate.

(5) Live stock conveyed by merchandise train at head rates—100 per cent. The former figure was 120 per cent.

(6) Small parcels (as defined in Part VI. of the Railway Rates and Charges Orders) conveyed by merchandise train—120 per cent., the former figure being 150 per cent.

(7) Returned empties conveyed by merchandise train or by passenger train or other similar service—100 per cent. The former figure was 120 per cent.

(8) Merchandise conveyed by passenger train or other similar service (including perishable merchandise specified in Part V. of the Railway Rates and Charges Orders Live Stock and Vehicles)—75 per cent. The former figure was 100 per cent.

(9) Parcels conveyed by passenger train or other similar service—60 per cent., as compared with 75 per cent. formerly.

(10) Excess luggage conveyed by passenger train—16 per cent. The former figure was 15 per cent.

Any tolls, rates and charges in operation on the 14th January, 1920, and not hereinbefore provided for, to be increased by 100 per cent. The former rate was 120 per cent.

SPECIAL MODIFICATION.

Manure in bulk, packed manure, basic slag and lime conveyed by merchandise train in minimum loads of two tons for use as agricultural manures—The rates in operation on the 14th of January, 1920, with an addition of 50 per cent., plus the flat rates applicable and hereinbefore specified, irrespective of distance. The former figure was 60 per cent.

Cloak Rooms—The charges in operation on 14th January, 1920, with an addition of 50 per cent.

Mr. Brown said that the last date for the approval of agreed schemes was December 31st. A number of these schemes had already been agreed upon. He would like to know if the Court could give an idea when the consideration of these schemes would come on, as the time was getting short.

The Chairman said that the matter should be dealt with at a public sitting, and the date would be duly announced in the newspapers. What would Mr. Brown consider a reasonable time?

Mr. Brown—Perhaps you would give us a fortnight's notice?

The Chairman—Yes.

THE TRIBUNAL AND COUNSEL.

The members of the Tribunal were:—Judge O'Brien, K.C., Chairman; and Messrs. John R. Kerr, C.E., general manager of the Cork and Bandon Railway, and H. J. Mangan, formerly accountant to the Dublin Corporation.

Mr. Swayne, K.C., and Mr. Bewley (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor) appeared for the Ministry of Industry and Commerce.

Mr. S. L. Brown, K.C.; Mr. E. J. Phelps, K.C.; and Mr. E. J. Kelly appeared for the amalgamating companies (instructed by Mr. E. White, for the Great Southern and Western Railway Company and the Cork and Bandon Railway Company; by Mr. E. de Vere White, for the Midland Great Western Railway Company; by Messrs. T. F. O'Connell and Son, for the Dublin and South-Eastern Railway Company).

Mr. Wilson (instructed by Mr. Hayes) represented the Grand Canal Company.

Mr. George Gavan Duffy (instructed by Mr. John McDonnell) held a watching brief on behalf of the Railway Clerks' Association.

EVACUATION OF RUHR TOWNS.

FRENCH AND BELGIANS MARCH OUT.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

COLOGNE, Wednesday.

The French evacuation of Dortmund and Hoerde was completed this morning without incident. At an early hour artillery detachments marched out of the town, the infantry following later in four troop trains, one regiment being headed by a military band.

Immediately the French Staff cars had disappeared a German appeared at the window of the building which had just been evacuated, and hoisted a German flag. The incident passed almost unnoticed.

During the afternoon men were busy painting over all French military signs. After the evacuation was completed the Burgomaster of Dortmund announced that 25,000 gold marks (£1,250) from the town funds had been set aside for the relief of poverty as a thanksgiving for the restoration of the city's freedom.

Simultaneously with the evacuation of Dortmund the French withdrew their troops this morning from the towns of Remscheid, Vohwinkel, Wipperfurth, and Ruerderoth, which are situated between the British zone and unoccupied territory. Belgian troops evacuated the town of Wesel during the night and Emmerich early this morning.

The announcement is made that the Franco-Belgian Regie will transfer the whole system on Sunday, November 16, to the German railway organisation set up under the Dawes scheme. By this date the whole of the preliminary measures under the London Pact will be carried out.

FRANCE AND THE VATICAN.

PREMIER'S STATEMENT.

PARIS, Wednesday.

Speaking before the Finance Committee of the Chamber, M. Herriot to-day made a statement on the credits for the Embassy to the Vatican. M. Herriot said that, in not asking for credits for the Vatican Embassy, he was adhering to the Ministerial declaration. He further stated that in his opinion the maintenance of an Embassy at the Vatican was not justified from any point of view, no matter from what standpoint the matter was viewed.

The Premier then referred to the question of the eventual resumption of relations with the Soviet Government, and explained (1) the conditions in which he considered the de jure recognition might be made, the undertakings entered into, and the treaties signed by France being reserved; (2) the conditions in which the resumption of relations resulting from the recognition and examination of the Conventions might be made. This resumption of relations, M. Herriot stated, would be subordinate to questions connected with France's credit.

After the Premier had finished speaking, the Committee tabled an amendment proposing the increase of the credits for the Embassy at the Vatican.

The amendment was rejected by twenty votes against twelve.

M. Bokanowski, after explaining that in his view France should not depart in any way from her present policy, proposed a credit of 100,000 francs for diplomatic representation in Russia.

M. Blum subsequently proposed a motion for the adjournment of the amendment until the Premier should make a formal request for the credit for representation in Russia from the Finance Committee.

M. Blum's amendment was adopted by twenty votes against three. There were six abstentions.

The estimates for the Ministry of Foreign Affairs were afterwards adopted.

THE PRINCE OF WALES.

RECOVERY FROM CHILL.

OTTAWA, Wednesday.

The Prince of Wales has virtually recovered from the chill which yesterday caused the postponement of his departure from Montreal. The Prince will leave to-night for Massachusetts.—(Reuter.)

HAMILTON, MASS., Wednesday.

The Prince of Wales will ride the chestnut mare, Desert Queen, from the stable of his host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Tuckerman, jun., when he goes out with the Myopia Aunt Club pack on a drag hunt here to-morrow afternoon. This will be the renewal of an old acquaintance, as the Prince saw the animal on the hunting fields in England when Mr. and Mrs. Tuckerman went across for a season with the Belvoir and Cottesmore packs a year ago. The Prince met the Tuckermans at that time, and the acquaintance led to the invitation which is bringing the Prince here for his last visit to this country before his return home.

His visit, which has been postponed until to-morrow because of the slight chill caught at Montreal, will be a short one. He arrives to-morrow in the morning, and will leave at midnight for New York, whence he will sail in the Olympic for England.—(Reuter.)

ELECTIONS IN THE NORTH.

FERMANAGH - TYRONE CONTEST.

SIR C. FALLS'S OPINION.

REPUBLICAN PARTY'S ACTIVITY.

From Our Special Correspondent.

OMAGH, Wednesday.

Electioneering in the Fermanagh-Tyrone constituency is proceeding quietly enough. No incidents of any consequence are reported from either county.

The Republican campaign is a very unobtrusive affair, lacking entirely that enthusiasm and earnestness which usually characterise the party's efforts in election contests in the South.

The Republicans have held but one meeting up to the present, and for the most part their activities seem to be confined to canvassing and the organisation of election committees. Although she was expected to-day, Miss MacSwiney has not yet made her appearance in the constituency. She is billed to address a Republican meeting in the town of Omagh at 8 o'clock p.m. to-morrow. It is not unlikely, I am told, that she will be accompanied by Mr. Austin Stack, T.D.

Mr. David Kent, another Republican T.D., arrived here this evening, and he has addressed some meetings in Tyrone. He will go on to Fermanagh. To-night he left Omagh to hold meetings at Knockmoyle, Galbally, and other places; but for some unexplained reason this programme was cancelled at the last moment; so that not a single meeting in support of the candidatures of the Republican nominees was held in the constituency to-day.

For some days past Nationalist registration agents have been despatching posters to every district in the two counties, pointing out that every vote given in the coming election is a vote for partition, and calling upon all Nationalists to keep away from the polls on the 29th instant.

A big programme of meetings has been arranged by the Republican Party for Sunday next.

"THE REAL ISSUE."

Addressing a meeting in support of his own candidature and that of Sir Charles Falls at Fintona to-day, Mr. Pringle, K.C., said that the real issue before the electors was the welfare and happiness of every man and woman in Tyrone and Fermanagh, without distinction of creed or politics. It was not a fight between Catholics and Protestants. He asked his audience what was to be gained by their transference to the Free State?

If they wished to pay considerably more for the necessities of life, they could vote for inclusion in the Free State. They knew, however, the settled conditions of the North, and they knew that in the North their lives and property were secure. Apart from higher taxation, inclusion in the Free State meant a reduction in their old age pensions of one shilling a week.

He regretted to say that there was a great number of unemployed in the North, but he wished to remind them that the number in the South was greater.

We have no quarrel with the Free State, declared Mr. Pringle, except for such friction as has arisen over the boundary question, and when that is settled we will join hands with the Free State in working for the prosperity of the whole of Ireland.

He thoroughly agreed with Mr. Cahir Healy that the people of the North had been used as a catspaw by the politicians of the South. If the people in the North once realised that they could settle their own differences, in the Northern Parliament, then prosperity, good-will and happiness would come to them.

No logical arguments had been put forward by their opponents in the present election as to why the North should become part of an Irish Republic. All the logic in the case pointed in the other direction, and warned them not to go into an area which might develop into an Irish Republic.

Mr. William Coote, M.P., declared, amidst laughter, that if the Republicans were returned it would not be to Parliament, but to the graveyard. The people of Tyrone and Fermanagh wanted men who would look after their interests at Westminster, and they had such men in Sir Charles Falls and Mr. Pringle.

BY-ELECTIONS.

Writs for the five vacancies in the Dail will be moved for next Tuesday.

JAPAN AND CHINA.

INDICATIONS OF STRAINED RELATIONS.

SHANGHAI, Wednesday.

There are indications that relations between the Chinese Central Government officials and the Japanese authorities in the Northern war area are somewhat strained, but the cause of this situation is obscure.

Upon hearing a report that Japan was sending reinforcements to Chingwangtao, General Wu Pei-Fu is said to have asked the Japanese Commander there to request the Tokyo Government, by telegraph, to postpone action. The Commander is alleged to have replied that General Wu should warn his officers not to show ill-feeling against the Japanese.

Reports from Mukden state that significance is attached to the general review of the Japanese Manchurian garrison, which was held yesterday at Liaoyang, fifty miles south of Mukden. Eye-witnesses report the arrival at Tashikia, ninety miles south of Mukden, of two Japanese regiments from Port Arthur, with artillery.—(Press Association Foreign Special.)

EXPULSION OF GREEKS.

APPEAL TO THE LEAGUE.

Reuter's Agency learns from a Greek official source that the Greek Government has appealed to the Council of the League of Nations against the removal of the Greek population in Constantinople by the Turkish authorities. The Athens Government bases its appeal on Article 11 of the Covenant of the League of Nations, which declares it to be the friendly right of each member of the League to draw attention to any circumstance affecting international relations. Article 14, which provides for the hearing of disputes by the Permanent Court of International Justice, is also quoted. It is understood that Greece has requested that its appeal should be discussed at the meeting of the Council which has been convened in Brussels for next Monday, primarily to deal with the Mosul question between Great Britain and Turkey.

BOXER'S BROKEN SKULL.

REFEREE BLAMED FOR NOT STOPPING CONTEST.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

PARIS, Wednesday.

During a twelve rounds boxing match last night, between Francis Charles and Young Travet, a promising boxer from Marseilles, the latter was knocked out in the eleventh round with such force that he had to be taken to hospital. So far he has not regained consciousness, and the doctors have diagnosed a fracture and hemorrhage at the base of the skull.

Travet had gained the advantage on points up to the ninth round, but in the tenth Charles sent him to the boards with a hard blow to the jaw. Travet, however, although dazed and unsteady, continued to fight until he received in the eleventh round a blow which knocked him out of the ropes.

Sporting writers here to-day attack in the strongest terms the referee, Henry Bernstein, whom they declare should have stopped the fight.

THE BOUNDARY.

MR. CHURCHILL ON "RECTIFICATION."

POSITION OF THE NORTH

Asked at Epping, Essex, yesterday, whether he would support Ulster if the Boundary Commission took territory from her beyond that required for the mere rectification of the boundaries, Mr. Churchill said that he thought there was no doubt—the Treaty terms were so plain—that the Commission would be bound to confine themselves to mere frontier rectification.

He deprecated the use of minatory language regarding what would happen afterwards in the event of an unsatisfactory solution. It was perfectly clear that it was not intended that Ulster should be mutilated and destroyed.

FREE STATE TRADE WITH BELGIUM.

NEW DIRECT SERVICE INAUGURATED.

A development of much interest to those associated with the Irish cattle trade, and the welfare of the Port of Dublin was inaugurated yesterday, when the 1,300 ton vessel, General Leman, entered the Alexandra Basin from Antwerp, with a general cargo, after the discharge of which she enters on the new service of direct cattle export to Belgium. Her cargo included basic slag, iron, raisins, glass and matches.

The company which is responsible for this new enterprise includes Senator J. J. Parkinson, as Chairman; Messrs. M. Cuddy, J. P. Cuffe, and R. J. Duggan, on the Irish side, while there are three Belgians on the Continental directorate.

The General Leman, which reached the Liffey early in the morning, was, like the ss. Brussels now engaged in the cattle and cargo trade, involved in the Great War, during which she was captured from the Germans by the Belgians, and was subsequently utilised in their coastal traffic. Designed for general cargo carriage, she is now specially fitted for live stock transport.

The syndicate which is responsible for the new traffic is registered at Antwerp, with a capital of 500,000 francs; and the master and crew of the steamship are Belgians. Captain de Corte, who made the voyage from Antwerp in three days described his vessel as pleasantly seaworthy, and capable of making good time, despite the fact that the initial trip was made under heavy conditions of wind and visibility.

Flying the Free State flag from her foremast, and the registration ensign from her aft-deck, the steamer looked trim and neat; and when the Belgian Consul (M. Maurice Goor) and the Vice-Consul, with Messrs. R. J. Duggan, J. P. Cuffe, and M. Cuddy went on board they were taken to the saloon of the vessel, where an informal reception was given to the captain and officers.

The General Leman will leave Dublin on Friday morning with a cargo of stock. For the present shipments of cattle will be limited to 300 head per fortnight. It is understood that the scheme, which is being worked with enthusiam at both ends of the service, will in due course develop into a weekly trip.

During the day a number of citizens visited the vessel and displayed a keen interest in her.

FREE STATE TRADE.

INCREASED FIGURES FOR AUGUST

The Free State trade and shipping statistics for August are now available.

Imports for August are valued at £5,402,594, as compared with £5,075,188 for July. The total for the eight months January-August of this year is £43,946,130.

Exports for August are valued at £4,482,490, as compared with £4,052,844 for July. The total for the eight months is £30,412,984.

Re-exports for August are valued at £91,465, as compared with £109,013 for July. Total for eight months, £836,705.

Over the eight months the following balance is thus obtained:—

Imports	£43,946,130
Exports and Re-exports	£31,249,689
Excess of Imports over Exports	£12,696,441

The usual detail tables are given, showing quantities and values of the month's merchandise by categories, and the countries to and from which the items were consigned.

These tables give information that is of use in special connections. For example, in view of the recent establishment of a direct service between Ireland and Belgium, it is interesting to note that imports from Belgium in the eight months were valued at £428,170, and the exports to Belgium at £121,980, with an addition of £7,704 for re-exports.

MEAT PRICES.

MR. J. H. THOMAS ORDERS AN INQUIRY.

"I was present last week at a meeting of representatives of the Australian meat exporters, and they assured me that they were only getting 2d. per pound for meat that was being sold in England for 1s. 5d. I have decided to order an inquiry to ascertain who gets the difference between twopence and one and fivepence."—Mr. J. H. Thomas at Gravesend last night.

OLD AGE PENSIONS.

BIG REDUCTION IN COST TO FREE STATE.

The effect of the "cut" in the scale of old age pensions and of the recent review of pensions for stricter application of the means clause, has been to reduce expenditure on old age pensions in the Free State to an extent which in a full year would mean a saving of more than £428,000.

A return presented to the Dail shows that on 31st March this year 122,845 pensions were payable, representing a yearly cost of £3,089,380. By September 5th the number of pensions was reduced to 119,031, representing a yearly cost of £2,661,149.

Detailed figures in the return show that, apart from the "cut" of a shilling, hundreds of pensions have been reduced on review of the pensioners' means.

Whereas in March, 112,439 pensioners (that is, all but 10,000 out of the whole number of pensioners) received the full amount, the combined total of nine-shilling and ten-shilling pensions in September, following the "cut" and review, was 92,158. It is interesting to note that 34,348 persons still draw pensions at the ten-shilling rate.

At the other end of the scale a pension of a shilling a week was drawn by 63 persons in March, but 634 in September.

ELECTION BUYING.

CHARGES AGAINST AMERICAN POLITICAL PARTY.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday.

The Senate Committee which is investigating the charges made by Senator La Follette that the Republicans are raising a huge "slush" fund to buy the Presidential election, held a further sitting to-day. It was decided to summon the leading millionaires, who are alleged to have subscribed 20,000,000 dollars, to give evidence. Mr. La Follette's lawyers will attend and examine the witnesses. At the previous sitting it was stated that the funds of the Republican Party on October 10 amounted to 350,000 dollars, which came from some 17,000 people. Mr. Hodges, the treasurer of the Party funds, then denied that there was any conspiracy to buy the election.

LATE NEWS.

HOUSING AND THE ELECTION.

THE LABOUR MANIFESTO.

In a leading article The Times observes:—One of the minor inconveniences of an election is that it brings into party controversy urgent social problems, which in themselves are not party questions, and which can be solved only by co-operation between the parties. Housing is a leading example of such problems. The Labour Party manifesto puts in the forefront of its achievements its work for housing. In the face of "much opposition" it has passed what it calls "the great housing charter, the Statute that enabled the local authorities and the building industry to engage in a fifteen years' uninterrupted building programme, with such generous financial assistance as will provide, in the first place, houses to be let at low rents; in the second place, a separate dwelling for every family in the land; and, thirdly, a continuous policy of slum clearance and an ending of over-crowding."

It would be hard to compress a greater number of misleading statements into a single sentence. The opposition was not to the provision of houses, but to the expenditure of enormous sums, without any assurance that the number of houses would thereby be increased. The fifteen years' period is one of Labour's good intentions; the Housing Act makes provision for only three years. The assurance of a separate house for every family and an ending of over-crowding can be given only by a change in methods of building or by an increase in the number of skilled building operatives. For such an increase the "charter" makes very inadequate and indirect provision. With a change in methods it does not deal.

"RED" DESIGNS ON BRITAIN.

A CAMPAIGN OF DESTRUCTION.

Plans made by the Third (Communist) International, which is closely associated with the Soviet Government for the destruction of the British Empire, are disclosed in a pamphlet which is published by the Russian National Students' Association in Paris, states The Times. The statements, which are fully documented, are based on official declarations and writings of the leaders of the Third International, and describe the work which that organisation has set out to accomplish in the British Dominions and Dependencies in order to provoke a revolution. At the Congress of the International held in Moscow last June and July a change of policy was decided on.

The plan of campaign for achieving the destruction of the British Empire was being worked out on four main lines:—

(1) Sapping work by local organisations, (2) the gradual splitting off of huge lumps of the British Empire by means of insurrections, (3) the preparation, according to a definite plan of a simultaneous outbreak in all Colonies, (4) the combination of all these methods.

The majority of the Executive Committee declared themselves in favour of the fourth method, on the ground that the varied character of the British Dominions made it imperative to use this method.

FAMILY IN MOTOR ACCIDENT.

CHILD FED ON MOTHER'S BLOOD.

SAN BERNARDINO, CALIFORNIA, Wednesday.

Mr. T. C. Kelty, who had been missing since Sunday, was found dead to-day at the foot of a precipice. His wife was alive, but injured, and her baby girl, aged five, was also alive, having been kept from death of thirst and starvation by the blood from her mother's arm, which she had gashed in order to save her child.

The missing motor car in which the party were riding at the time of the accident was found smashed 900 feet below the road. Mr. Kelty was crushed to death, but the mother and child were found 200 feet down. Mrs. Kelty, who was partly delirious, told how she opened one of her veins, and fed blood to her girl to keep her alive throughout the chilly mountain nights.

Mr. Kelty's son was attracted to the spot where his father's body was found as a result of the barking of his father's dog.—(Press Association Foreign Special.)

NORWEGIAN ELECTIONS.

COMMUNISTS DEFEATED.

IRISH TIMES FOREIGN SERVICE.

From Our Own Correspondent.

CHRISTIANIA, Wednesday.

The most notable feature of the Norwegian elections has been the defeat of the Communists, who profess adherence to the Moscow International. In Christiania, where they expected to poll at least 10,000 votes, they only received 2,500.

On the other hand, the Labour Party has won three seats, the Conservatives four, and the Peasant Party five.

The final results will not be known until to-morrow, but the present position of the parties is as follows:—Conservatives, 57; Peasant Party, 26; Labour Party, 26; Communists, 7, and Social Democrats, 10. It seems likely that the Conservative and Peasant Parties combined will have a majority in the new Parliament.

BRAZIL RISING.

QUICKLY SUPPRESSED BY THE GOVERNMENT.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Wednesday.

The Journal of Commerce to-day publishes a brief Government communiqué stating that an armed revolt in Rio broke out and was suppressed by the Government in the early hours of yesterday. The leaders have been arrested.

The Government has authorised the issue by the Bank of Brazil as an emergency measure of 100,000 contos of paper currency (£2,500,000) in excess of the legal limit.—The Times Correspondent.

VAIN ATTEMPT TO SAVE DROWNING WOMAN.

Two Reading brothers, Reginald and Walter Durden, narrowly escaped drowning yesterday in the River Kennet, says the Daily Express. Reginald jumped in to save a woman and was dragged under by her. His brother went to his rescue, and the two men endeavoured to get the woman to the bank, but her struggles made this impossible, and she was drowned. The two men came ashore much exhausted.

MR. KIPLING'S DAUGHTER MARRIED.

One of the most interesting weddings of the autumn season took place at St. Margaret's, Westminster, yesterday, when a great crowd assembled to watch the arrival of Miss Elsie Kipling, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rudyard Kipling, who was married to Captain Gezege Bambridge, M.C., Honorary Attaché to the British Embassy at Brussels. Simplicity was the keynote of the ceremony, and there was only one bridesmaid, Miss Peggy Leigh, daughter of the Hon. Rowland and Mrs. Leigh.

The bride was given away by her father. Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Baldwin, who are cousins of Mr. Kipling, and lent their house in Eaton square for the reception, were among the guests.

The bride was dressed in silver broché, with a train of silver lace, lined with chiffon, and she carried a large bouquet of white lilies. Some sergeant-majors of the Irish Guards were invited to the wedding by Captain Bambridge, and in their scarlet uniforms they made a picturesque group.

PREMIER'S SEAT IN DANGER.

LABOUR LEADERS ALARMED.

MORE ROWDYISM.

SIR ALFRED MOND'S THREAT.

There is real alarm in Labour circles for the safety of the Prime Minister's seat, the Aberavon Division of Glamorgan, which he has represented since 1922.

Aberavon was Liberal so recently as 1918, when Major Edwards had nearly a 6,000 majority.

Mr. Ramsay Macdonald challenged it in 1922 and won it in a triangular fight, the Unionist being in a minority of over three thousand, and the former National Liberal receiving only 5,000 odd on a total poll of over 30,000. Last year the Liberals did not put forward a candidate, and Mr. Macdonald, in a straight fight with the Unionist, increased his majority a few hundreds to 3,512.

Now he is challenged by Captain W. H. Williams, a Liberal, in single combat, the question is whether the position of 1918 can be retrieved.

Captain Williams is a very capable candidate, and it is said that his prospects are very promising.

Labour, at any rate, says a Central News message, regards the danger as so serious that a concentration of Labour big guns will keep up fire in the constituency right to the eve of the poll.

The Unionist headquarters in London are receiving encouraging reports and are more hopeful of the clear majority, but they always make the proviso that the seriousness of the crisis must be realised by the electors coming to the poll.

MORE ROWDY SCENES.

The breaking up of meetings is much resented by both Unionists and Liberals, and it is recalled that Mr. Sidney Webb, on the eve of the campaign, prophesied "a dirty election." The danger is that there will be retaliation, as is openly hinted at by Sir Alfred Mond.

When he was interrupted in the Ely Division last night, Sir Alfred Mond said that "unless Labour quickly learn that we are not going to be Bolshevised, they will get some rough houses in the various constituencies."

There were further scenes at yesterday's meetings. Sir Robert Horne was howled down whilst attempting to address a meeting at Hillhead, Glasgow. Several men were ejected, but the speech had to be abandoned.

Wild disorder marked Sir Robert Horne's second meeting at Partick. Storms of boohs and hissing greeted his attempt to speak, and eventually three interrupters had to be forcibly ejected by the stewards. Pandemonium prevailed, and ladies rushed to the platform for protection. The proceedings terminated with cheering and boohing.

Mr. Asquith, in the middle of his speech at Paisley last night, was subjected to noisy interruptions, and said he would not proceed further if the rowdy section did not desist.

The Conservative candidate's meeting at North Lambeth, London, was the scene of considerable rowdyism. An attempt was made to rush the gangways, and during a disturbance one of the stewards had his head cut and was removed to the infirmary, where he remains in a serious condition. During the proceedings the Chairman read the Public Meetings Act in the presence of a large number of police. This partially quelled the disturbance, and the meeting continued. At the end, when the National Anthem was sung, the interrupters replied with "The Red Flag."

Mr. Hogbin, who is contesting North Battersea against Mr. Saklatvala, says that he will hold no more meetings if there is a repetition of the persistent rowdyism.

Labour headquarters yesterday very strongly deprecated the attempts to break up political meetings.

POINTS FROM THE SPEECHES.

Mr. Austin Chamberlain (Conservative):

We need a strong, prudent, and progressive Government to steer us safely through the difficult times in front of us. The Unionists must consolidate and extend trade in order to bring closer the different parts of the Empire.—At Birmingham.

Sir Auckland Geddes (Conservative):

There has never been in our time a Government which had so completely failed to remember the vital interests of this country. The Labour Government had been full of good intentions which had led nowhere. A Socialist Commonwealth is now all they offer. —At Manchester.

Duke of Devonshire (Conservative):

It is dangerous to attempt to prophesy the result of an election, but it is tolerably safe to say that, if the Unionist Party is not returned with a working majority, no other party will be.—At Aston-under-Lyne.

Sir Samuel Hoare (Conservative):

Party issues have been purposely eliminated from the Conservative programme, so that there should be no difficulty for Liberals to support them.—At Chelsea.

Lord Birkenhead (Conservative):

I challenge my opponents to produce a minute to show that I had ever taken part in any Cabinet meeting in which any resolution was passed upon the subject of a prosecution. There has been no precedent for the Campbell case since the days of the Stuarts. During the war the Director of Public Prosecutions informed me that the War Cabinet had passed a resolution ordering the prosecution of a man for sedition. I did not consider the case until the resolution was withdrawn, because I said that the War Cabinet, as a political body, had no right to dictate to the Attorney-General in the matter of a public prosecution. I only ordered a prosecution in that case, after I had consulted Ministers concerned.—At New Brighton (Cheshire.)

In spite of his attack on capitalism, it is worthy of note that the Prime Minister has become a capitalist to an extent, to which I, at least, never had any pretensions. I do not suggest that there is any connection between Mr. Grant's gift of thirty thousand shares to the Prime Minister and the baronetcy, which came to him shortly afterwards—and I say plainly that Grant's public services and personal distinction entitled him to a baronetcy from any party. My criticism is that, as he has attacked the capitalist system all his life, it is difficult to understand Mr. Macdonald becoming a heavily endowed shareholder in the affairs of a company, which, being a capitalist company, is, according to his view, cheating the Proletariat of their just dividends.—At Liverpool.

Sir W. Joynson-Hicks (Conservative):

"Politics during the next twenty years are going to be a much more serious business than heretofore. In the past it had been a fight between two old and great parties. The old Gladstone, Bright, and Nonconformist spirit might keep the Liberal Party alive, but they will soon have to decide between Constitutionalism and the party that is banded together to destroy it.—At Carshalton.

Mr. Neville Chamberlain (Conservative):

Electors at the coming election are to decide whether this great country is to be maintained in its honourable position or whether its Constitutional pillars were to be pulled down for the erection of some unsubstantial structure upon its ruins. Not one of the nearly dozen promises made by the Labour Party at the last election had been fulfilled: Nine months of Socialist government which had resulted in utter failure.—At Birmingham.

Lord Parmoor (Labour):

The Russian Treaty is a great constructive work, and perfectly fair in regard to the obligations which Russia has undertaken regarding the payment of her debts.—At Stroud (Gloucestershire).

Mr. Ramsay Macdonald (Labour Premier):

Labour is making things move. That is why the other parties are so angry with Labour, but "let the heathen rage tumultuously." So long as Labour has the confidence of the country our opponents' efforts will make no impression. No party has had to face the odds now against Labour. Labour has reduced the taxes on food, and has increased the old age pensions. Labour has shown its fitness to rule, and has kept the reputation of the country high in the eyes of the world. I want time to lay the foundations of international peace and good-will, and to deal with housing and unemployment.—At Aberavon.

Mr. Clynes (Labour):

The cowardly conduct of Mr. Lloyd George and Mr. Churchill towards Russia contrasts strongly with their earlier efforts to establish commercial relations with that country. The Treaty and the Loan which Labour wished to arrange would broaden the way for mutual helpfulness in both countries. In trying to exploit the public feeling against Russia, the Liberals and the Tories were betraying British interests. Only the blind could fail to see that Labour must become the greatest force in politics.—At Manchester.

Sir Patrick Hastings (Labour):

Mr. Wheatley's housing bill laid down real Socialism for the first time in this country. Neither of us will go out of public life until the bill becomes law.—At Wallsend.

Viscount Grey (Liberal):

The institution of the Campbell prosecution was a blunder, and its withdrawal was also a blunder. Apparently the Labour Government thought two blunders made it all right. The Government's self-respect should have courted an inquiry into such confusion. The Russian Loan is neither good finance nor good politics, nor is it safe. What has the Russian Government done to inspire more favourable treatment than any other nation?—At Alnwick.

Lord Derby (Conservative):

You might as well chuck in the sea every penny you lend to Russia. Russia is entitled to have what Government she likes, but Great Britain should only recognise a stable Government which is representative of its people, and is prepared to maintain its laws and to protect the interests of other peoples. The Russian loan would eventually have to be paid by British taxpayers in the certain event of a Russian default. It would only be devoted to aiding Russia's German trade.—At Darwen.

I am as much opposed to a general tariff as any Free Trader. It is most misleading to describe the Safeguarding of Industry Act as the thin end of the wedge towards Protection.—At Great Crosby.

Mr. Asquith (Liberal):

Mr. Macdonald's statement that the result of the present industrial system is anarchy is as gross a misuse of language as it is possible to conceive from any responsible statesman.—At Paisley.

Mr. Lloyd George (Liberal):

The Socialists are more anxious to destroy the Liberals at this election than they are to defeat the Conservatives.

It was a good thing that the Labour Party had had opportunity of office, if only to convince them of the impossibility of building up a great new social era in six months.—At Haverford West.

Sir John Simon (Liberal):

Mr. Snowden says that the Russian loan is an absolutely safe transaction. It is as great an imposture as their previous announcement that they had a positive remedy for unemployment. Mr. Ramsay Macdonald had better tell his story about Labour promises being fulfilled to one million two hundred thousand unemployed.—At Spen Valley.

Mr. Ponsonby (Labour):

The Prime Minister has succeeded in European politics where the indolence of Mr. Asquith, the acrobatics of Mr. Lloyd George, the folly of Mr. Baldwin, and the arrogance of Lord Curzon had failed. The Russian Treaty represents the only method of dealing with a very difficult question. The terms are the best any Government would ever get.—At Huddersfield.

ELECTION NOTES AND NEWS.

Mr. George Pilcher, a London journalist, is contesting the Falmouth Division.

Mr. Baldwin speaks at Gravesend (Kent) to-day, and then leaves North to address other meetings in the North of England.

A Labour official declared yesterday that the Labour Party want a straight fight, because it will mean the definite end of the Liberal Party.

Lord and Lady Gainford are conducting the campaign in the Dean Forest Division, owing to the breakdown in the health of Mr. Beaumont, the Conservative candidate.

Colonel, the Hon. Angus McDonald has arrived in the Dartford Division, after a 7,000 miles' journey from Western Canada, to contest the seat as a Conservative.

Mr. W. H. Beaumont, the Labour candidate for Aldershot, asked Lord Wolmer, the Conservative candidate, to lend him a car until after polling day. He did not have any luck.

Lord Thompson and Lord Arnold left for Aberavon, Mr. Ramsay Macdonald's constituency, yesterday, and three other Labour peers will visit South Wales later in the week.

Sir Hamar Greenwood says that he is having the stiffest fight of his career at East Walthamstow, where the Liberal candidate, Mr. Heffer, has refused to agree to stand aside and allow a free fight with Labour.

About five thousand people, mostly women, attended a meeting at Wallsend yesterday in support of Sir Patrick Hastings. The women sang "Patrick, keep your heart up" to the tune of "Horsey, keep your tail up."

Mr. Stanley Baldwin has informed the National Union of Teachers that he does not think a case has been made out for a reduction of teachers' salaries, but he would favour an inquiry by some impartial body after the decision of the Burnham Committee.

SOLDIER'S WIDOW'S MARRIAGE.

NORTHERN ATTORNEY-GENERAL'S OPINION.

On the third reading of the Deceased Brother's Widow's Marriage Bill, in the Northern House of Commons yesterday,

Mr. McGuffin inquired if the Attorney-General could now give his opinion upon the case submitted by Mr. Grant in the House on the previous day.

The Attorney-General said that Mr. Grant on the previous day put forward a case for explanation. A man and woman were married before 1917 and had a family. The man was killed in the war in 1917, and a year later the widow married her late husband's brother. Up to that time the widow was receiving a pension for herself and her children, and the question arose if she was entitled to the pension, as she had married again. Mr. Grant put the question to him—Was she legally married on the second occasion? and his answer was that she was not legally married as the law then existed. The widow and the children were, therefore, entitled to the continuation of the pension, assuming that all other conditions were fulfilled. Some pensions' officer stopped the pension, and, in my opinion, unfairly. The question has now been asked—Will this bill legalise that marriage? If the so-called marriage—this second marriage—had been annulled by the Court there would be an end to it; or if either of the parties had since contracted a legal marriage with someone else, that marriage would not be invalidated by the bill before the House. Assuming that neither of these people had married again, and assuming that the so-called marriage had not been dissolved by a Court, the bill, when it became an Act, would validate that marriage.

Mr. Grant pointed out that the pension to the widow was continued up to the passing of the Deceased Brother's Widow's Marriage Bill in the Imperial Parliament

The bill was read a third time yesterday.

BRITISH TIME.

The Prime Minister introduced a bill to make provision for the permanent adoption in Northern Ireland of the time adopted for use in Great Britain, and the bill was read a first time.

LONDON THEATRES.

MR. GALSWORTHY'S NEW PLAY AT THE HAYMARKET.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
LONDON, Wednesday.

"Old English" is Sylvanus Heythorp's nickname in the Liverpool shipping office, where he is feared and respected. His business is in a bad way, but he bluffs and rides roughshod over his creditors and shareholders at the company's meeting. In order that the family of his natural son shall not be unprovided for, he compels his company to pay a large sum for a shipping concern, and arranges that the seller shall settle a private commission on his grandchildren. This little transaction is discovered by an objectionable solicitor, who threatens the old man with exposure.

The stubborn old man, realising that the game is up, determines to die. He orders a splendid dinner, a great deal of drink—which has been forbidden him—and so, at the age of 80, passes out a "mighty fighting gentleman and a terrible old sinner," to quote his Irish housemaid.

The outstanding figure of the old Stoic dominates the play. In spite of the fact that he is a hardened old reprobate, and proud of it, we are compelled to admire the force, intellect and pugnacious personality of the man. Everyone dwindles into insignificance when he is on the stage, and during the second act, when we see little of him, the play seems singularly flat.

Mr. Norman McKinnel makes a wonderful study of this masterful and magnetic figure. Every action, every tone of the voice, is just right, and whatever success Mr. Galsworthy's play may have, Mr. McKinnel's performance will be a pleasant memory. Other members of the cast, including Reginald Bach, Lawrence Hanray, H. R. Hignett, Irene Rooke and Louise Hampton, contributed to the enjoyment of the play. Joan Maude was quite charming in a young girl's part.

"THE PUNCH BOWL" AT DUKE OF YORK'S THEATRE.

LONDON, Wednesday.

This afternoon the second mixture of "The Punch Bowl" was presented at the Duke of York's Theatre, and the audience seemed to appreciate the flavour more than ever. New sketches, songs and dances have been introduced into the first and third parts, but the second part, "Punch and Judy Up-to-Date," remains unaltered.

By far the most entertaining of the new sketches is a short one by H. C. G. Stevens, entitled, "The Result." As the whole point of the sketch depends on the coming election, it is a pity that such a clever trifle can only remain in the bill for a week. A new sketch, entitled "Old William," in which Alfred Lester plays a waiter, is not particularly good, but all the other new items are merry and bright, and the whole revue from start to finish goes with a swing.

NO MARRIED WOMEN DOCTORS.

BANNED BY THE LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL.

The London County Council has decided that it will in future employ no more married women doctors.

There are at present three married women doctors out of a staff of 34 in the Public Health Department, and they will not be affected.

"The employment of married women doctors should be encouraged, and the action of the L.C.C. is to be deplored," said Dr. Octavia Lewin, of Wimpole street, London, to an interviewer. "A woman doctor who is married is of more value than one who is not, and it is going to be most detrimental to the rising generation if women in any profession are to be prevented from working after marriage.

"A married woman doctor brings more experience to her work, and this is of special value in the London County Council's work, where so many women and children are concerned.

"It is absurd to imagine that a woman doctor who has always been extremely busy, and then marries, will have all her time taken up by looking after her house and husband."

THE DUBLIN LITERARY SOCIETY.

After four years, during which its activities have been suspended owing to the troublous times, the Dublin Literary Society will reopen next Tuesday at 36 Parnell square, when the President will deliver an introductory lecture on "Standards of Criticism." Lectures arranged for the first session will be given by Mr. M. H. J. Brunicardi, Mr. Frank Stephens, Professor Maxwell Henry, "Conall Cearnach," Mr. Lennox Robinson, Professor Chauviré, Lord Dunsany, Professor Alison Phillips, etc. All persons interested in literature are invited to the introductory lecture.

THE CHRISTIAN FAMILY AND THRIFT.

One of the most interesting stands at the Catholic Truth Conference, in the Mansion House, Dublin, is that of the Central Savings Committee. It is appropriate that the literature of the Irish Constructive Thrift Movement should be displayed at this year's conference, since the ideals of the movement are so closely associated with the subject of the Catholic Truth Society's Conference, namely, the "Christian Family." Persons attending the conference should pay a visit to the stand, where useful and interesting information may be obtained.

NORTHERN RECORD OFFICE.

The following documents and book have been deposited in the Public Record Office of Northern Ireland:—Nine patents (eighteenth century) granting pardons to individual convicted persons, etc.; Bosnard's Report on the Linen Industry in Leinster, Munster and Connaught (D. Milne Barbour, Esq., D.L., M.P., Dunmurry).

IRISH FISHERIES.

QUESTION ABOUT NEW COMPANY.

MINISTER'S REPLY.

Reference to the Irish fisheries were made in the Dail yesterday by the Minister of Fisheries, in reply to a question by Mr. Johnson.

Mr. Johnson asked if the Minister had any information respecting the proposed Irish Fishery Company, with, as reported in the Press, a capital of £1,000,000, and whether the Ministry had entered into any agreement with the promoters of the company.

THE MINISTER'S STATEMENT.

Mr. F. Lynch, Minister for Fisheries, in his reply, said that on the previous day he had received a copy of a document which purported to have been issued from 22 Ely place, Dublin, on September 24. That document was in the nature of an outline of the prospectus of a limited liability company to be incorporated under the title of "Irish-American Fisheries, Limited," with a capital of one million sterling.

The particulars given as to the directorate, bankers, and other officers of the projected company were not definitely given, names being suggested only.

The objects of the company were stated to be the "acquiring, carrying-on and controlling of the entire fishing industry of Ireland." The Department had not entered into any arrangement whatever with the promoters of this company. Until Tuesday his Department was not informed of who were the promoters beyond the vague reports which had appeared from time to time during the past month in the daily Press.

From these reports it would appear that one of the aims of the company was to provide patrol vessels to co-operate with the Fisheries Department in policing the inshore fishing grounds of the Saorstat. His Department had not been approached by any person with such a proposal.

No promise of support or co-operation in this or any other matter had been made to the promoters, or to any persons on their behalf by him (Mr. Lynch), or by his Department

As a great deal of attention had been directed to the activities of the projected company in the Press, both in Dublin, in the provinces, in London, and in the Fish Trade Journal, he considered it his duty in the interests of Irish fishermen and probable investors to express his very grave doubts about the genuineness of the proposed "Irish American Fisheries, Limited." From information of a confidential nature, which he had received, he was satisfied that the project was not one which could be recommended to Irish investors.

FISHERMEN'S MEETING.

A special meeting of the Irish National Fishermen's Association was held yesterday in the Mansion House, Dublin, in response to a resolution of the Arklow branch of the Association, which suggested that, in view of the proposed American-Irish scheme for the development of Irish fisheries, the merits of the proposal should be considered.

The Rev. Charles J. White, P.P., Roundstone, presided.

The Chairman said that their Association had been created for the betterment and welfare of the fishermen of Ireland. The Minister for Agriculture had spoken of the possibilities of the land, but these possibilities were small as compared with the teeming possibilities of the Irish fisheries. He knew that a fisherman made £40 in one night. There were many difficulties in the way of the fishermen. If their Association failed they were lost. They had met that day to consider a proposition put forward by a company hailing from America. He did not like this Association to be a company-promoting one. He had made that quite clear when he was last in Dublin, and for that reason he could not accept the directorship of the company. He wanted to remain with the fishermen and sail in their organisation. (Hear, hear.)

Captain Brophil reported that the income of the association since its inception in April last was £156 18s. 6d., and that the expenditure amounted to £166 18s. 7d. He appealed to the branches to help in organising, and expressed his gratitude to the National School teachers for the assistance that they had given in forming branches throughout the country. The most urgent necessity was money to carry on the work for the fishermen.

A committee was appointed to consider and amend the rules which had already been drawn up.

THE PROPOSED COMPANY.

With regard to the proposed Irish-American Company, for the exploiting of the fisheries of Ireland, Mr. Cottrell said that he was rather inclined to favour the proposal, but there were obstacles in the way. The poor, illiterate fishermen should have someone to advise them. Nothing should be done that would prove harmful to the fishermen.

Mr. Mongan also warned the association to be careful as to whether or not they would associate themselves with the company. They would be glad to get the money of the company. He feared that if the association were to join with the company it would mean the end of the association. They would be only too willing to give assistance to any movement that would benefit the fishermen.

The Chairman said that he wished to make it perfectly clear that when it became a question of choice between the Fishermen's Association and the company, he took his place with the fishermen.

Captain Brophil said that when he took the secretaryship of the association he looked around to see how best he could help the fishermen He got into touch with the American Company, and he thought that the association could prove a buffer between the fishermen and the company, and that the fishermen would get a fair return from the company. He knew of no better way to help the fishermen. Capital was needed, and through the company was a good way to get it. The fishermen were not asked to back the company, but merely to give it their good-will. The company could put its boats on the water without asking for any support from the fishermen.

Mr. O'Toole asked Captain Brophil if he was satisfied that the company was genuine, and that it was going to work on a solid basis.

Captain Brophil said that he was.

Mr. O'Toole—Who is going to tell the fishermen what is behind the company, and when the Americans are coming along with their money? The fishermen, whose living was at stake, should know all about it.

Captain Brophil—It is not necessary for the company to lay all the details before the fishermen.

Father McSweeney said that they all knew that Captain Brophil had done splendid work for the Association and for the fishermen—(hear, hear)—but, as the Association had decided to have nothing to do with the company, it was clear that Captain Brophil's position as secretary, while at the same time he was concerned with the company, was an anomaly.

RESIGNATION OF SECRETARY.

Captain Brophil said that he had no intention to occupy the dual position, and he intended to resign the secretaryship, but he would not lose his interest in the fishermen. He tendered his resignation.

On the motion of Father McSweeney, the resignation of Captain Brophil was accepted.

The Chairman said that he wanted it to be clearly understood that they were all agreed that the Association as a body could have nothing to do with the promotion of any company.

Captain Brophil said that he had placed on the agenda a reference to the scheme for the harnessing of the River Shannon for electricity purposes. It was for the Government to give an assurance that the harnessing of the waters of the Shannon would not interfere with the interests of the fishermen.

The Chairman said that the subject did not come within the scope of the business of the meeting that day.

Captain Brophil said that he had received letters of regret for non-attendance from Mr. P. Gill, Arran Islands, and Mr. Keane, of Kilrush.

The meeting adjourned, to resume in the afternoon in the absence of the reporters.

Subsequently Captain Brophil informed an Irish Times representative that, because of the introduction to the meeting of two gentlemen who were not members of the Executive, he left the room. Captain Brophil states that he has been invited to join the new Irish-American Fishery Company as a director.

THE INTOXICATING LIQUOR BILL.

COMMITTEE TO CONSIDER NUMBER OF LICENSED PREMISES.

MINISTER INSISTS ON HOURS CLAUSE.

When the Committee stage of the Intoxicating Liquor Bill was resumed in the Dail yesterday, Mr. Kevin O'Higgins offered strong opposition to all amendments to the hours for the opening and closing of public-houses—9 a.m. to 10 p.m. on five days of the week and 9 a.m. to 9.30 p.m. on Saturdays. None of the amendments was carried.

The Minister announced that he intended to appoint a committee to report on the number of licensed premises. In his view there are too many, and if some of them were cancelled the condition of the country would be better, and there would be fewer attempts to evade the law.

Mr. P. O'Maille, Deputy Speaker, took the chair, and explained that the absence of the Speaker (Mr. Hayes) was due to the death of a near relative.

MILITARY GUARDS AT THE DAIL.

In answer to a question by Mr. Darrell Figgis as to the advisability of replacing the military sentries and guards now placed at the entrances to the Dail and the Government Buildings, in order that the Legislature and Government might not wear the appearance of existing under military protection, Mr. O'Higgins (for the President) said that the matter had been under consideration for some time, but a decision to alter the present arrangement was not likely to be taken this year.

SECRET DOCUMENTS.

President Cosgrave, answering a further question by Mr. Figgis as to the desirability of publishing all documents relating to the making of the Treaty, in view of the undertaking of the late Mr. Griffith, and the possibility that the documents would need to be brought before the notice of the Chairman of the Boundary Commission, said that none of the documents could with propriety be brought under the notice of the Chairman of the Commission, the terms of reference of which were laid down under Article 12 of the Treaty.

With the exception of memoranda officially exchanged between the delegations, all the other documents were Cabinet documents, and he was not prepared to violate confidences by publishing them. The memoranda that were exchanged between the delegations were confidential as between the Governments. They could be published with the consent of the British Government, but he had had them examined, and they contained nothing that was relevant to the present issue.

Mr. Figgis—Having regard to the fact that President Griffith had given an undertaking that he would seek permission from the British Government for the publication of such documents, will the President be disposed to consider a renewal of the request for publication?

The President said that there were other inter-Governmental communications from plenipotentiaries and others, and a partial publication would not give a true picture of the whole of the circumstances. He did not think it would be wise to publish one set of the documents.

PHŒNIX PARK.

Replying to Major Cooper, who asked if an application had been received from the National Athletic and Cycling Association of Ireland for a plot of ground in the Phœnix Park to be used for athletic purposes, Mr. Blythe said that the promotion of legislation in relation to the Phœnix Park was pending. In the meantime he did not see his way to submit to the Oireachtas a proposal under the State Lands Act to add to the number of enclosures in the Park.

THE CLOSING HOUR.

Replying to Mr. P. Clancy, Mr. O'Higgins said that up to the passing of the Intoxicating Liquor Act, 1924, all licensed premises situated outside towns of a population of 5,000 or upwards were required to close at 9 p.m. on Saturdays. The Act referred to did not extend the hours during which intoxicating liquor might be sold, and the Civic Guard had been instructed to see that the law was strictly observed.

FOUR EXTRA JUDGES.

The Minister for Justice received the permission of the House to introduce a bill providing for the appointment of Commissioners to hear and determine appeals from Recorders and County Court Judges which were pending when Part II. of the Courts of Justice Bill came into operation. The number of those appeals was, he said, 3,200, and it was found that the three judges of the High Court available to hear them could not dispose of more than 600 in the time at their disposal. It was proposed to appoint four Commissioners to sit continuously until all the appeals are disposed of.

A bill was introduced for the purpose of avoiding duplication in the proclamations bearing on statutory holidays.

The Minister for Local Government was granted permission to introduce a bill to validate the provision of seed potatoes or oats, or both, by County Councils during the year 1924, and by certain District Councils during the year 1922.

Without discussion of any of its sections, the Oireachtas Witnesses Oaths Bill was put through the committee stage, and the report stage was fixed for to-day.

Major Bryan Cooper said that the bill was an urgent measure to empower Committees of the Oireachtas to examine witnesses on oath, Pending its passing the business of private bill legislation was practically held up.

LIQUOR BILL.

THE HOURS OF TRADE.

The House resumed the Committee Stage of the Intoxicating Liquor Bill, 1924, postponed from last session.

Section I. fixes the hours for opening for the sale of drink at 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. on ordinary week-days, and 9 a.m. to 9.30 p.m. on Saturdays. Special provision is made in another section for the hours of sale on Sunday, Good Friday, Christmas Day, and St. Patrick's Day.

Mr. Milroy moved an amendment to the effect that the hours for sale on all week-days, Good Friday, and St. Patrick's Day should be 7 a.m. to 10 p.m.

He said that the closing of licensed houses on St. Patrick's Day had already been deleted from the bill. It was not unreasonable that people who left their homes at 5 o'clock in the morning should be able to get a drink before 9 a.m.

Mr. Kevin O'Higgins (Minister for Justice) said that he did not think that a general proposal as to opening hours, such as that made by Deputy Milroy, should be advocated on the basis of special circumstances. Under the provisions of the bill bona fide travellers might be served at any time day or night. He would move a general motion that the hours set out in the bill—which he considered eminently reasonable—should be adhered to. The police experience was that the earlier closing on Saturday night was advisable. He thought that it was better that people should turn out of publichouses earlier, and go home earlier, instead of going home when their neighbours were in bed, and at an hour which gave greater temptation to mischief. In the interests of decency and social order the hours which he proposed were reasonable.

Mr. Heffernan said that there was a grievance as regards opening at 9 a.m. People attending fairs often left their homes at 5 a.m., and had no place to go for shelter, or buy tobacco or cigarettes, except in licensed houses.

QUESTION OF CRIMES.

Major Bryan Cooper said that he would address himself to the early closing on Saturday nights. The Minister had said that police experience was in favour of the earlier closing. He took it that the Minister meant the Civic Guard, but they had only two years' experience. There was the argument of the Minister that earlier closing contributed to social order—that people would go home and not commit crimes. Crimes committed through drink were not those done by stealth. They were riotous crimes. Saturday night was the night on which men went out to enjoy themselves, and they were more likely to get into trouble if they were turned out on the streets an hour and a half before the last tram, in Dublin, than if the publichouses were left open to the same time on Saturdays as on other nights.

Mr. Thomas Johnson said that the more time a man had to spend money in publichouses on Saturday nights, the less he had to take home to his wife and family. (Hear, Hear.)

Mr. Dalton supported the amendment.

Major Cooper said that there was a certain fallacy in the argument that half an hour extra in a publichouse meant more money spent on drink. The generally accepted opinion was that shorter hours meant greater consumption in a shorter period. Every working man did not go to a publichouse to spend the money he should give his wife and children. For many the publichouse was their place of relaxation. Some, of course, abused the publichouse, but they could not legislate for the exceptional cases.

There was an impression abroad that drink was a great curse in this country. From the Minister's own statement, the returns for the year 1923 showed that the arrests for drunkenness in the whole large area of the Dublin Metropolitan district were 1,408, or 3½ per cent. of the population. In Philadelphia, with total prohibition, the arrests for drunkenness were, in proportion of the population, twenty-six times as many as in Dublin. The arrests in Dublin in 1913 were 2,841, so that drunkenness had declined by fifty per cent. in Dublin in the space of ten years. In the capital, at least, the evil was a decreasing one, without any prohibition or additional restrictions.

Mr. Johnson said that he was prepared to ask the majority of workingmen, who did not abuse drink, to sacrifice the extra half-hour on Saturdays for the sake of the wives and children of their fellows who do abuse it.

Mr. Gorey said that he was prepared to accept the Minister's proposals if he embodied in the bill a provision that on market days and fair days the opening hour should be seven a.m.

Mr. O'Connell (Labour) said that it was extraordinary how much argument was put forward on behalf of facilities for the workingman while the publican was kept in the background.

HALF WAGES ON DRINK.

Sir James Craig said that he supported strongly the proposals of the Minister for Justice, mainly from the point of view put forward by Deputy Johnson. He did not believe that a pint of porter or a glass of whiskey did a man harm, but for years he had been in the forefront of those fighting the evils of intemperance. He saw their hospitals and their asylums half-filled, and women and children living in a half-starved condition because of the effects of excessive drinking, and for that reason he welcomed every opportunity to restrict the time in which men can get drink.

Quite recently he spoke to a patient in hospital, a man who was there not because of drink. That man told him that he drank on an average ten pints of porter a day, at a cost to him of £2 5s. a week. His wages was £4 10s., and only half of it was available for the support of himself, his wife, and his six children. He knew that all workingmen were not the same, but he would support any proposal tending to prevent the minority from doing injury to themselves and their families. He would wish that the Minister had gone further and fixed the hours at a few in the morning and a few in the evening, with a closing period in between.

Mr. Gorey said that fairs had to be held early, and that men travelled long distances with cattle, and required early refreshments. He and others had known the lives of men who came to the fairs wet and cold, to be saved by a glass of whiskey or brandy.

Mr. O'Connell said that if the houses were opened at seven o'clock persons other than the persons attending fairs would make use of them. He suggested that encouragement should be given to the opening of houses where refreshments of a non-alcoholic nature might be obtained.

Mr. P. Hughes said that there was no general desire to have public-houses open at 7 o'clock, except on fair and market days. On other days from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. would be a reasonable thing.

Mr. Figgis said that it would be reasonable to keep the public-houses open later on summer Saturday nights than on winter nights.

Mr. Hewat said he was no believer in the idea that people were to be made sober by Act of Parliament. Most industries closed down early on Saturday, and if the public-houses were open late it would be a temptation to men to enter them instead of going to their homes. He did not think it was conducive to good business at fairs in the early morning that men should take intoxicants on an empty stomach.

MINISTER'S REPLY.

Mr. O'Higgins, replying to the debate, said that any reasonable case arising out of the arguments relating to fairs and markets was met by the existing bona fide provisions. People who had got to travel long distances to fairs and markets would be all right until 9 o'clock if their women folk gave them good meals before they left their homes. In most towns where fairs were held there were hotels where people could get shelter, and tobacco and cigarettes. He was dealing with intoxicating liquor, and he did not want the issue obscured by tobacco, cigarettes or shelter. In towns of over 5,000 the present Saturday night closing hour was 10 p.m., and elsewhere it was 9. Now it was proposed to fix the hour at 9.30, so that in many cases publicans would have an extra half-hour. He asked the Dail to accept his proposal and to reject the amendments.

Mr. O'Higgins's proposition was then put.

The Deputy Speaker (Major Bryan Cooper)—I think the proposition is lost.

Mr. O'Higgins—Division.

On a division there voted for:—Deputies Alton, Blythe, Walsh, Bulfin, Sir James Craig, Mrs. Collins O'Driscoll, Egan, Figgis, Fitzgerald, Hewat, McBride, Cosgrave, T. Johnson, McFadden, Corish, McGilligan, Gibbons, Nicholls, Sears, Magennis, McGoldrick, Myles, Nolan, Hughes, Hennessy, Broderick, Richard O'Connell, T. O'Connell, Connolly, Crowley, Colohan, Davin, Doherty, Dolan, P. S. Doyle, Duffy, Duggan, Gorey, Lavin, Ledden, Lynch, Mulcahy, James Murphy, Hogan (Galway), O'Sullivan, O'Higgins, Prior and Thrift—48.

Against:—Deputies Baxter, Conlon, Dalton, Daly, Finlay, C. Hogan, Clancy, Milroy, Nagle, C. Byrne, Cahill, Dineen, Heffernan, Lyons, Vaughan, Morrissey, T. Murphy, P. Hogan (Clare), P. McKenna—19.

The motion was, therefore, carried by 48 votes to 19.

The passing of this motion nullified several amendments in favour of extensions of the opening hours.

DAY OF THE FAIR.

Mr. M'Goldrick moved an amendment to make it lawful for a District Justice to give permission when a fair or market is being held in any town or village in his district, if he was satisfied that there would be a hardship to the public through licensed houses not being opened for the sale of liquor before 9 o'clock, to make an order fixing an earlier hour for the opening of such premises.

Mr. Gorey seconded the amendment, and Mr. M'Kenna supported it.

Mr. O'Higgins opposed the amendment. He suggested that the amendment was not put forward in the interests of the people who attended the fairs, but in the interests of people who wanted to take advantage of the fairs to throw their doors open for the sale of drink to any person who might chance to come along.

Mr. Johnson said that if the amendment were accepted he would propose an amendment to make it possible for the street sweepers of the City of Dublin, who were out, not once a month, but night after night in all sorts of weather, to have the stimulants which they might think they required.

Mr. M'Goldrick said that he could tell the Minister that he held no brief for the licensed trade, and had no interest directly or indirectly in it. He moved the amendment in the interests of the community.

With a view to the matter being brought up at a later stage, the amendment was withdrawn.

SUNDAY AFTERNOONS.

Mr. Daly moved an amendment to allow all publichouses in the Saorstat to open between the hours of 2 and 5 on Sunday afternoons, as is the present regulation in the cities of Dublin, Cork, Waterford, and Limerick. He argued that the adoption of the amendment would put a stop to illegal drink-selling on Sundays.

Mr. Davin supported the amendment, because it would put all citizens on the same footing, and would eventually do away with the bona-fide traveller evil.

The Minister for Justice said that the distinction between the cities and the rest of the country in the matter of Sunday publichouse trading was in existence before his time. The proposal contained in the amendment was something they were not prepared to accept, certainly not in the present bill. Whether the suggestion was one worthy of examination with a view to future legislation was another matter. Whether it would not be a good exchange for the complete abolition of the bona fide traffic was a question he would like to see examined and sifted by a commission. He proposed in the near future to ask a commission, or, at least, a committee, set up under his own department, to examine a great many matters in connection with the lincensed trade in the Saorstat. He was particularly anxious to submit to examination the possibility of a substantial reduction in the number of licensed houses. He held the view that there were, perhaps, twice too many licensed houses, and that a good many of the excesses and abuses in connection with the sale and consumption of drink arose from the fact that there was in the country scarcely enough legitimate trade to go around.

There was a scramble for the crumbs to be secured by illegality, and evasion of the law, especially by supplying drink to people long past the stage when they should be served. That situation arose from the wholesale granting of licenses by honorary magistrates at corrupt quarter sessions. Now they had to see how the engine could be reversed.

PETTY DISTRIBUTORS.

One result of the haphazard creation of licenses was the multiplication of petty distributors. Finding in a short time that his license was not the gold mine he had expected, the publican put up a counter and started trading in other commodities to make out a living. Now the public had to pay for them all, for competition as a factor in the controlling of prices had become a joke. Prices were fixed for the weakest link in the trading chain. That was one of the reactions from the basic fact that there were too many licensed houses in the country. If they could get the number of licences reduced, and with their struggle for existence in the trade, they might be able to do with safety what could not be done now. Then they could have hope and confidence, even that the licensed business would be conducted in a decent way, without the present costly necessity for constant police vigilance and supervision. Then there would be room for hope that the members of the trade would become their own policemen, and themselves preserve decency and order in their establishments, without countenancing or conniving at abuses or evasions of the law.

The wholesale granting of the Sunday 2 to 5 facility would, he was convinced, lead to grievous abuses. Once the crowd was collected at the country publichouse, there would be no closing at five o'clock. There would still be the "Cuckoo-boy" up the tree watching for the appearance of a uniform. His attitude to the proposal was that it was one for examination, along with others. He was perfectly satisfied that the bona fide provisions of the Licensing Acts, as carried out, are a farce, and that that was a growing evil.

"Huge chars-à-bancs of people start from Dublin on Sundays, and spend the day pub-crawling around the country. Whatever else they miss, they never miss a public-house, not one of them. It is a veritable danger to go out from Dublin in the Wicklow direction on a Sunday evening when those people are coming back from their rural revelries. They come road-hogging with their chars-à-bancs swaying from side to side of the road, often not able to see where they are going, a general scandal and a danger to the public."

At this stage the debate was adjourned until to-day, and private members' business was taken up.

CORK BILL WITHDRAWN.

Mr. J. J. Walsh was given liberty to withdraw the Cork Reconstruction (Emergency Provisions) Bill, 1924. It was a bill to amend the law relating to valuation in respect of certain buildings in the County Borough of Cork, and for other purposes incidental thereto.

Mr. Walsh explained that he was not in a position to promote the bill at present. He hoped, however, to have it re-introduced.

ATTACK ON AN ORANGE HALL.

CHARGE AGAINST FREE STATE SOLDIERS.

Seven Irish Free State soldiers were charged at the Cavan Circuit Court with having caused malicious damage to the Belturbet Orange Hall on the 12th of July last.

Mr. M'Cabe said that with one exception the accused men were all from the South and West of Ireland, and last July's was the first celebration of the kind that they had seen in the North. Dirt was thrown at the flag in the hall, offensive expressions were used, and the provocation was extreme. Neither he nor his clients blamed the Orange Order in any way for what had occurred. He was instructed to state that the defendants were quite drunk. They were willing, in the circumstances, to make good to the Orange Order whatever loss had been sustained. The damage, he understood, was considerably less than £100, and his clients believed that between them they could contribute £3 a week. The matter could best be met if his lordship could see his way to impose a suspensory sentence, so that in the meantime the trustees could be compensated, and let Mr. Reid's claim stand over.

Mr. Reid said that he had no objection to such a course.

His Honour expressed pleasure at the turn of events.

The case was adjourned till next sessions, and the accused were allowed out on continuing bail.

SHOLTO DOUGLAS DIVORCE.

DECREE NISI GRANTED.

Lady Georgina Leonora Sholto Douglas, who was formerly Mrs. Barnard Mosselmans, was granted a decree nisi in the Divorce Court, London, yesterday, on the ground of the misconduct of her husband, Lord George Sholto Douglas.

The suit, which was not defended, came before Mr. Justice Horridge.

Lady Sholto Douglas said that she was living at Upper Grosvenor street, London. The marriage took place on April 23, 1921, at the Register Office, Henrietta street, London. She had been married before, and there was a divorce. She lived with her husband at Upper Grosvenor street, Park Lane, and they had no children.

The marriage was not very happy, and there was trouble with her husband over the allowance that she made him. In April, 1923, there was trouble, and she took proceedings for restitution of conjugal rights. Shortly afterwards they lived together again at Upper Grosvenor street. In January, 1924, she was away on a holiday in Scotland, and when she came back there was more trouble. She left the house, but went back later after her husband had left.

On April 15 last a bill relating to the Strand Palace Hotel was left in her letter-box. She had inquiries made, and on May 8 she presented her petition. A chambermaid at the Strand Palace Hotel, London, said that the respondent stayed there with a woman not his wife on April 14-15.

The head of the Milwaukee detective bureau found six pearls, valued at £400, in a plate of oysters.

LUCRATIVE APPOINTMENTS.

MR. DE VALERA'S POLICY.

HIS VISIT TO NORTHERN IRELAND.

ATTITUDE TO HIS OPPONENTS.

Mr. de Valera, addressing a very large gathering of his supporters in the Round Room of the Rotunda, Dublin, last evening, said that he was very glad of an opportunity of speaking to them before going to the North. Although he was the elected member for County Down, according to the Press, he was to be forbidden to enter his constituency. That was a challenge—(at this point Mr. de Valera removed his overcoat, which was the signal for an outburst of cheering)—which any man worthy to be an elected representative of the people should not take lying down — (applause) — and, he continued: "Nothing pleases me so much as to be given this opportunity of tearing the hypocritical mask off what 's called the British Constitution." (Cheers.) "I am delighted," he added, "that the North has given me that opportunity, because everybody throughout the world who is interested in Ireland's cause will be able to see and understand, in the light that is going to be focussed on the North, what the conditions are there."

Continuing, he said that they had heard a lot about the Counties of Tyrone and Fermanagh, but there were other spots in the North which had as good, if not better, claims; and it was his duty to bring the matter to the attention of the people of Ireland. These people came to him when he was recognised by everybody in Ireland as the representative of the vast majority of the Irish people, and he promised them that in the negotiations with the British he would not forget that an injustice was proposed to be done to the people of Tyrone, Fermanagh, South-East Down, South Armagh and Derry City, aye, and the 100,000 Nationalists in Belfast City.

A UNITED IRELAND.

He gave that pledge and he had kept it. (Applause.) He had refused to have anything to do with any settlement proposed by the British which did not have as its basis a united Ireland, and when the Treaty terms were brought over he told the delegation to go back and treat the proposals as he had treated the proposals of the 20th July—that they could not be accepted by the Irish people. A note was taken at the Cabinet meeting, which he never saw until it was brought forward by their opponents in the secret session of Dail Eireann, and he had now no hesitation in making it public, because the proceedings of that session had been misrepresented in public, and its secrecy was violated even the next day—violated shamelessly. This note of the proceedings was made by one who was now an opponent of his, and it related to a meeting of the Government delegation, held on the 13th of December, and was presented at a secret session of Dail Eireann on the first day of the discussion of the Treaty. It referred to his attitude during the discussion of the Treaty proposals, and it stated:—"In the course of a lengthy discussion of the Treaty the President gave it as his opinion that it could not be accepted in that form. He, personally, could not subscribe to the oath of allegiance, nor could he sign any document which would give North-East Ulster power to vote itself out of the Irish State." (Applause.)

Perhaps, he might as well read the remainder of the Note for fear he might be misrepresented. It stated that, with modifications, it might be accepted honourably; and these modifications were intended to make the terms in line with the proposal which they had made to the British Government—external association with the British Empire, which was the only thing the delegates had a right to discuss. And he said to the delegates: "Go back and secure peace if possible"—he believed that the delegates did their utmost, but that they were prepared to face the consequences, war or no war—that he would deal with the present document like that of the 20th of July, which could not be accepted, and they put forward a counter-proposal. That, added Mr. de Valera, was his answer to his opponents.

A MATTER OF PRINCIPLE.

Proceeding, he said that he was going to the North, and, as had been rightly said by a previous speaker, this was not merely a question for the six counties. If the Catholics of that area wanted secession from the nation he would oppose them just as strongly, for it was a matter of principle with them (the Republicans). This island had been one, and they were not going to let Mr. Lloyd George, or those who thought with him, bring them back to a state of tribalism.

Referring to the capital made out of the fact that two years ago they were unable to put the issue properly before the electorate of the North of Ireland, he said that, owing to the fight down South, it was impossible for them to go North and make a fight for the unity of Ireland in areas that were jerry-mandered to give political majorities to those who wanted to break up and partition the country. They knew of the intimidation, the terrorism and the impersonation that was bound to happen in a place like that. Now they were going forward up there. (Applause.) They did not want their opponents (the Free Staters) to stand down, for if they wanted a plebiscite on partition the only way they could get it was to put up their candidates.

Their opponents asked their supporters to stay away from the poll. He said that it was treachery to ask people to stay away from the poll. Republicanism included everything that their opponents wanted; they were the only party in Ireland who stood for unity, and they expected that Irishmen and Irishwomen would make their voice heard at this crisis in order to show the world where they stood.

ABSTENTION.

Going to Newry would mean the triumph of John Mitchell's policy of abstention from the British Parliament. When he was led away from Green street Courthouse, Mitchell said: "Answer for me." "I know," added Mr. de Valera, "that you will answer for me now." (Cheers.) I hope you will not think we have any hatred against our political opponents, either those who will abstain from voting, or those who will go to the poll against us. Our policy has never been a policy of hatred. Hatred is one of those passions that burns itself out in a short time, and other things with it. We have no hatred, but we have a great love for this land of ours. We say to our opponents that they might think they are determined men. Personally I have great respect for their determination; but I think they might not be so strong if they did not think they were going to be supported by forces across the water. In so far as their determination is genuine, we respect it; but we tell them that we have determined men in the South of Ireland, too. (Loud cheers.) And we are quite certain that if it comes to this final contest we are going to win." (Cheers.)

They, he said, were not going to allow their rights to be filched from them. They were determined that the rights of the people of the Irish nation should be safeguarded. As regards England, his feelings had always been that there might develop between this country and England mutual feelings of respect and admiration and friendship, if England would take her meddling hand out of this country altogether.

THE WILL OF THE PEOPLE.

Having quoted an extract from the manifesto of the Irish Bishops at Maynooth, in 1920, which declared that the one true way to establish friendly relations between England and Ireland, to the advantage of both countries, was to allow an undivided Ireland to choose its own form of government, Mr. de Valera went on to say that Republicans were not against the will of the people. They stood for the real rights of the people; but it was not the will of the people that was given expression to when the guns of a foreign nation were pointed at them and they were told: "Take this, or ——."

They did not stand for anarchy or disorder. They stood for the order that could be maintained when the people had a Government of their own choosing, without large standing armies and police forces. If the Irish people had such a Government a big district would require only one policeman, as was the case in England.

In conclusion, Mr. de Valera appealed to the people of the South to support the Republican candidates at the forthcoming by-elections. He said that in striving for the sovereignty of the Irish nation the people of the South, as well as the people of the North, had a duty to perform. "Show the people of the world," he added, "that the Ireland of to-day is the Ireland of 1918." (Cheers.)

Other speakers were Mr. Brian O'Higgins, T.D., and Mrs. Sheehy-Skeffington.

McCREA-MAGEE COLLEGE

OPENING OF THE SIXTIETH SESSION.

The opening meeting of the new session of the McCrea-Magee College, Londonderry, was held in the Examination Hall yesterday. Professor J. R. Leebody, President of the Faculty, recalled that he attended the College's opening meeting in October, 1865. He was the sole survivor of the original staff of seven. The College was established to provide a course of study in arts and divinity for candidates for the Presbyterian ministry.

Professor Semple, Secretary of the Faculty, detailed the successes achieved by students of the College during the year at Dublin University. The list of distinctions reflected the greatest credit on the industry and intelligence of the students.

The Rt. Rev. R. W. Hamilton, Moderator, said that he entered the College fifty years ago. The most notable change that had taken place since then was the admission of women. This was all to the good. The Moderator emphasised the importance of good health. It was especially necessary for students for the ministry to take care of their health. In addition, they must keep their intellects keen and fresh, and in full sympathy with the thought and interests of the day.

Bursaries and scholarships were presented to the successful students.

YESTERDAY'S CASES IN THE COURTS.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT.

RECKLESS CITIZENS.

(Before Mr. Justice Sullivan.)

"It is stated that there is no city in the world where there is so much reckless driving as in Dublin; and, on the other hand, it is also stated that there is no city where there is so much recklessness amongst pedestrians," said Mr. Justice Sullivan to a jury at the Central Criminal Court, Dublin, yesterday, when Denis Newman, a driver employed by the Henry Street Warehouse Company, was charged with having caused the death of a boy named William Wilson in Cork street on the 22nd May last.

The boy, who was aged fifteen years, was walking across the street opposite his house, when, according to the evidence, he was struck by a motor lorry driven by the accused man and died later in the Meath Hospital.

The defence was that the accused man was going slowly, on his proper side of the street; that he sounded his horn; that the boy ran out in front of the lorry from a stationary car and was crushed, and that the accused man did all that he could to avoid the accident.

The jury found Newman not guilty, and he was discharged.

Mr. Carrigan, K.C., and Mr. Dudley White, K.C. (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor), prosecuted; and Mr. J. Healy (instructed by Messrs. Cox and Co.) defended.

CANAL BANK SCENE.

ATTEMPTED DROWNING CHARGE FAILS.

William Blake, a chauffeur, residing at Richmond Hill, Rathmines, was charged with attempting to drown a girl name Lily Byrne in the canal near Charlemont Bridge at midnight on the 4th September last; with attempting to do her grievous bodily harm, and with causing her actual bodily harm. He pleaded not guilty.

According to the evidence for the prosecution, the girl spoke to the accused man near Charlemont Bridge and he threw her into the canal. It was also alleged that when she tried to get out he put his foot on her to prevent her. She was helped out by another girl.

Blake was examined, and stated that the girl stopped him when he was going home. He had to push her away, and she staggered and fell into the water. He denied that he pushed her back with his foot.

The jury returned a verdict of not guilty, and Blake was discharged.

Mr. Carrigan, K.C., and Mr. Dudley White, K.C. (instructed by the Chief State Solicitor), prosecuted; and Mr. Sherry (instructed by Mr. P. H. O'Brien) defended.

CHARGE OF MANSLAUGHTER.

A DOCTOR'S CASE.

Dr. Walter Robert Hadwen, of Gloucester, who was recently committed for trial on a charge of manslaughter, yesterday appeared before the King's Bench Divisional Court, London, in answer to a rule nisi granted against him at the instance of the Public Prosecutor, to show cause why the trial of the case should not take place at the Old Bailey, instead of in Gloucester. The rule was granted last week, when it was stated that it would be impossible to have a fair trial in Gloucester.

Counsel for the Public Prosecutor now asked for leave to file an additional affidavit in support of the rule, stating that certain information and certain letters from Gloucester only came to hand yesterday morning.

Counsel for Dr. Hadwen objected to the affidavit's being read.

The Court having heard counsel on behalf of the Public Prosecutor, the Lord Chief Justice, in discharging the rule, said that he did not think that a case had been made out. He was not satisfied that there would not be found in Gloucester twelve persons who would not, according to their duty and oaths, give a true verdict according to the evidence.

THE KILLING OF SEALS.

NEW ORDER BY THE DUBLIN CONSERVATORS OF FISHERIES.

The newly-elected Board of Conservators met yesterday at their office, 110 Grafton street, Dublin, all the members being in attendance. Dr. R. R. Leeper was unanimously elected Chairman of the Board. The existing officers and water bailiffs were reappointed.

The Board expressed their sincere thanks and commendation of the excellent work of the water bailiffs during the season now closing.

A resolution was adopted confining the rewards for the killing of seals to the harbour of Dublin, inside of the Poolbeg and North Bull Lights, and also limiting the reward for the destruction of pike to persons holding a fishery licence in the Dublin district.

SHOP IMPROVEMENTS.

LANDLORD'S OBJECTION UPHELD.

In dismissing, with costs, the application of Robert Bates, who, under the Town Tenants (Ireland) Act, 1924, sought to have disallowed the objections made by the landlord, Thomas J. Lawler, to improvements which the applicant proposed to carry out in the premises, 50A Lower Drumcondra road, where he carried on the business of a chemist, Judge Dromgoole said that he was not able to come to the conclusion that the improvements would add to the letting value of the premises, and could not hold that the improvements were reasonable within the meaning of the section.

Mr. J. Henry (instructed by Mr. Hastings D. Draper) appeared for the applicant, and Mr. J. Geoghegan (instructed by Messrs. Cox and Co.) for the landlord.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURTS

THE LOTTERY ACT.

(Before Mr. Collins, K.C.)

When a case under the Lottery Act against the Very Rev. Canon Crowe, P.P., Athlone, was called, Mr. E. H. Burne, for the defendant, asked that it should be adjourned generally, in the absence of counsel for the State, who was in London. It could be re-entered when all parties were prepared to go on. Some interesting points under the Lottery Act would be argued.

The application was granted.

MILK PROSECUTIONS.

Mary Maguire, 12 Upper Exchange street, was fined £5 for refusing to sell to the Corporation inspector, Mr. W. J. Tannan, a sample of milk for the purpose of analysis. There were three previous convictions for selling milk which was deficient in fats and two for refusing to sell samples.

Ed. Phelan, 73 Meath street, was fined £2 for selling milk from which 23.3 per cent. of its fats had been abstracted.

In a case against Frederick C. Walsh, Moneylawn, Gorey, for selling milk which was deficient to the extent of 10 per cent., a sample of which was taken at Harcourt street Station, Mr. Maguire, who defended, said that his client put nineteen gallons of milk on rail, but at Dublin there were four gallons short. The customer refused to take delivery, and his client had to pay carriage both ways.

There was a previous conviction, and a fine of £1 was imposed.

Mr. W. J. Lemass represented the Dublin Commissioners, and Inspector Tannan proved the case.

CARPET SWEEPERS.

(Before Mr. Cooper.)

James Keohane, 16 Brunswick street, was returned for trial on £100 bail to the next Circuit Court on a charge of stealing two Hoover carpet sweepers, value £70, and pawning them. Detective Ryan had charge of the case.

James Russell, 57 North Strand road, and James Leonard, 14 St. Ignatius avenue, were fined 10s. each for selling milk which was 10 per cent. deficient in fats.

DUBLIN CIRCUIT COURT.

SLANDER ACTION DISMISSED.

(Before Judge Dromgoole.)

An action which was brought by Mrs. Mackin, 25 Oriel place, Dublin, against Denis Guiney, draper, Talbot street, for slander, was dismissed.

The plaintiff's evidence was that she made some purchases in the defendant's shop on the 31st July, and after leaving she discovered that she had left a parcel containing a cap on the counter. When she went back to inquire for the cap the assistant said that he had not seen it, and asked her could she have taken another parcel by mistake, to which she replied that she had not. Next morning a detective searched her house, and, at his request, she had to go to Guiney's with the purchases that she had made there on the previous day. The assistant told the defendant that she had paid for these goods. When she asked Guiney to apologise to her he said: "People are not satisfied with getting cheap goods but they must steal them."

Detective Sergeant Lynch said that he did not hear Mr. Guiney use the words complained. It was at her request that he searched the house.

The defence was that Mr. Guiney reported the loss of the parcel to the police in the ordinary way, and that the detective acted on his own responsibility. A parcel was missed from the counter at which plaintiff had been served. The defendant denied using the words complained of.

Judge Dromgoole said that in the whole transaction there was not a shade of suspicion cast on the character of the plaintiff. He felt a certain sympathy for her, but did not think that she had suffered by what had happened.

THE OLDEST TAXI-DRIVER.

MAN OF 83 STILL PLYING FOR HIRE.

Who is London's oldest taxi-driver? An official of the Motor-cab Trade Protection Society states that probably the oldest man at the wheel is one aged 83. About 18 months ago he called at the Society's office, and was then 82. They believe he is still living.

Michael Death (still very much alive), who lives at Ashmore road, Paddington, probably has the record for a long cab licence. The Society says he was a licenced cab driver, but not, of course, a taxi-cab driver, for 54 years. Death, who is now 74, not long ago went under an operation and retired.

Among the ancients still on service is John Fisher, 77, who has had a licence for 53 years. Thomas Prior, who has just died, at 79, was stated to have passed all Scotland Yard tests without difficulty.

After a driver is 50 Scotland Yard requires a medical certificate every five years, and, after 65, an annual test.

Indians in the United States now number 346,962, an increase of 2,619 in a year.

FREE STATE FURNITURE TRADE.

A protective tariff on imported furniture was urged by Mr. D. L. Ailesbury at a meeting of Irish wholesale manufacturers of furniture last night in 40 Upper Sackville street, Dublin.

He said that the Association should prove that it represented the wholesale manufacturers, and that its members were in favour of a tariff.

He urged that the Government, through its representatives abroad, should arrange for the importation of timber and wood goods used by the manufacturers of furniture, so that they might secure those essential articles at reasonable rates.

It was pointed out that a communication had been received from the Government, asking them to appoint an advisory committee to act in conjunction with the Ministry of Industry and Commerce in all things calculated to develop the furniture-making industry. This, he said, might remove such obstructions to their business as the tax on polish, which was the same as that on whiskey—80/- a gallon. They could not expect Irish manufacturers to pay 80/- on polish while English manufacturers had only to pay 12/-.

What pretty teeth you have until you remove that dingy film that's clouding them

Mail the coupon, please. Make this unique test

DENTAL authorities now say that, strangely enough, most people who envy white and glistening teeth already have them, but don't realise it.

This is the reason they give:

Run your tongue across your teeth, and you will feel a film. A film which absorbs discolorations and hides the natural colour of your teeth.

Remove it and your teeth take on a new beauty. Maybe you have really beautiful teeth without realizing it.

Film is regarded as a potential cause of most tooth troubles. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays.

So, besides loss of tooth beauty, film may have a serious effect upon healthy teeth. You must remove and constantly combat it. It is ever present, ever forming.

Old-time dentifrices were unable to combat it successfully. And tooth troubles were a serious problem.

Now modern science has discovered a new way. A new-type tooth paste called Pepsodent that acts to curdle film, then harmlessly to remove it. No soap or chalk, no harsh grit dangerous to enamel.

Mail the coupon for a 10-day tube free. Or, buy a full size tube to-day. See what beauty lies beneath the film on your teeth.

GOSSIP FROM THE COURSE

A CANTER FOR LABADENS.

CESAREWITCH FORM CONFIRMED.

GOOD PERFORMANCE BY DIGNITY.

FROM OUR TRAVELLING CORRESPONDENT.

NEWBURY, Wednesday Night.

Conditions were much improved here this afternoon. The rain had ceased and the sun shone brightly—but it was cold, very cold, indeed, with a sharp north-easterly wind sweeping the course. If the Cesarewitch form worked out badly at Newcastle, where I see that the odds-on chance, Spithead, was beaten by the 20 to 1 chance, Polemberg, it worked out well here, for two horses who were prominent at the bushes in the Newmarket race, Labadens and Vionnet, were first and third, respectively, the hurdler, Civic Guard, dividing the pair. Labadens, as a matter of fact, won in a canter by three lengths. He was backed to win a fortune in the Cesarewitch, but Sirrett, who rode him there, could never fully extend him.

Burns, who rode him this afternoon, is a much older and stronger lad, and driving him from the distance he fairly smothered the others. He is a good-looking chestnut colt, by Holbein, who was bought in France last spring by his present owner, the Maharajah of Rajpipla, and this was, by the way, the first race that this Indian owner has won in England. Labadens was very well backed this afternoon, starting joint second favourite with Puttenden and Vionnet, while Becka had the market call of both. Becka ran badly and Puttenden even worse. Vionnet, however, ran well, but the midget who rode her was all at sea on her in his finish. After Cloudbank had dashed to the front Xandau took it up when they had settled down, and led into the straight. There Lakers took it up from her, but the bolt of both was soon shot, and, after Labadens had gone to the front, nothing ever looked like beating him.

It must be said, however, that the second, Civic Guard, ran very well. Smirke rode him as 6lbs. over-weight, and he was left standing still at the post. When he got going he must have been half a dozen lengths behind. Cockpit was a disappointment, and so was Eastern Monarch, who could get no nearer than fourth, just in front of Ceinturon, who for a moment or two looked as if he might do it, but would not put any heart into his finish.

A DASHING DISPLAY.

A very dashing display was given in the leading nursery by Sir Charles Hyde's Dignity, a very nice colt who was bred by Lord Furness. He has been coughing recently, and he had done so badly in a gallop with a stable companion, who was beaten here in a selling plate yesterday that his connections had no great regard for his chance, and several, notably Iceberg, were preferred to him in the market. There was a moment in the race when Donoghue's mount, Alfreda, who had struck off very smartly, looked like holding him, but it was very short, and coming right away at the end of the three furlongs, Dignity won in a common canter from the Nantgarw colt and Wang. The judge's verdict of half-a-length in his favour was a most conservative one, and gives no idea of the ease with which he won. Iceberg was never in the hunt. At home Dignity is considered to be fully 21lb. behind Game Shot, so it must be assumed that he is a better colt on a racecourse than anywhere else. His display this afternoon was an uncommonly smart one.

Mr. Gilpin's much heralded St. Croix made his debut in the Theale Maiden Plate, for which there was a very big field, and he started second favourite with Mr. Curzon's colt by Sunstar out of Only Girl as the first choice. St. Croix is a Charles O'Malley colt, owned by Lord Woolavington, and is a plain brown lop-eared fellow, rather high on the leg, without a vast amount of distinction in his make-up. He ran a very good race, however, but he was worn down and run out of it by a neck by the Only Girl colt, who stayed on in indomitable fashion.

A very good race for the Moderate Plate saw a victory for Captain Ffrench Davies' Subduer from the dead-heaters, Pilum and Dry Wit, after each in turn had looked like winning.

The Stewards this afternoon inquired into the discrepancy between the running of Slovakia yesterday when she won as compared with her display at Lingfield, and accepted the explanation of her trainer, Gilbert Bennett. Bennett, by the way, told me to-day that the exact price he paid for this genuine little filly was 60 guineas, and not £27 10s as I stated yesterday.

TO-DAY'S CARD.

The Doncaster Meeting is the only fixture under Jockey Club Rules this afternoon. I do not expect that Saucy Sue, or any of the cracks, will contest the Autumn Foal Plate, so it may result in a popular Yorkshire success for Lord Zetland's ASKE. In the Falmouth Nursery I like best the chance of KENTISH KNOCK, while MORALS OF MARCUS may win the Harewood Handicap.

THE CURRAGH.

IRISH CESAREWITCH.

VICTORY OF POLISH PATRIOT.

BRIGHTER LONDON WINS NATIONAL PRODUCE STAKES.

There was a splendid attendance at the Curragh yesterday to witness one of the most interesting contests for the Irish Cesarewitch associated with that race since its inception, and the success of the event was none the less pronounced by reason of its falling to a thoroughly well backed candidate. Polish Patriot won decisively in the end, but for fully twelve of the fourteen furlongs over which the race was run, at least a dozen appeared to hold winning chances. As they swung into the straight, Clonmeen's Pet and Soot were at the head of affairs, with Clonespoe and Knockbarren in close attendance, and it was not until half-way up that the leaders weakened. Then Dines drove Polish Patriot to the front, and excitement ran high when Clonespoe and El Obeid shot out in pursuit and lessened the gap, but, gamely though they struggled on, the weight and the heavy going told their tale in the final stage, and Mrs. Frame's horse, who was in receipt of 16lb. from both, scored decisively, Clonespoe depriving El Obeid of second place by a neck.

Prince Pedro signally failed to run up to expectations, and could do no better than finish fifth behind Soothing Glass, who also disappointed, but Clonmeen's Pet, Soot, and Mirathorn were far from disgraced.

It was acting on the advice of Dines, who rode the horse at Phoenix Park early in the year, that Mr. Frame, who is prominently identified with several business enterprises in Dublin, purchased Polish Patriot from Mr. J. W. Coughlan. After the son of Kosciusko had run at Mallow he made his wife a present of him, and he was sent to Epsom to be trained by the ex-steeplechase jockey, J. Killalee, who has certainly done well with him. Previous to yesterday he won two good races in England, and in carrying off the Irish Cesarewitch he has fully justified the confidence of all connected with him.

Of no less importance was the National Produce Stakes, one of the most valuable of our two-year-old races, and it also brought out a fine field, which included several youngsters who have shown smart form. Backers, however, for the most part, confined their attention to Brighter London and Mallow Bridge, and in doing so sized up the situation very accurately, as they finished first and second, but the first-named, who is an own brother to Jackdaw of Rheims, evinced decided superiority over the Heath House representative, and his victory was achieved in impressive fashion. Bred and owned by Mr. B. M. Slocock, of Carlow, Brighter London has now won three races, and was second the only other time he started, and has few, if any, superiors amongst the Irish two year olds.

Thorn Tree was backed down to 7 to 4 for the Short Grass Plate, but he got none too well away and never shaped like winning. On the other hand, the Phoenix Park disappointment Golden Quest flattered for a long way, and were it not for swerving close home would have atoned for that failure instead of suffering a half length defeat by Swan, who now quickly augmented her Baldoyle success.

Although ridden by a comparatively inexperienced jockey, and endeavouring to concede lumps of weight to her six opponents, Grave Fairy was installed a hot favourite for the Kildare Plate. She, however, had no concern until the finish, which was a very exciting affair, Benedicta getting up in the last stride to make a dead-heat with Sunny Ray, who was stopping very fast at the close. Subsequently, C. J. Rhodes, who had the mount on Grave Fairy, was called before the Stewards to explain his riding, and not being satisfied, they withdrew his licence, which, it may be mentioned, he only took out a fortnight ago.

In the Stewards' Selling Plate, Slieveroe disposed of several more fancied rivals, and the race for the Royal Whip, run over a distance of four miles, proved the good thing it was generally voted to be, for Blue Fish, who now marked up her eighth win out of ten attempts this season—a fine record.

SPORTING PARAGRAPHS.

Straitlace is to be sent to the stud after running in the Three-Year-Old Sweepstakes at Hurst Park next month.

By winning the Royal Whip at the Curragh yesterday, Blue Fish enhanced her already fine reputation, and, incidentally, registered her eighth victory on the flat this season.

At the request of G. Bennett, the Stewards at Newbury yesterday inquired into the Lingfield running of Slovakia, and expressed themselves satisfied with the explanation tendered.

After the Kildare Plate at the Curragh yesterday, the Stewards called upon J. C. Rhodes, who had the mount on Grave Fairy, to explain his riding of the mare, and, not being satisfied, they withdrew his licence. They also cautioned T. Coombs, the trainer of Grave Fairy, to be more careful in future as to the running of his horses.

LONDON BETTING—YESTERDAY.

A well-backed outsider at last evening's Cambridgeshire call-over was Live Wire, who was supported at 1,000 to 30 twice and 1,000 to 40 twice, which left 22 to 1 the top offer. The favourite, Twelve Pointer, was backed to win some thousands at nines, Pasha was in more request than Diophon, and Dawson City went well at 1,000 to 60. Lighthouse, Bucks Yeoman and Jarvie were best of the others. Details:—

DONCASTER.

TO-DAY'S PROGRAMME AND SELECTIONS.

Sandwiched in between Newcastle and Stockton, the Doncaster Autumn Meeting begins to-day, and, despite the unsettled weather conditions, there will be a large crowd on the Town Moor. The going is on the soft side, and the indications favour large fields, except for the most valuable event upon the opening afternoon's card, with its seven races. This is the Autumn Foal Plate over six furlongs, which looks at the mercy of Saucy Sue, in the probable absence of both Manna and Oojah. Morals of Marcus has come for the Harewood Handicap, but so has Gurzil, Halcyon, and West Croft to challenge the best from the local stables. Audax possesses a chance second to none for the Falmouth Nursery, and Zapania may beat both Cavalcade and North Bucks for the Fitzwilliam Plate. Selections:—

Frickley Plate—Glantrague.
Stanley Plate—Rock Honey.
Harewood Handicap—Halcyon.
Autumn Plate—Saucy Sue.
Clayton Plate—Light Cavalry.
Falmouth Handicap—Audax.
Fitzwilliam Plate—Cavalcade.

BOXING.

THE AMATEUR STATUS.

Sir John Milbanke, who was educated at Harrow and Trinity College, Cambridge, recently took part in a 5-round contest, decided in private, with Mr. Raymond de Trafford, in which friends had backed him to win. Sir John also agreed to meet P.C. Black, K Division, London Metropolitan Police, in a 6-round amateur contest at Canning Town next week. As the result of publicity, the Amateur Boxing Association objected to the contest with Black. The A.B.A. has a rule that an amateur is one who has never competed for a money prize, staked bet, or declared wager. At a full Council meeting of the A.B.A. last evening Sir John Milbanke gave an explanation, and the Council decided to suspend him until November 1st. Thus he cannot meet the policeman.

IRELAND V. NEW ZEALAND.

After their match with Cumberland at Carlisle, on Saturday, the New Zealanders travel to Dublin via Heysham and will make their headquarters the Hibernian Hotel, Dawson street.

DUBLIN UNIVERSITY (24) v. MONKSTOWN (6).

This match was played in the College Park yesterday before a fair attendance. Trinity won a hard match by 3 goals and 3 tries (24 points) to 1 penalty goal and 1 try (6 points). The score rather flatters the home side, who, although deserving to win, were not so superior as the score indicates. Monkstown held their own well in the first half, and were very unlucky not to have scored on several occasions. Their forwards more than held their own, but their backs constantly let them down. The visitors opened the scoring. After a forward rush up the field, Bingham made a mistake, and Mack picked up and scored, but Ganly failed to add the points. Good work by Steele, Sugden, Dowse and Crichton set Trinity attacking, and after a splendid bout of passing D. J. Cussen crossed the line for Nunns to convert. Play then went to the home twenty-five, and Ganly and Pickeman were in turn held up on the line. Unable to keep up the pressure, however, Monkstown were soon on the defence, and D. J. Cussen made a fine run and cross-kicked to Steele, who scored, but Nunns failed with the kick. Shortly afterwards Harte broke away from mid-field and passed to Steele, who again scored, for Nunns to improve on with a good kick. Shortly before half-time Pickeman landed a great penalty goal from the touch-line, and at the interval the score stood at 13 points to 6 points in favour of Trinity.

On the resumption Monkstown attacked strongly, but found the defence too good. The weight of the Trinity forwards began to tell, and they forced their lighter opponents back. After Trinity had been attacking for some time Sugden cut through cleverly and put R. Cussen over. Nunns had exceedingly bad luck with his kick, the ball hitting the upright and bouncing back into the field. A good forward rush ended by Chance scoring, and, although Trinity pressed strongly, it was not until close on time that Millin scored, for Nunns to add the points.

For the winners Bingham was very sound at full, while Steele and R. J. Cussen were the best of the three-quarter line. Sugden worked hard at the scrum and was ably assisted by Nunns at out-half. Crichton, Dowse, Clinch and Chance were the pick of a good pack of forwards. J. O'Brien, at full-back for Monkstown, was off his usual form; his kicking at times was rather erratic, while his fielding left much room for improvement. Ganly and McCaldin were the best of the three's, while Lyons was good at scrum half. Pickeman, Mack and Rankin were easily the pick of the forwards. Result:—

Dublin University—3 goals 3 tries (24 points).
Monkstown—1 penalty goal 1 try (6 points).

Teams:—

Dublin University—E. W. Bingham; D. J. Cussen, R. J. Cussen, T. J. Millin, J. L. Steele; C. Nunns, M. Sugden; J. D. Clinch, R. Y. Crichton, R. H. Dowse, J. H. Harte, A. H. Pike, O. P. Chance, J. H. Wallace, J. F. Wilde.

Monkstown—J. O'Brien; D. L. O'Brien, J. R. Ganly, R. Swanton, C. McCaldin (capt.); D. Lyons, G. F. Gibson; D. C. Pickeman, R. A. Ross Todd, G. D. Rankin, J. Mack, E. S. A. Crawford, A. E. Rutherford, N. McNamara, A. J. Walmsley.

Referee—Mr. T. Bell (Lansdowne).

BLACKROCK COLLEGE (5) v. ST. COLUMBA'S (5).

The Senior Schools Cup teams of Blackrock and St. Columba's met at Williamstown yesterday in splendid weather, but the sod was heavy and holding, and the result of a strenuous game was a draw of a goal each.

At the outset Blackrock pressed, but then Columba's took the upper hand, and play in the first half was mainly in the home territory. Blackrock were several times penalised, but long shots by Synge fell short. Dunne, Keane and Moloney did good defence work for Rock, but O'Connell, the visitors' back, was sound and resolute, and St. Columba's pressed, a free to them, taken by Synge, in a good position, going just wide. Columba's still pressed, and after a mix up at the right Rossiter scored, for Synge to cleverly convert, the visitors leading at the interval by 5 clear points.

In the second half the advantage was all in favour of Blackrock, yet they could do everything but score. It must be advanced in their favour that several of their players were new to the game, and that their captain, Crowe, was absent. St. Columba's, too, missed Martin, their captain, and Foster, their out-half, but on the run of the play the Rathfarnham lads deserved to win. They played the better football, Blackrock forwards being at sixes and sevens, and not heeling the ball smartly enough, while when it did get out to the backs the movements were so obvious that they effected little stopping. It was in the very last minute that Rock levelled up. After a dash by M'Donnell, M'Glade ran across to send over Fullen, who converted, and left honours easy. For Rock Murphy did well at back; Keane and Fullen were the best of the three-quarters, M'Glade a good scrum half, while Dunne, Timon, O'Rourke and Lynch were the best of the forwards. For Columba's O'Connell at back was very cool and enterprising; Rossiter and Franklin were the best of the "threes," Jones the better half, and Synge, Jackson, Mason and Gwynn the pick of the forwards. Result:—

Blackrock College—1 goal (5 points).
St. Columba's College—1 goal (5 points).

Teams:—

Blackrock College—J. Murphy; P. Smith, T. Ryan, B. Keane, A. M'Donnell; F. Fullen, J. M'Glade; S. O'Rourke, D. Dunne, M. Glynn, S. Cloonan, A. Lynch, B. Timon, J. Andrews, M. Jones.

St. Columba's College—D. C. M'Connell; H. M'Meekin, C. H. Clifford, W. W. Rossiter, W. M. Franklin; J. W. C. Jones, C. S. Wilson; J. S. Synge, J. D. Gwynn, A. Lisney, H. W. Graham, F. S. Lee, W. J. Mandy, F. C. Jackson, H. S. Mason.

Referee—Rev. J. Baldwin.

NEW ZEALAND (23) v. LANCASHIRE (0).

The New Zealand team brought off another capital victory yesterday when opposing Lancashire on the ground of the Manchester United Association Club. They scored 1 goal and 6 tries to nil. While the county made quite a good fight forward they were altogether out-classed, both in speed and accuracy outside the scrummages, and practically all through they were compelled to play a defensive game. In fact, at no time was there any danger of the All Blacks' line being crossed. Nepia being wonderfully sure in tackling and accurate in kicking. Once McQueen had a chance with a penalty, but his kick was a couple of yards short. Well supported, Svenson, Cooke, and Hart gave the Lancashire defence a trying time, and Porter was constantly distinguishing himself. A word of praise is due to Mellish, the Lancashire full-back, for his valiant display against great odds, and also to Periton, a very good forward.

In splendid weather, over 30,000 people gathered, and for ten minutes the county did well enough to suggest that a keen fight was in prospect. However, New Zealand, in their first real attack, scored through Porter, and Nepia added a goal. Within a few minutes Richardson and Svenson in turn crossed the home line, Nepia failing to improve either try. Porter ran over for the fourth try, and Cooke followed with another success, but Richardson failed to convert, so that New Zealand changed ends with a lead of 17 points. Afterwards the superiority of the visitors was not so marked, but Masters ran over with a try, and later Cooke also touched down. Neither of the goal kicks was successful, but Nepia made an excellent attempt to convert Cooke's try, the ball striking the upright and rebounding. As the game went on play became a little rough and the referee found it necessary to caution players of each side. Result:—

New Zealand—1 goal 6 tries (23 points).
Lancashire—Nil.

Teams:—

Lancashire—R. K. Mellish (Fylde); G. P. Lammert (Fylde), A. R. Aslett (Richmond), S. R. Jackson (Broughton Park), J. C. Samuels (Manchester); E. J. Massey (Liverpool), S. B. McQueen (Waterloo); A. F. CRICKET.

M.C.C. IN AUSTRALIA.

PERTH, Wednesday.

A rather dull day's cricket was witnessed by a crowd of about 800 people in the two-day fixture between the M.C.C. team and a Western Australian Colts XV., which began here this morning, in fine weather. Winning the toss, the local side went in first, and batted all day, their score at the close of play being 187 for 13 wickets. Cantwell batted in excellent form for just over two hours, his innings of 66 including four 4's. He was heartily cheered by the crowd on retiring, and a spectator presented him with a gold watch as a memento of the occasion. A. E. R. Gilligan, A. P. F. Chapman, J. W. H. T. Douglas, Hearne, Strudwick and Hendren stood down from the visiting side. The last-named was originally selected, but he is suffering from a bruised hand, and Howell was brought into the team at the last moment. In the absence of Gilligan, J. L. Bryan captained the side.

The wicket was in good condition when the Colts opened their innings with M. Loton and Calder, to the bowling of Howell and Tate. A disastrous start was made, the first three wickets falling with the total at 5. Calder was taken in the slips by Tyldesley at the second attempt off the Warwickshire fast bowler, who with his next ball clean bowled Cassmith, while Bryant, the next man in, fell to a catch at the wicket off the same bowler. Rigby then joined Loton, and the total rose to 23 before the newcomer returned a ball to Freeman, who easily held it. Saw was out to a good catch at mid-off by Bryan off Woolley at 40, and Inverarity was clean bowled by the Kent player at 43. Blundell came out to partner Loton, who had scored 16, but before any addition was made to the total the game was adjourned for lunch. Howell and Tyldesley shared the attack at the resumption, and off the former's third ball Loton was snapped at the wicket by Whysall. The seventh wicket fell at 43, and at this point the Warwickshire bowler had taken four wickets for 5 runs. Horrocks fell to a catch at point off Tyldesley at 59, and Blundell was stumped off the same bowler for a stylish 23 at 76. Miller, with 6 to his credit, was then partnered by C. V. Loton, but after scoring 4 the latter fell a victim to Tyldesley, the tenth wicket going down at 86. Ten runs later a catch at mid-off by Bryan from Freeman's bowling disposed of Millar, and then, with Cantwell and Drew together, the tea interval was reached with the total at 109 for eleven wickets, their respective scores then being 15 and 4. On play being resumed, a capital stand was made, and the score was taken to 183 before Cantwell was rather foolishly run out. With the total unaltered, Tate dismissed Hoffman, and 2 runs later, with Drew and Fidock at the wicket, stumps were drawn for the day. Score:—

LONDON STOCKS BROADER.

PRICES IMPROVING ALL ROUND.

The London Stock Markets continue to reflect a broadening of interest, there being an increasing demand in a number of departments. German scrip further improved, some good business being transacted. Opening at a slightly higher level than the previous close, they gradually appreciated, being as high as 5¼ premium at one time. They finished slightly below the best quotation, however, but still showed a substantial increase on the day. British Funds were very firm, but at the close overnight quotations were generally repeated. Home Rails were firm, but here also practically no alterations were registered. Foreign Rails were higher where any change was shown. Industrials were very firm. A large business was done, and some good rises were marked, while in only a few instances were final prices lower than the overnight level. Iron, Coal and Steels continue to improve, while Nitrates were quite good, and although closing prices generally remained at former prices, a firmer tendency was manifest. Tobaccos, on the other hand, reacted slightly. Breweries were steady and slightly higher in places. Newspapers again met a good demand, and finished the day higher. In gilt-edged securities, British Funds were firm. Among War Loans, the Fives gained ⅛ to 102⅞, while other issues were without change.

FOREIGN BONDS HIGHER.

Foreign Government Securities were a good market, and where any alterations occurred increases were marked. German scrip were again heavily dealt in. Opening better, they further improved, and at the close were quoted at 5 premium. Chinese were a firm spot, the 5 p.c., 1896, gained a point to 93, while the 4½,1898, at 80, and the 5 p.c., 1912, at 67, were also both a point to the good. French Loans failed to respond to the improvement in the franc, and closed without change. Japanese were quiet and without alteration at the finish. Uruguay 3½ p.c. improved to 60, or a rise of ½ on the day.

BRITISH RAILS FIRM.

No alterations were marked at the finish. The Great Western Railway Company placed in the market yesterday a new issue of 5 p.c. Debs. at 104½.

FOREIGN RAILS BETTER.

Colonial and Foreign Rails were better. Canadian Pacifics moved up, and at the close showed an increase of ½ to 164¼. Central Argentine at 76¼ were also ½ higher on the day. Among Buenos Ayres, the Western gained a point at 82, while others were repeated at overnight levels. Grand Trunk Pacific 4 p.c. Debs. at 60 closed a point to the good, while the Guaranteed and the Perp. Deb. were both repeated. Entre Rios Ord. closed without change, but the 6 p.c. Cum.-Pref. at 85½ were ½ better. Mexicans were without change on the day, while Leopoldina also remained at their previous level.

OIL SHARES ACTIVE.

Increased activity was witnessed in the Oil Share market yesterday, and, while professional dealings were once more on a large scale, it was satisfactory to note that there was more inquiry on the part of the general public and a broadening of interest. At the close a long list of more or less important improvements was recorded, against which could be set only a few small losses. Firmness continued to be displayed by Royal Dutch, which again met with a steady demand and further advanced. Shells, following their overnight's improvement, made a strong start, and although, in common with other favourites, they slipped back about mid-day as a result of banging tactics, they came into renewed demand later and registered a further appreciable gain at the close. Anglo-Persians were looking none too bright, and, in fact, were among the few shares in which losses were finally recorded. The two Pref. issues, however, improved. Burmahs were a firm market at an advance, and quite a large business was transacted in Anglo-Americans, which were not slow to respond to the buying. Mexican Eagles figured prominently in the early hours, the shares moving up sharply as a result of wild bidding. A set-back occurred about mid-day, but a renewed demand set in in the afternoon, and at the close an appreciable gain was registered, the two Prefs. advancing in sympathy with the Ord. A steady business was in progress in the afternoon for V.O.C. Holdings, and at the close a further advance was registered. British Controlled issues again strengthened. Right at the close a strong demand arose for Steaua Romana, to which the price responded smartly. A harder tendency characterised Trinidad issues. Apex, which will be quoted x.d. to-day, met with a steady demand and improved. It is believed that the report of Trinidad Leaseholds will be available shortly, and it is anticipated that it will make a satisfactory showing. Firmness also was displayed by General Petroleum of Trinidad and Trinidad Friendships. Attempts to bang Lobitos and Anglo-Ecuadorians met with strong resistance. Lobitos gave way at one time, but recovered to the overnight's level, while Anglo-Ecuadorians, although showing a loss on the day, finished above the worst. Kern Rivers came into good request, and the price advanced. Other good spots were provided by British Borneos and Tankers Prefs.

RUBBER SHARES STILL RISING.

A heavy business was again transacted in the Rubber share market. A good demand was met, and prices were pushed further up, and a long list of increases was marked at the finish. In only three instances were final quotations lower than the overnight quotation, and then the differences were extremely small. United Sua Betong opened higher and steadily improved, the final quotation of 70s. being 3s. 9d. better than previous close. Kapar Para gained 3s. 3d., while Pegoh showed an improvement of 3s. 1½d. on the day. Membakut put on 2s. 7½d.; Moopty Valley and Langkat Sumatra were both 2s. 6d. to the good. Tali Ayer closed 2s. 1½d. higher, while Tebrau were 1s. 10½d. better than the previous finish. Golden Hope at 24s. 9d. were 2s. 3d. higher, while Damansara put on 1s. 10½d. General Ceylon and Glenbervie were both 1s. 9d. to the good. Bah Lias gained 1s. 3d. to 34s. 9d., while Batu Tiga at 3?s. 3d. were 1s. up. Lanadron, North Hummock, and Pataling were all 1s. 3d. higher. Grand Central put on 1s. 1½d. Highlands finished 1s. higher, and Glenshiel showed an increase of 7½d. on the day. Kuala Lumpur closed 1s. 6½d. up, while Labu at 31s. 3d. were 1s. 0½d. better. Linggi and Malacca were both 10½d. to the good. Selaba, Serdang Central, and Sialang were all 1s. 3d. better, while Straits Rubber showed a gain of 1s. 6d. on the day. Seafield put on 1s., while Rubber Estates of Johore and Rubber Trust were both 9d. higher. Tamiang closed 10½d. higher, Sungei Buaya and Sungei Kapar were both 6d. to the good. Anglo-Dutch gained 6d. on the day, while Bukit Rajah were a similar amount higher. There were many other improvements, while the only decreases were those of 3d. in Anglo-Malay, of 2d. in United Temiang, and of 1½d. in Bukit Mertajam. The price of rubber rose to 17¼d. per lb.

TEA SHARES IRREGULAR.

The amount of business transacted in the Tea share market yesterday was extremely small, while price movements, with few exceptions, were rather narrow. A few of the recognised leaders were dealt in, but other issues were practically neglected. Price alterations were fairly numerous, and, while the majority of changes were in favour of holders, many issues lost a good deal of ground. Taken as a whole, however, the market displayed a slightly better tendency.

INDUSTRIALS STRONG.

Renewed strength was displayed by most sections of the Miscellaneous and Industrial markets yesterday. Business continued quite good, and was stimulated to some extent by reports of better trading in one or two industries. This was especially the case in the Textile section, where the decision of the Master Spinners' Federation to increase the number of hours worked in the mills weekly from 26¼ to 32, thus indicating an improvement in the cotton trade, caused a demand for all the better-class issues. Consequently prices finished higher in several instances. Bleachers were in strong request, and finished 1s. 9d. better at 59s. 6d. Bradford Dyers also received attention, and further advanced to 80s. 6d., or 1s. 6d. better, while gains of 9d. took place in Calico Printers to 34s. 3d., in Coats to 62s. 6d., and in Fine Spinners to 53s. 6d. Sewing Cottons hardened to 56s. 9d., and Amalgamateds left off 6d. better at 9s. 9d. Courtaulds kept firm at 56s. 6d. Stores descriptions were well maintained at previous levels. In Caterers Liptons strengthened to 27s. 6d., and among Foodstuffs Van Den Berghs put on 1/16 to 1⅞ and J. Travers a like amount to 2 1/16. S. and A. Meats were wanted in anticipation of to-day's meeting and finished 9d. up at 16s. 9d., while Spillers Milling Deferred recovered to 19s. 3d., after having been 19s. 4½d. bid at one time. Breweries exhibited firmness, St. Louis Prefs. rising ½ to 6½ and South Africans 1/16 to 1 11/16. Guinness, however, dropped 2 to 493. Among Whiskey shares Distillers further improved to 2¼. Hotels did not move. Tobaccos were quieter and scarcely so good, but among Coffee shares Dumonts developed strength. Insurances exhibited renewed firmness, while Banks kept up. Except for Pan De Azucars, Nitrates remained firm. The feature of the Motor group was the strength of Austin 1st Prefs., which rose 1s. to 16s. 6d., though the Debs. eased to 88½. The other issues closed unchanged. Coventry Chains were a steady market at about 34s. on the dividends announcement. Humbers stiffened to 25s. and Napiers to 24s., though Rolls-Royce receded to 26s. 6d.; and among Canadian-American Brazil Tractions fell ¼ to 56¼. Wireless descriptions exhibited firmness, the Ord. and Prefs. both gaining 1/16 at 1 11/16 and 1 11/16 respectively, while Marines stiffened to 1¼ and Canadas to 8s. Indications of a brighter outlook in the Iron and Steel trades was reflected in an all-round advance in these descriptions yesterday. Vickers provided a feature, Newcastle support lifting the shares 1s. to 10s. 6d., while the tax free Prefs. moved up. United Steels were also favoured and improved to 7s. 6d., while the Prefs. rose 1s. to 12s. 6d., and Guest Keens were prominent with a gain of 1s. 3d. at 35s. Armstrongs put on 9d. to 15s. 3d., as did also B.S.A. to 12s. 3d. and Fairbairn Lawsons to 13s. 3d. Numerous smaller improvements occurred. Among Shipping shares Cairn Lines eased 6d. at 16s. and Court Lines 3d. at 31s. 9d. In the Miscellaneous Trading section Oil Cakes found fresh support, which took the price to 24s. 6d., or 6d. higher, though African and Easterns eased to 34s. 3d., or 3d. lower, and Lever 8 p.c. Prefs. lost the turn at 20s. 3d. Niger Prefs. were wanted and left off 6d. better at 14s. 9d. Parent Tyre were a good market at 22s., or 6d. better. Gramophones relapsed to 32s. 3d. on the fall in profits for the past year. With the exception of Associated Ord., which rose 6d. to 23s., movements in Newspapers indicated an easier tendency. Among recent issues Harland and Wolff Prefs. met with fresh support, which resulted in a further recovery to 2s. 9d. discount. Pease and Partners improved to 10s. [illegible]

LONDON MINING SHARES IN DEMAND.

INQUIRY FOR LEADING COUNTERS.

Despite politics and the general feeling of uncertainty which they engender, the Stock Exchange continues to display cheerfulness. Investment business remains on a fair scale, and speculative activity shows distinct signs of broadening. With regard to the latter the public is beginning to take a hand in various departments, and the Mining market is receiving a gradually increasing share of attention. During yesterday morning there was a steady inquiry for many of the leading counters, but later this died down and prices slipped back. An exception was provided by Randfontein, which left off substantially higher. Rand Mines were also the turn better, but Central Mining were dullish. Johannesburg was inclined to support its specialities, and East Rand were a good market on the publication of the quarterly report. West Springs came into demand and moved up, and the Options were also better, while Mozambique marked a recovery. In the Rhodesian department Cam and Motor fluctuated within narrow limits and closed lower. Chartered were a steady market, but Gaika moved down, and Sherwood Starr, Tanks, Rezende and Globes were all unaltered. Zams were wanted and improved. Diamonds were firm, with Premier Pref. a half-crown to the good, but West African Diamonds eased on profit-taking. The price of tin rose £2 1s. 3d. to £253 12s. 6d. per ton. Among Australians, Associated advanced in sympathy with Canadians, and Zinc Corporation were better; while North Broken Hill were inquired for on the satisfactory report. Rio Tinto, among Coppers, were higher. In other directions Huronian Belt continued steadily on the up-grade. Mining Corporation of Canada also improved, and Chosen further strengthened. Closing prices:—

PAPER MARKS.

People who some considerable time ago gambled in German (paper) marks must have long since realised that they backed the wrong horse. They are now able to gauge the extent of their losses. With the coming into force of the new Bank Law and Currency Act, Germany, from the 11th inst., has a new currency (says Truth). The new unit is the Reichsmark, equalling one billion paper marks. The mark notes of the Reichsbank will remain legal tender pending the issue of new notes and the withdrawal of the old ones. The ratio between the Reichsmark and the paper mark, which has hitherto been maintained by the Reichsbank, is now fixed by law, as well as the ratio between the new Reichsmark and the rentenmark, which have an equal value. As the rentenmark has a dollar, or gold, basis it is worth a little over one shilling, allowing for sterling being at a discount. Therefore, it is easy to calculate the present-day value of a holding of German paper marks. If a man invested in a billion he merely crosses off twelve noughts, and the remainder is worth about a shilling. If he exercised moderation and bought a million marks only, his holding is worth a millionth part of a shilling. So simple.

HARLAND AND WOLFF PREFERENCES.

What are the facts about Harland and Wolff? (asks the City Editor of the Daily Mail). In July the company made a public offer of £4,000,000 of 6 per cent. First Pref. Shares at par. The issue was made under good auspices, though it was commented at the time that the names of the company's brokers did not appear on the prospectus. The prospectus was strangely reticent as to the actual past profits and the financial position of the company, and, probably because of this, the public response was meagre, as much as 88¼ per cent. of the issue being left with the underwriters. The continued absence of information as to the finances of the company, which until the Pref. Share issue was made was a "private" company, has probably hindered the absorption by investors of the shares left with the underwriters, and the quotation is as low as 3s. 3d. discount. While some Stock Exchange firms are recommending the shares as an investment, others are advising their clients not to touch them. A full and frank statement by the company itself as to its position and prospects, with the latest audited balance-sheet, would be welcome.

BONUS SHARES AND DEATH DUTIES.

An incident of which I (Truth) heard last week throws some light on the difficulties that sometimes prevent the carrying through of bonus and share-splitting schemes for which shareholders are always clamouring. At the board table of a well-known tea company, whose directors are very substantial shareholders, a proposal for splitting the shares and making a bonus issue came up for discussion, and was supported by the younger members of the board. They favoured the policy of paying a dividend that would be regarded in these days as moderate for a tea company—say, 40 or 50 per cent.—and carrying the balance of the year's profits to reserve, to be afterwards distributed in the form of a share bonus. The absence of a really heavy dividend, argued the younger men, would relieve them, for the time being at least, of an increase in their already-heavy super-tax, while the share bonus would add to the market value of their capital. The older directors, whose average age exceeds three score years and ten, hotly opposed the proposal on the ground that the splitting of the shares and the issue of a bonus would add nothing to the output of tea from the property, but would, by increasing the market valuation of their individual shareholdings, add seriously to their death duties! The older men had their way, and so a proposal that would have gladdened the hearts of, perhaps, a thousand shareholders was lost.

B.A.G.S.

At yesterday's meeting of the B.A.G.S. Railway the Chairman announced that extensions of 350 kilometres were projected. The company had overspent on capital account £1,609,000. This would have to be adjusted later, but the Chairman added that no new capital would be issued in the current financial year.

NEW YORK INVESTMENT TRUST.

America's interest in foreign securities will be stimulated by the formation in New York of an investment trust company on the lines of similar undertakings in London. The capital is $30,000,000, and a public issue has just been made. Interests are to be acquired in existing companies and firms which are associated with a group of leading German banks.

AUSTRALIAN WOOL SALES.

At the wool sales, held at Sydney yesterday, 11,205 bales were offered, of which 7,740 were sold. Private sales consisted of 1,528 bales. There was an average selection. For better kinds of fleeces and broken wools there was a good general inquiry. Burry, wasty, and raw quality wools generally showed no improvement. Bradford operators were moderately active. Greasy merino realised 41½ pence.

THE MONEY MARKET.

LOANS STILL DEAR.

EXCHANGES MORE FAVOURABLE.

There was still a keen demand for money, and the market was not able to repay the whole of the amount due to the bank, a small portion having to be renewed. It was at one time feared that the whole amount would have to be borrowed again, but special assistance was evidently forthcoming from some quarters. Short loans commanded up to 4 p.c., with old day-to-day money going on at 3¼ to 3½ p.c. There was nothing offering below 3 p.c., but weekly fixtures were renewed at 2¾ p.c. as before. Discount business was quiet and the tone kept hard, except for short bills, which were a shade easier at 3 5/16-3⅜ p.c. Fine three months' paper was quoted 3⅜-3 13/32 p.c., and the new Treasuries were again on offer at 3 [illegible] to 3 [illegible] p.c.

Gold was 3d. per oz. lower at 92s. 1d. Bar Silver further fell ⅛d. per oz. for both spot and forward delivery to 35 1/16d. and 35 3/16d. respectively.

The tone of the Foreign Exchange market was generally favourable under the lead of a further advance in sterling in New York to 4.50⅜-4.50½ dollars. French francs were better at 85.90-85.95, and Belgian francs at 93.50-93.60, but Italy weakened to 103.50-103.55 lire. Dutch florins reacted to 11.44-11.44½ and Spanish pesetas cheapened to 33.52-33.56, and Norwegian kroners to 31.45-31.50, Swedish kroners also deteriorated to 16.91-16.94. Poland was 23.40-23.60 zloty, Rumanian 785-805 lei, and Austria 316,000-322,000 crowns. South American rates showed a slight recovery, Buenos Ayres being 44⅛-44¼, Rio 6-6 1/16 and Valparaiso 39-60 pesos. Rupees remained at 1s. 6 1/16d.-1s. 6 3/16d., while Japanese yen further strengthened to 1s. 8⅝d.-1s. 8 11/16d. China rates were easier. The following are closing quotations:—

BANBRIDGE, CO. DOWN.
HIGHLY IMPORTANT EXECUTORS' REALISATION SALE OF LICENSED PREMISES AND OTHER VALUABLE PROPERTIES.
OWING to the death of Mr George Willis, the survivor of the Partnership "Willis Bros.," the Executors propose to realise the entire estate. Meantime the following property will be SOLD BY PUBLIC AUCTION, at the BUSINESS PREMISES, NEWRY STREET, BANBRIDGE, on MONDAY, the 27th day of OCTOBER, 1924, at 1 o'clock p.m.:—
All that valuable three-storeyed HOUSE and LICENSED PREMISES, situate in NEWRY STREET, BANBRIDGE, held for ever, subject to the yearly rent of £15 10/1. This Lot includes Shop, Bar Fittings, and Fixtures, with Publican's Licence.
These premises have been Licensed for many years, and conducted by "Willis Bros." for over thirty years. In conjunction with the Licensed Premises a first-class Grocery and Provision trade has also been carried on. The Grocery department, however, has recently been altered so as to have no internal communication with the remainder of the building, leaving a large, well-appointed Shop. The alterations have not in any way curtailed the licensed portion, there being many large rooms and snugs.
The Dwelling accommodation has a separate entrance, and contains reception rooms and numerous bedrooms, with up-to-date sanitary conveniences. The Yard, which opens into the public street, is large and commodious, containing large stores, lofts, sheds and stabling for over 50 horses. The premises are all in first-class order, and situate in the principal street, where the horse fairs are held, and are also convenient to the public markets. Practically all the public sales of properties in the town and the surrounding district are held upon the premises, and it is seldom, indeed, that such desirable property is offered for sale.
For further particulars of other properties see further advertisements.
